The King Is Dead.
Talking About Silver.
A Fight In Technocracy.
Hard On the Old.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

"KING" SOLOMON is dead. He owned the Cocoanut Club in Boston, had an interest in the Cotton Club, was a "big shot."

But the biggest "big shot" can be made small by one small shot, from a small revolver in the hands of a small-time gangster.

"King" Solomon had bullets in his stomach, his neck, in his head, when found.

In the hospital police asked "who did it?"

"King" Solomon sneered, said, "The dirty rat got me," and died.

That is the gangster code.

YESTERDAY, THE Senate talked about silver. Able men think we must have inflation, and some suggest that silver would be better than paper. Perhaps it would. There is less silver than paper.

If ghosts are allowed to travel, Bryan's ghost was sitting in the Senate gallery yesterday, when Senator Wheeler, of Montana, revived the famous "16 to 1" of 1896, which would make 16 ounces of silver worth one ounce of gold by law.

That is not easy to do, with the present temper of our best minds. Another gentleman wanted 14 to 1. At present the actual ratio in value is 85 to 1, whereas the ratio in production, ounce for ounce, is about 13 to 1.

EXPERTS ON technocracy, in a fight, have expelled the "grand high panjandrum," named Scott. That's a good deal like a fight among ghosts in a ghost story. There isn't any technocracy, only a foolish system of selfish industry, competed with utter recklessness, whose only thought is for profit.

There is no limit to production, but every limit to distribution, based on lack of buying power. The present condition had to come, as a similar condition must come when a little boy eats more green apples than he can take care of. But it doesn't kill him, usually.

CARDINAL HAYES, sailing for a short rest in the West Indies, utters a timely protest against Jeremiahs of technocracy, rebuking them for trying to frighten the people with a word.

The word will not frighten the wise, but it frightens many, including some men that ought to know better.

THESE ARE not pleasant times for old people. A young man can say:

"Soon, things will be better. I'll get a job, and a better one. I'll work harder than ever; all my future is ahead."

It is not so with the old. Time is "of the essence" in their contract with fate. Hence, unpleasant paragraphs in the newspapers.

Gustave A. Ascheim, 75, tried to keep his home together through three years of idleness, then wrote a little note:

"Sick and half blind, without earnings for three years."

And hanged himself to the bedpost.

THE POOR old man wrote also:

"My wife has a weak heart. I beg you to treat her with consideration, not get her excited. She is a most wonderful woman, so I hope she will get over it. It is a straight case of suicide. Everybody knows us around here, as I kept a straight and honest life."

He did, but it did not save him.

Bernard Offenburger, 64, his sister, Mary Offenburger, 63, also decided yesterday that the struggle was too hard. Five opened gas jets explained their departure to the police.

MIAMI BEACH is urged to adopt a "more liberal policy" as regards clothes worn swimming. Enlightened Miami has a long strip of beautiful beach and park combined. No charge for parking your car, no expense for a bath house.

You go to the beach in your bathing suit, stay all day, pay nothing to anybody. The men wear a little Gandhi costume, something around the hips, nothing above the waist. The ladies wear tights that end far above the knee, and modesty is achieved with a bandana handkerchief fastened around the neck, brought down over the breasts, and tucked in at the waist. What clothing could be more "liberal" is hard to imagine.

ALL THE winter resorts, Gulf Coast, California, Florida, should work and pray for rapid development of flying. Young William Randolph Hearst, Jr., who works in the New York American office, where this is written, flew in from Miami yesterday, bringing two friends in his hydroplane, in exactly ten hours.

Before long that will be enough time to cross the continent, or Atlantic.

IF YOUR business has dropped off in our "little depression" it may, although it should not, comfort you to know that other businesses have their troubles.

For instance, the paid attendance at professional baseball games has fallen off one million five hundred thousand in two years.

This has temporarily reduced the value of home runs, but that value, like everything else, will come back.

Sing Sing reports "no depression." Industrial employment is increasing, sales are bigger, profits are growing in the state prison industries. That does not sound pleasant to men that are out of prison and OUT OF WORK.

HOOVER SEES CRISIS ON TARIFF

Europe Dumps Goods On U. S.; Senators In Debt Clash

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Raise American tariffs or stabilize foreign currencies was the alternative that came today from a high administration quarter almost coincidental with a flare of debate over the impending foreign debt discussions that swept the Senate and the receipt in Washington of Great Britain's reply to America's granting of a parley on debts.

The text of the reply was delivered to President-elect Roosevelt in Warm Springs, Ga. It was taken for granted that the British note indicated readiness to send representatives to Washington in March.

HOOVER VIEWS

From quarters qualified to speak the mind of President Hoover, there was word that he felt the United States was just beginning to feel the full effect of the departure from the gold standard of Great Britain and other nations last year.

A heavy influx of foreign goods, sold more cheaply on the American market than they could be produced in this country, was said to necessitate either that tariffs be raised or that the forthcoming world economic conference meet soon and move toward a stabilization of currencies.

Sources able to speak for the President stated that he believes that if it is necessary to increase American tariffs this move will place the United States in a mad race with European countries to lift trade barriers, a movement he believes has been going forward with increasing speed abroad for the past 18 months.

Only today in Geneva, the preparatory commission for the proposed economic conference decided not to fix a date for that assembly for the present but to meet again sometime within the next three months to set a date.

An outline of the views of President Hoover came from an official at just about the same time Finland was seeking to fall into thed ebt discussion line and word came that Latvia was ready to do the same.

OUTBURST IN SENATE

Shortly after Representative Rainey, of Illinois, the Democratic leader, had said neither revision nor cancellation might be expected from the conferences, a fresh outburst of debate opened in the Senate.

Senator Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, precipitated it by asserting that President-elect Roosevelt's offer to discuss debts with all nations that have paid their December installments was an invitation to reduce the debts and calling attention to a published report that an emissary of the President-elect was in Great Britain talking with officials about an 80 per cent reduction.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, entering the chamber during the speech, interrupted to say he understood Robinson was using newspaper reports "as the basis for violent attacks."

He got no further before Robinson, of Indiana, cut in on him to say:

"Not violent attacks. I resent that. The other day the Senator said I was playing cheap politics. When any one speaks

Fifty Swept Away On Ice Held Safe

ONEIDA, N. Y., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Belief that all of the 50 fishermen who were swept out into Oneida Lake by winds after the breakup of the ice this morning off Sylvan Beach, at the eastern end, were safe, was expressed at mid-afternoon by rescuers. All but eight had been accounted for at that time, and the rescuers said they felt no fear for those, as it was probable they had been saved through independent effort at some point along the shore.

CLOSE RACE IN IRELAND INDICATED

De Valera, Cosgrave Share Honors in Dublin Vote

International News Service.

DUBLIN, Jan. 25.—President Eamonn De Valera and former President William T. Cosgrave shared honors evenly as the first final returns of the general election in Dublin were counted tonight.

Polling in the national university gave one seat to a De Valera candidate and one to a follower of Cosgrave. The third seat was so closely contested that a recount will be necessary.

"I believe I've won!"

Former President Cosgrave, once sentenced to be shot by the British, made this statement to International News Service today as counting of the heaviest vote ever cast in the history of Ireland was begun at 9 a. m.

In the balance of this general election, precipitated when Cosgrave's bitter political enemy, President de Valera, dissolved the Dail, hung the future economic policy of the Free State.

If definite announcement of returns, expected Friday or Saturday, shows that victory has gone to Cosgrave's adherents, it will mean Ireland will cleave close to Great Britain, forging an economic rapprochment between Dublin and London.

Should the victory remain in De Valera's hands, the Free State will renew its fight for economic independence between Ireland and Britain and for abolition of the lad anuities paymets which Cosgrave has said are legally due.

Cosgrave, basing his campaign on the contention De Valera's policy means ruination for Ireland by destroying her best markets, appealed to businessmen and wealthy farmers for support, while De Valera directed his case to less pretentious elements.

AUTOIST HALTS RUNAWAY TEAM

A team of city horses became tired of hauling dirt today and decided to lead their own lives.

oS they suddenly ran off. They ran like a four-letter word out Fifth avenue from Diamond street, galloping around those newfangled horseless carriages and exciting quite a bit of admiration for this show of independence.

But at Magee street a truck driver—of all people—hopped on to their wagon, stepped cautiously on to the tongue of the vehicle and brought them to a stop—another victory for the motor era.

The police are investigating a report that the horses have been hearing about Technocracy.

Steedle Offers Bill For Fingerprinting

HARRISBURG, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—All citizens of Pennsylvania will be fingerprinted if Representative Joseph G. Steedle gets his plan through the Legislature.

Steedle submitted to the House today a bill to require hospitals to fingerprint all babies and file the records with the State Health Department.

JOHN MAUG AND TWO OF HIS LIEUTENANTS UNDER HEAVY GUARD LEAVING JAIL TO START LONG PENITENTIARY TERMS

WOLGAST UNDER KNIFE HERE

Bobby Wolgast, who was willing, in his day to meet any and all in the flyweight and bantamweight classes of the fight game, is winning a fight on a hospital bed against "punch drunkenness."

The fighter who went into the ring against four champions in one month, was recovering today from an operation performed at St. Francis Hospital.

Surgeons explained the operation is not unusual, and is designed to relieve brain concussion. Bobby, who was internationally known as one of the best "club" fighters, has received many blows on the head, which has resulted in "punch drunkenness" or concussion.

Bourse on Strike Against Deputies

PARIS, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The bourse was tied up today by a strike of brokers who refused to quote prices in protest to the Chamber of Finance Committee's action yesterday in tearing down the government's contemplated economies. Police reinforcements watched the scene.

There was no trading. No quotations were posted except rentes (government loans) when the bourse opened at noon.

Otto of Hapsburg Visits Hindenburg

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—President Von Hindenburg today received Otto of Hapsburg, who had just come from Potsdam where he had visited Friedrich Wilhelm Hohenzollern, former German crown prince.

The visit with the President was represented as being entirely private, since Von Hindenburg knew Otto's father, the last Austrian emperor, personally.

Capone Appeal Refused; Gunmen Fire on Sister

Federal Judge Spurns Defense Set Up By Gangster

ATLANTA, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Al Capone lost another legal skirmish when Federal Judge Marvin Underwood sustained a motion that the former gangster's writ of habeas corpus be dismissed.

Capone sought his freedom from the federal penitentiary here through ahabea s corpus writ on contention the statute of limitations had voided charge of the government that he violated income tax laws in the years 1926, 1927 and 1928.

The government contended Capone should have brought the statute of limitations plea to bar in his original trial or its appeal, and Judge Underwood agreed with that contention. He ruled that habeas corpus was no remedy for such a plea and directed that Capone be remanded to custody of Warden A. C. Aderholt of the federal penitentiary here.

Capone's application for habeas corpus was made several months ago, but the judge reserved his decision until today.

The ruling said Capone, at his trial and after all evidence was in, invoked the benefit of the statute of limitations by motion to direct a verdict in his favor and "now contends that such motion was equivalent to a plea at bar."

Attorneys said Capone could appeal Judge Underwood's decision to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

The former gangster was brought into court when his writ was presented to the court, but he was just a number at the penitentiary today when Judge Underwood handed down the ruling.

Racketeer's Aide and 'Public Enemies' Escape Bullets

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Guns blazed wide open in Chicago this morning in an apparent effort to wipe out the remaining chieftains of Al Capone's diminishing underworld empire, and the former gang czar's own sister and Public Enemies No. 1 and 2 narrowly escaped death.

Mrs. Mafalda Maritote, Capone's sister, with her baby in her arms and accompanied by her husband, John J. Maritote and her brother, Frank Diamond, long one of Al's trusted lieutenants, were the targets for a fusillade of bullets from a passing car. They escaped miraculously by dropping flat on the ground as the assassin's barrage opened.

In the second outbreak, five shots were fired through the windows of Matty Quail's saloon where, it was said, Murray Humphreys, who not long ago was named Public Enemy No. 1, and William (Three Fingered Jack)

Brown, Heresy Trial Bishop, Seriously Ill

GALION, O., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—William Montgomery Brown, 77, former bishop of the Arkansas Diocese of the Episcopal Church of America, is seriously ill at his home here.

The bishop, who became widely known in 1924 when he was tried and convicted on a charge of heresy by a committee of the House of Bishops in Cleveland, suffered a renewed attack of heart disease with which he has been afflicted for years.

Campbell and Don, Kings of Speed, Ill

LONDON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Two of England's speedsters, Sir Malcolm Campbell, the automobile racer, and Kaye Don, the motorboat racer, have fallen victim to influenza.

Sir Malcolm, determined to delay no longer his attempt to break the automobile record, left his home in Surrey for Southampton to sail for New York today. At the time he had a temperature of 103. Don, who has been ill for several days, was reported better this morning.

U. S. WARSHIPS CRASH AT SEA

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 25.—(INS.)—The 310-foot United States destroyer Dahlgren carrying 105 officers and enlisted men was being convoyed back to San Diego at reduced speed today after being severely damaged in a collision with another destroyer, the Tarbell, according to a radiogram received by the Pennsylvania, flagship of the fleet.

Flagship officers said the two swift ships probably collided while executing maneuvers at high speed in heavy seas.

The Dahlgren's rudder jammed.

The destroyers left San Diego yesterday with the "Black," or attacking fleet for Hawaii. The Tarbell was presumed to have continued the voyage.

The collision occurred about 300 miles from San Diego.

Pinchot to Parade At Inauguration

HARRISBURG, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Gifford Pinchot, Independent Republican Governor of Pennsylvania, who took no active part in the last presidential campaign, will participate in the inaugural parade of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The Governor said he would be in the section of the parade for Governors, but would not ride a horse.

Plymouth to Punish 'Neckers' in Stocks

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Puritanical Plymouth today went back to the times of the Pilgrims, for a punishment for "petting and parking."

The Cold Spring Athletic Club, comprising 50 members ranging in age from 18 to 30, last night decreed that "neckers" would be necked—put in the stocks.

JAIL CROWD ENRAGES BANDITS

Gang Leader Denied Last Farewell To Sweetheart

They gave the Maug mob a big sendoff today—probably the last sendoff the boys ever will get.

One thousand or more curious crowded outside the County Jail to see John Maug, the murderer, and his pals, Edward Turpack and C. J. Moyer, taken to the Western Penitentiary, where they will remain for a long time.

The gangsters met the send-off with curses. They showered very interesting phrases, not of the parlor variety, at reporters and photographers, who were there to see them off.

DENIED LAST FAREWELL

There was another reason for Maug not to be in the best of humor. Just before he was escorted from the jail he asked Warden John McNeill if he could say goodby to his sweetheart, Gladys Jackson.

Gladys was in another cell, arrested as an accessory to Maug stickups.

The request was refused by the District Attorney's office.

Maug and Turpack yesterday were sentenced to 60 to 120 years and, on top of that, life imprisonment. Moyer escaped with 40 to 80 years. All pleaded guilty to the murder of Constable Vernon (Port) Moses and numerous holdups. Ten other alleged members of the mob, including three women, are still to be tried.

RUMORS OF GUN PLOT

Two dozen deputies and detectives held off the crowd that packed Ross street today. There have been rumors that the three would try to shoot their way to freedom.

Moyer and Turpack leave behind their wives, who were allowed to talk with the prisoners for a few minutes after they were sentenced yesterday.

Ray Welsh, Maug's brother-in-law, who was arrested yesterday, was held over today in Central Police Court when city detectives said they would file an embracery charge against him. The detectives said he tried to intimidate a witness against Maug.

Stock 'Juggling' To Be Revealed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Chairman Norbeck said today the Senate stock market investigating committee would present several important cases involving stock manipulation at this session of Congress in addition to its inquiry into the Insull utilities collapse.

The committee's new counsel, Ferdinand Pecora, appointed yesterday, has already set up headquarters in New York.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Twenty-two deaths were reported today as a cold wave enveloped France.

U. S. Mystery Man in London Held Roosevelt Envoy on Debt

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

LONDON, Jan. 25.—William C. Bullitt, Woodrow Wilson's representative on the special mission to Russia in 1919, has been in London several days on a secret mission in which he is declared to be acting as the "emissary" of President-elect Roosevelt.

Bullitt, it is learned, visited Chequers, Prime Minister MacDonald's official country residence, Saturday, and No. 10 Downing street, MacDonald's town residence, yesterday.

In the same authoritative quarter which declared Bullitt is the emissary of Roosevelt, it was declared the American told a prominent British statesman that Roosevelt favors a reduction of the British war debt by 80 per cent.

British officials are declared to have been advised from an important quarter that Bullitt's mission must not be made known to the Washington State Department. For this reason they are said to be puzzled as to his exact status.

In his London hotel last night Bullitt refused to be seen.

Roosevelt Family Feud Seen at End

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Intriguing news was being bandied about at this southern retreat of President-elect Roosevelt today.

Unofficial cabinet-makers and depression-solvers forgot the more important affairs of state to gossip about the following information:

Among those present on next month's fishing cruise aboard Vincent Astor's yacht will be Kermit Roosevelt, son of the famous "T. R." Observers said:

"A reconciliation; the end of the feud."

All of which goes back to the recent campaign, when the widow of the Republican Roosevelt was drafted in the campaign to fly down to Washington, spend the night at the White House and sit on the platform the night President Hoover was notified of his renomination, and Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., now holding Republican office as Governor General of the Philippines, later asserted the Democratic Roosevelt was "only a fifth cousin" and "a Maverick," in so many words.

SENATE TO VOTE PRIMARY REPEALER WITHOUT HEARING

FAVORS RETURN TO SYSTEM OF CONVENTIONS

City Manager Bills For Pittsburgh to Be Buried

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 25.—If the Republican organization does not suffer a change of heart, the Prince bill, repealing the direct primary law, will be rushed through the Senate without a hearing. The measure, sponsored by the Senator from Carlisle, was reported from the Senate Election Committee yesterday, but on motion of Senator Harris, Allegheny, was not taken up at today's brief session.

A fight is expected when the Senate reconvenes Monday night and the bill is expected to pass.

When the bill gets to the House the Elections Committee there is prepared to grant hearings, at which the merits of the primary as against the old system of nominations at conventions will be debated. Democratic approval of the bill in the House is expected to bring its approval, but in neither branch does the organization today believe it has the strength to pass the measure over the veto of Gov. Pinchot.

MRS. MILLER ACTIVE

Mrs. J. O. Miller, of Pittsburgh, active in affairs of the League of Women Voters, was at the capital this week in the interest of efforts to stop repeal of the primary. Senators Frank J. Harris and William D. Mansfield favor the primary. Senators James J. Coyne, Morris Einstein and Joseph G. Armstrong are for a return to the convention, while Senator Herman Brandt, who has made no declaration, is understood to lean toward defense of the primary.

The Pittsburgh city manager bill, supported by the Municipal Charter Committee, is scheduled to die in the Senate Elections Committee.

The committee, headed by Senator John Howell, of Lackawanna County, is fearful that this bill may be the precursor for similar legislation applying to cities of the first and third class.

OFFERED BY HARRIS

The Senate bill was introduced by Senator Harris, and provides that the manager, should Pittsburgh voters in a referendum adopt the system, may be selected from anywhere in the country.

In the House, where Representative John J. Kane has introduced a bill differing from that of Harris only in the provision that the manager must be a Pittsburgher, the elections committee is inclined to hold on to the bill as long as possible. Due to the presence of a substantial Democratic minority in the lower branch, an effort may be made to take the bill from committee if it is not brought to the floor.

Despite opposition to the bills on both sides of the Legislature, hearings may be scheduled so that proponents will be unable to claim they have been denied the right of appeal to the members.

Bastow Urges Drive For Manager Bill

Harry Bastow, president of the Allied Boards of Trade, said today the shelving of the Harris optional city manager bill by the Senate will result in a campaign of the Allied Boards to stimulate civic forces of Pittsburgh to forceful action towards enacting such a law at this session. Bastow is in Harrisburg in the interest of the legislation. His statement was contained in a telegram to board officers here.

The Allied Boards will meet tonight. Officials said Senator Frank J. Harris may attend and explain possibilities of enacting such a bill.

Doctor, 100, Advises Patients From Bed

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Dr. Merritt H. Eddy, America's oldest practicing physician, celebrated his one hundredth birthday today.

Since 1865 Dr. Eddy has cared for the wants of a host of patients in the surrounding countryside. Today, the feebleness of age upon him, he advises his patients from his bed.

Pinchots Entertain State Legislators

HARRISBURG, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Casting aside political differences, about 500 state legislators, department heads and their families and friends turned to gayety last night. They were guests of Gov. and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot at a reception in the executive mansion, opening the legislative social season.

PADEREWSKI, 72, ARRIVES IN U. S.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Ignace John Paderewski arrived on the Berengaria today for a concert tour that will take him as far west as Milwaukee and Chicago.

He discussed freely a wide range of subjects that included war debts, asserting:

"I favor payment of the debts, on principle, but I think they must be adjusted so as not to crush down the whole national organism of any country."

Paderewski was once prime minister of Poland, which defaulted its last debt payment to the United States.

He thought technocracy must have been a book he read several years ago. At any rate, he accorded it his conditional approval if it had anything to do with stopping the progress of the machine.

Paderewski is 72. He keeps his fingers flexible for the piano with constant practice and exercise. He was asked if he though there would be further invention in music. He was not a fortune teller, he said, and added:

"I belong to the past."

30-HOUR WEEK BILL BACKED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—The United States is producing $40,000,000,000 less income a year now than in 1929, Prof. George R. Bigge, economist of Brown University, told the Senate Judiciary Committee today while indorsing the proposed 30-hour week bill.

Bigge declared excessive competition was causing the discharge of thousands of men. He said:

"There is too much investment in a number of industries and the excessive competition under such conditions causes employers to do what they otherwise would not do—that is, to discharge thousands of men and thereby reduce the domestic market for their own and other products."

Senator Bailey's Rival Loses Fight

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The Senate Elections Committee agreed today to dismiss the contest brought by George M. Pritchard, Republican, against the election of Senator Bailey (Dem.), North Carolina.

TAX 'SNOOPING' VETO UPHELD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(Universal.)—The House, in sustaining President Hoover's veto of the $31,700,000 first deficiency bill, has put its foot down on congressional snooping into income tax refunds.

The measure carried a rider which would have prohibited the Treasury Department from making refunds over $20,000 without approval of the joint congressional committee on taxation.

The House action last night came a short time after the President, in a veto message, denounced the rider as unconstitutional, an invasion of executive rights and an injustice to American taxpayers.

The vote upholding the President was 158 to 193, or 41 votes short of the two-thirds required to override.

Voting was chiefly along party lines, but 14 Republicans voted to override the President, while two Democrats, Pettencil, of Indiana, and Reilly, of Wisconsin, voted to sustain the veto.

Chairman Byrns, of the Appropriations Committee, while asserting Congress had the right to prescribe how refunds shall be made, announced he would call a meeting shortly to revise the bill to meet the President's objections.

Drive on Sunday Store Sales Hinted

OIL CITY, Pa., Jan. 25.—Reports were current today that the next move of the Venango County Tolerance League may be against stores which sell cigars, confectionery or refreshments on Sunday. Theater men say they are waiting until the referendum in November for a decision about Sunday movies, and are not interested in the "counter attack" under the blue laws which is being directed at places keeping open on Sunday.

Biblical Text Guides Legion Defense Drive

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the American Legion, declared last night that the Legion, in urging strong national defense this year will be guided by a Biblical text:

"A strong man well armed keepeth his palace in peace."

SENATE DELAYS P. S. C. PROBE RESOLUTION

Move to Avoid Legal Snag Sends Issue To Committee

HARRISBURG, Jan. 25.—The McClure resolution authorizing continuance of the Public Service Commission investigation by a Senate committee was taken from the Senate calendar today and sent to the Senate Appropriations Committee to insure against legal objection to the $100,000 appropriation for the probe and anticipate any objection which might be raised to the form of the appropriation.

Recommittal of the resolution assures delay of approximately a week in the time the investigation can be reopened. If passed finally by the Senate today, the resolution could have been passed by the House next week. The present plan, to return the resolution to the Senate next Monday, will prevent final Senate approval before next Tuesday and make House action impossible before the week of February 6.

A bill to give Allegheny County seven members in the Senate instead of six, was introduced today by Senator Frank J. Harris, of Crafton.

It also provides a second Senator for Lackawanna County, which now has one. Philadelphia's representation is left unchanged, the two added places for Allegheny and Lackawanna being provided by shifts of the less populous rural counties into larger districts.

The measure would reduce the size of each of the present districts in Allegheny County and juggles the wards, boroughs or townships into new lines. It was referred to the Apportionment Committee, of which Senator James J. Coyne, Allegheny, is chairman.

The Senate passed on second reading today the Reed bill providing a 15 per cent salary cut for judges. The House advanced on first reading a bill to abolish constables' returns to the Quarter Sessions Courts of fourth class counties and another by Representative Steedle, Allegheny, imposing additional restrictions on the sale of poison.

After brief routine sessions, both houses adjourned until 9 p. m. Monday.

COMPANY TOWN PROBE ASKED

HARRISBURG, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Investigation of conditions in "company towns" was urged today by Representative Thomas J. Gallagher, Allegheny.

Gallagher, president of the Pennsylvania Flint Glass Workers, submitted a resolution to the House by which the General Assembly would authorize Gov. Pinchot to launch an inquiry.

The committee would be either a group of citizens or departmental experts.

The resolution states more than 1,000,000 citizens are residents of "company towns" and "do not enjoy all the privileges of self-government."

The committee would present its report to the Governor for transmission to the Legislature.

Senate Advances Vote Machine Bill

HARRISBURG, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The Reed bill providing for postponement of voting machine purchases by courts on petition of 25 voters today was reported for passage in the Senate and was passed on first reading.

Senator Reed, Dauphin, introduced a bill eliminating the compiling of statistics by the Department of Labor and Industry which are now compiled by the Department of Internal Affairs.

State Income Tax Urged for Schools

HARRISBURG, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Representative H. A. Surface, Snyder, today said he will introduce a bill in the House next week providing for a state income tax law.

The measure will propose a 2 per cent tax on incomes above $1,000 until a graduated plan can be worked out. The tax is to be used for school purposes.

BANKER TELLS OF LOANS

Ansley D. Smith, former secretary-treasurer of the closed Citizens' Trust Company of Bellevue, accused of embezzling $35,000 from the bank, today testified in Criminal Court that the board of directors of the bank knew of the loans made to him, the money being used to purchase the bank's stock.

The collateral and all the notes were approved by the directors, Smith testified. He further declared a report made by the state bank examiners showing his notes had been presented to the directors. He explained how checks had been drawn in the stock transactions.

The direct testimony of Smith was expected to end late today.

DRYS DELAYING BEER BILL

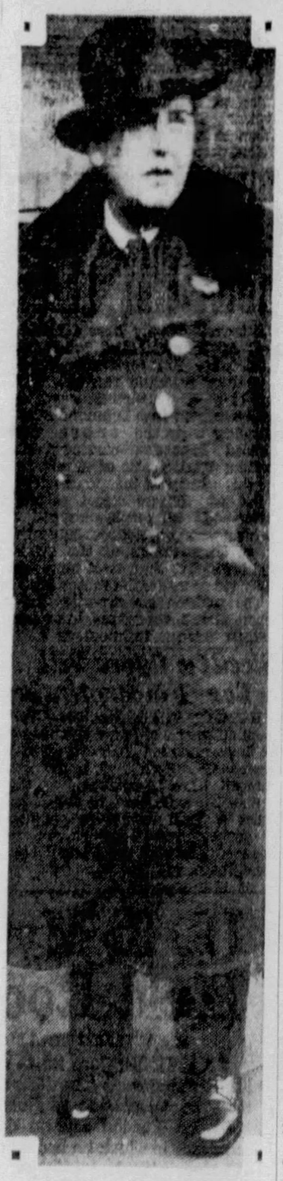
WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Dry leaders of the Senate were throwing up legislative barriers today in preparation for a battle to prevent the legalization of beer and wine at the present session of Congress.

Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, noted dry, served notice there would be serious opposition to the bill's passage in the Senate. Senator Smoot (Rep.), of Utah, another dry, announced there would be "no hurry" in calling the Senate Finance Committee into session to act upon the 3.05 beer and wine bill, just reported favorably by the Senate Judiciary Committee. Smoot said:

"Naturally there's no need to hurry in considering this bill. It hasn't a chance of passage at this session. Of course, if the Senate insists upon a report fro the Finance Committee, I'll have to call a session."

Senator Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, and other Democratic leaders indicated they would seek to force a vote on the beer bill at the present session. Harrison said he would not stand for any delay in the Finance Committee's consideration of the beer bill. If necessary, he added, he will move to discharge the committee, bringing the bill before the Senate.

McCormack Here



JOHN M'CORMACK

SENATE RELIEF PARLEY CALLED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—A definite federal relief program under which millions would be made available to states for extending a helping hand to the needy and unemployed may be drafted and approved by President-elect Roosevelt.

This became evident today when the Senate Manufactures Committee was summoned to meet tomorrow to consider combining various relief proposals into one program.

Chairman La Follette (Rep.), of Wisconsin, and Senator Cutting (Rep.), of New Mexico, who discussed the relief question with Mr. Roosevelt in Warm Springs last week-end, called the committee meeting for this purpose.

U. S. Feeling Effects Of Gold Standard Debacle

for the American people it is cheap politics. It seems a man must go to a naval conference to become broadminded."

The Democratic leader, who represented the United States at the London naval conference, tried several times to interrupt the shouting Republican.

DEMOCRAT SWAMPED

Finally the Democratic Senator gave up and sat down, saying he would speak later in his "own time."

He gained the floor a few minutes later to call a demand by Robinson, of Indiana, that President-elect Roosevelt deny or affirm reports that an emissary of his was negotiating for an 80 per cent slash in the British debt "the cheapest politics ever played in the United States Senate."

The Democratic leader asserted "This is not argument, but inflammatory, declamatory denunciation."

The Democratic chieftain said:

"His statement is unjust and not calculated to inspire confidence in the Senate insofar as he attempts to reflect the view of the Senate."

Robinson, of Indiana, had said:

"There is no doubt in the world that these invitations have only one thing in mind—that's to reduce the debt and Congress had definitely declared there shall be no reductions.

"What shadow of right has the President-elect to set aside even before his inauguration, a resolution of Congress and undo all that Congress has said shall not be undone?"

Robinson then cited the resolution adopted by Congress when the Hoover moratorium was ratified, saying:

"It is expressly declared to be against the policy of Congress that any of the indebtedness of foreign nations should be in any manner canceled or reduced."

EFFORT TO DISCREDIT

Declaring the Indianan was endeavoring to "discredit" the incoming President in the eyes of the American people, the Arkansas Senator said:

"Mr. Roosevelt is coming into under very grave difficulties. We all realize that in order to restore confidence it is necessary for those in authority to speak truthfully and to speak with information.

"Where any Senator undertakes to inflame prejudice in the minds of the people in giving credence to reports not authenticated he is not performing a patriotic service and so far as I am concerned he does not reflect the true spirit of the American people."

Immediately afterward, Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, expressed resentment over British Chancellor Chamberlain's statement on debts.

The Californian said he had no objection to discussing debts with Great Britain, but resented dark statements "that somebody is going to offer 10 per cent or 5 per cent to the United States."

He asserted Chamberlain's statement that whatever is done at the debt meeting with Mr. Roosevelt shall be a "final settlement" and not involve interruption of the agreement to cut German reparations was an example of the British "superiority complex."

PARLEY IN PARIS

PARIS, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—United States Ambassador Edge talked with Premier Paul-Boncour for half an hour today about the debts issue, but the Premier gave no indication about what he intended to do about it. The conversation was described as a "sounding out" talk.

Camps for Youths Urged by Glassford

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Establishment of a national system of rural camps to house homeless unmarried youths was urged today by Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, former superintendent of Washington (D. C.) police, at Senate hearings on the Cutting bill for a $15,000,000 fund to aid destitute transients.

Glassford, who became a national figure by his temperate handling of the bonus marchers here last summer, detailed the results of an extensive first-hand investigation of the transient problem.

Ubangi 'Flop' in Circus, Says Mix Witness

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—An analogy between the earning power of Tom Mix, with his hair-raising wild western exploits, and "duck-billed Ubangi savages" has enlivened the trial of the $342,000 damage suit brought against the actor by Zack T. Miller, of Oklahoma.

Frank A. Cook, a defense witness, who said he worked 24 years for circuses, told that he imported a "saucer-mouthed savage from a tribe in the African wilds who was a flop as a draw, despite the novelty." The savage, Cook said, didn't earn his $5,560 weekly pay.

Defense testimony brought in the names of many stage, screen, radio and sawdust celebrities as counsel for Mix sought to show that the valuation of $10,000 weekly placed by Miller on the cowboy's circus work was too high. Miller is suing for damages on the ground that his 101 Ranch show lost heavily as the result of Mix's failure to fulfill a contract.

Charles H. English, Miller's attorney, displayed a picture of a "savage" and asked Cook if he didn't think Mix was handsomer than the subject of the photograph. John Kelly, counsel for Mix, interposed:

"That's not a man, that's a woman."

Continuing his testimony, Cook said Ringling's circus in 1930 turned down offers of Hoot Gibson and Ken Maynard, film cowboys, to appear at $2,500 and $2,000 a week, respectively.

John McCormack Here, Ignores Irish Election

John McCormack, noted Irish tenor, arriving in Pittsburgh today, professed scant interest in the Irish elections. In fact, he expressed scant interest in anything except his breakfast.

Asked if he had anything to say concerning the elections in his native land, he said tersely:

"Why ask me about the elections in Ireland? I am an American citizen and am a lot more interested in our presidential elections."

McCormack was naturalized several years ago.

John, his billowing coat drawn tightly in the middle and carrying an extremely Gaelic stick, descended swiftly from the train in the Pennsylvania Station and hurried through the station. His gnarled stick pounded along ahead of him, as if nosing out his meal. His accompanist, Edwin Schneider, was hard put to keep up with the galloping Irishman.

McCormack at first denied his identity, with a short jerk of his head and a most emphatic tap of his cane. His pianist, however, with admirable truthfulness, admitted that his friend was the famous John McCormack, as though either the singer's denial or the accompanist's acknowledgment was needed to identify him.

John McCormack will sing tomorrow night at the Syria Mosque, the first time he has been in Pittsburgh for five years.

Matrons Told Freedom Just Begins at 45

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The middle-aged married woman has her place in the sun, and if she has prepared herself for it, her 45th birthday is just another graduation, this time from the role of Mrs. Housewife. These matrons need not take a back seat.

That comes from the president of the largest organization of women in the world, Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Brocton, Mass., and Washington, head of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. She said:

"A woman when she is approximately 45 is reaching the age of emancipation. Her family is almost reared and she has more leisure. Her emotional life is more stable. She has had experience and should have more wisdom and tolerance.

"She has ahead of her some of the best years of her life, if she has prepared for it, studied, trained herself mentally and kept physically fit. It is not right for a middle-aged woman sorrowfully to resign herself to a lounge seat in a hotel apartment or to a cozy corner in a private home, leaving activities to younger women.

"She is emerging into an era of greater personal freedom. She has time to take a greater interest in clubs, community welfare and politics."

PLAYBOY FREED OF COMPLICITY IN JUDD TRUNK MURDERS

COMMUTATION FOR 'TIGRESS' INDICATED

Halloran Charges Held Inconsistent; Ruth To Get Hearing

International News Service.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 25.—J. J. (Happy Jack) Halloran, rich Phoenix lumberman, today was freed of charges that he acted as accessory to Winnie Ruth Judd, "trunk murderess."

Court was convened unexpectedly early, and only a handful of spectators were present. Mrs. Halloran stood at her husband's side as the preliminary hearing was brought to a close.

Judge J. C. Niles, in handing down his decision, foreshadowed commutation of the death sentence imposed on Mrs. Judd when he observed that her testimony pointed to the belief that she killed Agnes Anne Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson in self-defense.

Halloran's attorneys had stressed this point as proving that no crime was committed, and that therefore Halloran could not be held as an accessory.

KISSED BY WIFE

Halloran was affectionately kissed by his wife when the judge pronounced him a free man.

Judge Niles, in his opinion, said:

"The state's case was inconsistent. I tried to reconcile the evidence presented. The theory of self-defense was borne out by the witness, Mrs. Judd.

"Corroboration was most unsatisfactory. In view of the circumstances, if I should bind the defendant, Halloran, over to Superior Court, it would be an abuse.

"Trial in Superior Court would be an idle gesture and an expense to the taxpayers of this county.

"Therefore, in view of the evidence in connection with the motion, the order of the court is that the complainant is dismissed, and the defendant discharged."

HALLORAN ELATED

Halloran said:

"I am very pleased with the result of this case.

"This unfortunate happening occurred 15 months ago. The evidence has shown I was not connected with the tragedy, nor with any circumstances connected with it.

"I want to make it clear I have no bitterness whatsoever against Winnie Ruth Judd, or any official of the county.

"When the charge was presented to the grand jury I was amazed. I had continuous faith and confidence that the truth would prevail. I have suffered and so has my family, those near and dear to me. I'm glad it's over."

Mrs. Judd, taken here from her cell in the state prison at Florence, had hysterically testified that Halloran knew of the murders, and that he aided her in disposing of the bodies, which were dismembered and sent in trunks from Phoenix to Los Angeles.

Mrs. Judd probably will be given a hearing late next week on her plea for pardon or commutation. Frank O. Smith, Halloran's lawyer, said:

"The true story of the slayings has not yet been told. It probably will be made known in due time."

Mrs. O.H.P. Belmont Near Death in Paris

PARIS, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, leader of New York society for many years and resident of France since 1924, was in a critical condition today at her residence here. She was 80 last week.

Her daughter, Mrs. Jacques Balsan, the former Consuelo Vanderbilt, is with her. W. K. Vanderbilt and Harold Vanderbilt, her sons, are in America. Mrs. Belmont suffered a paralytic stroke last spring.

Creator of 'Jiggs' To Visit in East

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—(Universal.) — George McManus, famous cartoonist and creator of "Bringing Up Father," which appears in the Hearst newspapers, left Los Angeles last night for a two months' pleasure trip to the East. At the station, he was given a hearty farewell by Jimmy Murphy, cartoonist-creator of another famous comic feature, "Toots and Casper," and Mrs. Murphy.

He Saw His Parents Die

NICK KORNOWSKI . . . . HE TELLS OF MURDER AND SUICIDE

Nick, only 5, the only witness to tell of how his father shot and killed his mother in their home near New Kensington, then killed himself after Nick had refused to pull the trigger of the shotgun for him. The father used his toe. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

SON SEES MAN KILL WIFE, SELF

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Jan. 25.—Five-year-old Nick Kornowski today told police how he had seen his father kill his mother, then take his own life.

In the squalor of their poverty-stricken farmhouse on the Seventh street road, a few miles out of New Kensington, the father had taken his wife's life and then asked his son to shoot him.

Nick was bewildered, but he refused.

Theodore Kornowski, 49, and his wife Anna, 42, quarreled often, according to neighbors. Yesterday in their kitchen he fired at her with a shotgun. She fell dead, in her hand a broom with which she had tried to defend herself.

Then Kornowski went to his bedroom, held the shotgun barrel against his heart and asked his son to pull the trigger.

When the child refused, the father removed shoe and sock and snapped the trigger with a toe.

There are six children in the family. Nick is the youngest.

Divorced, Mother Asks Right to See Ill Girls

A mother sought a court order and a Health Department permit today to see her two small daughters, who are confined to their father's home with scarlet fever.

Mrs. Regina Parker, of Cambridge, O., appeared before Judge Elder W. Marshall in Common Pleas Court and said her husband, Irwin M. Parker, of 317 Wilcox street, Carnegie, from whom she is divorced, had denied her permission to see Patricia, 10, and Mary, 6, of whom he has custody. She said, although there is scarlet fever in the household, Board of Health officials told her she might enter.

Judge Marshall scored Parker for not informing Mrs. Parker the children were ill and sparing her the trip from Cambridge. He told Mrs. Parker she could see the children if she obtained written permission from the Board of Health.

TECHNOCRACY'S 'FATHER' IRATE

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Howard Scott, the "father" of technocracy, does not like interviewers, he hates cameramen and he told a group of them as much in no uncertain words today when he arrived to lecture at Orchestra Hall.

The tall, morose-looking exponent of a new economic deal was not exactly in a very good mood when he got off the train. A battery of cameramen were patiently waiting to let his public see what he looked like.

He swung around and shielded his face, but the cameramen snapped him anyway. Reporters asked him why Columbia University had disagreed with him and started a separate investigation of technocracy.

And the dean of the technocrats rushed out of La Salle Street Station and went into hiding at the exclusive Drake Hotel with this final blast:

"The hell with all of this. Let me alone."

Weather Conditions.

The low pressure areas that covered the western states yesterday morning developed eastward and concentrated into a well defined center over Kentucky. Lowest barometer reported is 29.44 inches, at Louisville. The disturbance is causing cloudy weather over most of the country east of the Mississippi River and light to moderately heavy rainfall over the Gulf states and northward over the Ohio Valley states to the lake region. Another low appears in the Far Northwest. High pressure covers the North Atlantic, Manitoba and Western Ontario and a ridge of high extends southward over the plains states to another center over Mexico. There was a marked drop in temperature over the plains states, but thehe is no zero weather except in North Dakota and northward.

LEWIS MAY STIR FURORE WITH NEW NOVEL

'Bares Heart and Mind' Of Modern Woman, Goes Into Hiding

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.) — Furious bubbles should be foaming from the literary pot by nightfall—Sinclair Lewis' new book is out today.

Out in a large way, too. It is published simultaneously in 16 countries and 13 languages, including the Polish. Such extensive and instantaneous publication dwells not in the memory of even the oldest publisher's representative.

"Ann Vickers" is what he calls it—this red-headed author who put the word Babbitt into the mouths of millions. It bares the heart and mind of a modern woman.

It takes her through school, suffrage work, settlement house labors, study of prison conditions, marriage to a social worker who turned out to be "a perpetual course of bedtime stories," and a love affair with a crooked judge.

Lewis, always burning with editorial zeal, has opinions on such subjects as crime, punishment and whether a woman has a right not to have an unwanted baby. He expresses them in this book.

Having written "Ann Vickers," his first novel since he won the Nobel prize for literature, Lewis has gone into hibernation in Austria.

JAPAN TO WARN LEAGUE

TOKIO, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—The Japanese government intends to warn the League of Nations that acceptance by the assembly of a report condemning this country's course of action in Manchuria will result in Japanese withdrawal from the League, it was learned on reliable authority today.

Japanese withdrawal from Geneva, frequently rumored during the last few months, neared reality when Foreign Minister Uchida informed the cabinet that the League's Sino-Japanese Committee of Nineteen had abandoned its efforts to conciliate the Manchurian dispute.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Unless all signs and portents fail, Japan will celebrate the Chinese new year by launching her long-expected drive to annex the province of Jehol to Manchukuo.

Couriers arriving here from the battle area today disclosed to International News Service that all was in readiness for a major offensive.

The Chinese new year celebration starts tomorrow and will last for several days.

Operation Removes Coin Gulped by Boy

LANCASTER, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Four-year-old Robert Gabriel's nickel today again is available for an ice cream cone, candy or what not.

Robert swallowed the coin yesterday. An X-ray revealed it lodged in his esophagus. Hospital surgeons performed a delicate operation to restore the coin to circulation.

Shot Four Times By Enraged Husband

JEAN GAYL . . . . HE FIRED, SHE FELL, HE PUMPED THREE BULLETS INTO HER BODY

Miss Gayl, showgirl and billiard instructor who recently refereed some of the matches in which Babe Didrikson played, shot down in a crowded New York hotel dining room by her husband, Rush J. MacDonald, captured by a waiter as he fled with his hat, smoking pistol.

BROWN KILLING LAID TO 'GAG'

PALMYRA, N. J., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—A new note was injected today into the search for a solution of the mysterious death of Bradway Brown, young social registerite, by investigators who indicated he may have been slain by supposed friends who wanted to seal his lips. It is also possible, detectives asserted, that Brown wounded one of his assailants.

Police Chief Edward Williams, of Riverton, said:

"Find the companion or companions who drove home with Brad Brown that night and you will have the key to the mystery."

Ellis Parker, chief of county detectives, said:

"Four shots were fired from the weapon found at Brown's side. Brown was shot twice and a third bullet was found in the speedboat in the garage. The fourth shot probably hit one of his slayers. This is the only way we can account for its disappearance."

Chief of Police Morris Beck, of Palmyra, expressed the conviction Brown was slain by someone who wanted to "keep his mouth shut." He refused to say why he thinks so.

The Principals' Club of Pittsburgh has written to the Board of Education commending the board for its action on the budget and for its stand in retaining high standards of education in Pittsburgh schools.

Actor, Testifying Wife Threw Soup, Wins Divorce

When a wife throws soup in her husband's face, it constitutes grounds for divorce, in the opinion of Judge Elder W. Marshall, who granted one to Thomas R. McFarland, of 2325 Fifth avenue, from Charlotte McFarland, of 1218 Buena Vista street.

McFarland, a vaudeville actor, said his wife did not like to travel, and was jealous of the girls in his company.

He said she had a habit of throwing things and once when he told her he did not like soup and would not eat it, she threw a plate of it at him.

SUSPECT TELLS OF KILLING

Richard Windbush, 30, a Negro, today admitted to Detective Inspector Frank Boyd and Cleveland detectives that he shot and killed a physician and wounded a patrolman in a gun battle in Cleveland, Boyd announced.

After Windbush was arrested here several days ago for the alleged theft of three dresses from a store, descriptions were sent to other city police for identification.

Detective Sergt. Patrick McNeeley and Detective Bernard McNichols, of Cleveland, grilled Windbush here this morning. They said he admitted doing the shooting while attempting to hold up a Cleveland drug store September 16, 1929.

'POISON DEATH' DEFENSE OPENS

Attorney Louis Little, by cross-examination today, began the defense of Mrs. Mary Chalfa and Mrs. Anna Allas, both of Munhall, charged with the murder of Mrs. Allas' stepson, Steve, 12, who, the state contends, was poisoned.

Little took up the cross-examination of Dr. J. W. McMeans, coroner's physician, and had him read from scientific journals articles on tin salts poisoning. McMeans read articles concerning the poisoning of a boy by eating canned cherries, and also of a woman being poisoned by wearing silk stockings which had been treated with tin salts.

Half of the 30 state witnesses remain to be heard and the defense has 40 witnesses to call.

Assistant District Attorney John Haggerty made a surprise move at the close of yesterday's session when he asked the court to revoke the women's bonds on the grounds that he intended to prove them guilty of first degree murder. They spent the night in jail.

Steve's sister, Mrs. Mary Allas Olshouski, testified that the two defendants gave her brother "holy water" just before he died, that he complained of pains, and:

"When he drank that water, that was the last of him."

KREUGER DEATH HOAX DENIED IN COURT

Lawyer Gives Evidence That Three Viewed Match King's Body

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Evidence that three persons, one of them a close associate of Ivar Kreuger, saw the body of the Swedish match king immediately after he committed suicide in Paris, was presented today at a hearing before Federal Referee Oscar W. Ehrrhorn.

The evidence, presented by James N. Rosenberg, counsel for the trustee in bankruptcy for International Match Corporation, was presented in answer to persistent rumors that Kreuger is still alive and that a wax dummy was sent to stockholm for burial.

OTHERS NAMED

Rosenberg produced a transcript of his examination in Stockholm of Krister Littorin, Kreuger's associate and a member of the executive committee of Kreuger & Toll, in which Littorin disclosed the circumstances of Kreuger's last day in Paris.

Littorin said he saw Kreuger dead upon the bed in his apartment and that the match king apparently had shot himself with a revolver held in his left hand, although he was right-handed.

The others who saw the body, he said, were Miss Bokman, Kreuger's secretary, and Mmle. Jeannette, his housekeeper.

LAST DAY TOLD

Littorin, whose examination was conducted last September, said he spent 45 minutes with Kreuger the morning of the day he killed himself. In reply too a question the transcript showed he said:

"He was absolutely quiet. He talked about business things. He was not nervous a bit, and then, as I said, I left him at a quarter past 10. I said, 'Now remember, Ivar, we are having a meeting at 11 o'clock at the Hotel du Rhin.' He looked at his watch and said 'I may be 10 minutes late.' That was the last time I saw him alive."

Littorin said they waited at the meeting until noon, telephoned Kreuger's apartment and were told he was out.

"So we waited until [illegible] shortly before 1, and then said 'I'm going over to his apartment and see if he has gone to sleep or what has happened.' took Miss Bokman, his secretary, along and when we came there his housekeeper, Mlle. Jeannette, opened the door. I said, 'Is Mr. Kreuger in?' She said, 'Yes, but he's sound asleep. He's sleeping like anything because I opened the apartment door and called to him, and the telephone has been ringing and he doesn't answer it.' I went in. The blinds of his room were drawn. I opened the blinds and there he was on nthe bed with a pistol shot in his heart. He was lying on his back absolutely straight, with a revolver on the bed beside him by his left hand."

Roosevelt School Girls Barred at Risque Trial

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(Universal.)—Seven girl students from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's Todhunter School caused surprise yesterday by appearing in the courtroom where the somewhat risque details of the domestic life of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Richard were being bared, in their court fight over custody of their two children. The public had been barred from the courtroom.

The girls, accompanied by a teacher, had hardly seated themselves when Supreme Court Justice Cotillo interrupted the testimony to announce:

"There are some young girls here from the Todhunter School. If they want to familiarize themselves with courts and governments, this is not the kind of a case for them to hear, and I will ask them to leave.

Somewhat flustered, the girls departed.

Mrs. Roosevelt explained last night that she had no knowledge of the character of the case before Justice Cotillo, adding:

"These seven girls are taking postgraduate courses at Todhunter and are just now studying the administration of state government. It is usual to follow their lectures by field studies. I know nothing about the proceeding that was on when they paid this visit to the courthouse."

Edith Richard, one of the two children for whose custody the parents are fighting, is a student at the Todhunter School.

UR GE CLEMENCY FOR FUGITIVE

DENVER, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Executive clemency for Glenn Smeeman, prosperous Cleveland businessman and Colorado convict, was recommended by state prison officials soon after Smeeman's attorney announced the Ohio man's comely young wife had attempted suicide.

After a conference yesterday between Gov. Edwin C. Johnson, Roy Best, warden of the state penitentiary; Ralph Wann, secretary of the Colorado Board of Corrections, and Thomas A. Duke, president of the board, the recommendation was made to the Governor.

The report said:

"We have examined evidence in the Glenn Smeeman case and feel he is entitled to your consideration.

"In recommending executive clemency for Smeeman, we feel from the viewpoint of prison morale that many of the life termers whose records are clear and who have served 10 years or more are even more entitled to this same executive clemency."

FILE 40 MILLION INSULL SUIT

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—To the maze of litigation involving the enterprises of Samuel Insull, one-time utilities czar, had been added today a $40,000,000 suit against the entire directorate of Insull Utilities Investment, Inc., $500,000,000 holding company, charging wrongful diversion of funds.

Suit was filed in Federal Court in behalf of approximately 20,000 holders of the trust's debentures.

Upon filing of the suit, subpenas were issued against the defendants—Samuel Insull, his brother, Martin, Samuel Insull, Jr., and 12 other directors.

Samuel Insull is in Athens, Greece, where he has resisted attempts at extradition, and his brother, Martin, is in Canada, where similar proceedings are pending.

Dr. W. P. Graves Dies; Harvard Surgeon

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Dr. William Philips Graves, 63, professor of gynecology at Harvard Medical School since 1911 and one of America's leading surgeons, died today.

Parole Wealthy Youth Serving Life Term

JACKSON, Mich., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Arthur Rich, former Battle Creek (Mich.) youth, sentenced in 1926 to life imprisonment for assaulting Louise King, Battle Creek co-ed, today was paroled by Gov. William A. Comstock, on condition that he leave Michigan.

Rich, according to Alfred Debo, commissioner of pardons and paroles, will be released the first of next week and will go at once to Los Angeles, Cal., to make his home.

Sentenced in March, 1926, after a sensational trial, at which charges of the assault were related by Miss King, Rich's family many times sought to have his sentence reduced. Finally in 1930, Fred W. Green, then Governor, commuted his term to not less than 10 nor more than 20 years. Rich's sentence would have expired in 1936.

Rich's father, George R. Rich, at the time of the trial, was a well-to-do manufacturer of automobile parts. He has moved since to Los Angeles. Miss King formerly lived in Pittsburgh, where her father was an assistant United States District Attorney. She was awarded a verdict of $50,000 in a civil suit against the Rich family, and the case was settled by payment of half the sum.

Warden Harry L. Jackson, of Michigan State Prison, said Rich's conduct had been exemplary since his commitment. Since 1926 he has been an orderly in the prison hospital.

CAPONE TURNS TO RELIGION IN PRISON

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the last of a series of stories giving intimate glimpses of Al Capone's life behind the walls of Atlanta prison, where he is serving 11 years for income tax frauds. He has been closely guarded against all publicity since his incarceration.

The author of these stories is ex-Convict No. 35,503, who worked in the prison shoe shop with the gang leader, and who has just completed a sentence of 28 months for impersonating a Federal officer.

By EX-CONVICT 35,503

(As told to International News Service.)

(Copyright, 1933, International News Service, Inc.)

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 25.—In his loneliness and unhappiness in the big Atlanta prison Al Capone has at last turned to religion for some solace as the days pass.

One of his first callers when he was brought to the prison was the Catholic chaplain, and he left with the boss racketeer a Bible. Al started reading it, and now almost every night before he retires he prays—for the first time in many years.

And every Sunday morning finds him in church. There is no compulsory chapel in the prison, so he wouldn't have to go if he did not want to.

PRISON RELIGION

Dinty Colbeck, St. Louis gangster, who is one of his cell-mates, is secretary to the Catholic chaplain, and it was he who is supposed to have prevailed on Al to resume the faith of his childhood.

I don't mean to say that Capone has "got religion" or that he has "reformed," for he still can swear as luridly as the next one, and does when the "razzing" gets a bit too uncomfortable. And he still is interested in his "business" in Chicago, for he sees visitors constantly who come down from Chicago to consult with him, and his mail is by far the heaviest of any of the prison inmates.

What solace, if any, he extracts from his new-found religion he keeps to himself. He doesn't talk about it.

The shooting of Frank ("Enforcer") Nitti in Chicago recently at the hands of the police was a hard blow to Capone. Nitti had been Al's "enforcer" in what he now refers to as "the good old days" when he was supreme in Chicago racketeering.

Capone learned of the shooting of his former lieutenant through the afternoon newspapers which reach the prison between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon. On the day the Chicago police shot Nitti, Al was in the big cell that he occupies with seven other prisoners.

Glaring headlines conveyed to him "Capone Lieutenant Shot Down by Chicago Police."

WEEPS FOR NITTI

Tears welled up in his eyes, for at the time it appeared Nitti's wound would be fatal.

"Poor Frank. He sure was a swell guy. Why, he wouldn't harm anybody. And they shot him in the back! They'll pay for this. No copper is going to shoot one of my friends and get away with it. That copper will get his at the proper time."

For days, Capone talked about the shooting of his ally. He read all that was available in the Atlanta newspapers about it, and waited impatiently for the arrival of the Chicago papers with their more complete details. He was immensely relieved that Nitti's wounds did not prove fatal.

Al pretends to dislike publicity concerning himself. He says:

"They blame me for everything. These newspapermen have ice water in their veins."

But he searches the Chicago papers thoroughly for mention of himself and seldom fails to "get a kick" out of seeing his name in print. He regales his cellmates with stories of his prowess "in the good old days" and his long struggle to the topmost pinnacle of gangdom.

LONG TERM AHEAD

Little more than six months of Capone's sentence have passed. But he already feels he has been here for years. The sudden transition from wealth and freedom and power to the dingy, drab confinement of the prison has been a bitter pill for him, notwithstanding he has a good many special privileges that others envy.

He can buy things from the commissary, he does very little work, he reads, plays tennis, sees his visitors and attends to a heavy mail, but it is all so different from Chicago and "the good old days."

And he can't keep from complaining, and always trying to obtain this or that added concession that would tend to make life behind the big walls more endurable.

When I left he was reading "Twenty Thousand Years in Sing Sing," by Warden Lewis E. Lawes.

Al hasn't got 20,000 years to do, but he still has 10 ahead of him, with a possibility of some time off for good behavior. And they will be hard years for one of his temperament and disposition—unless he makes more friends in the future than he has in the six months already behind him.

CAPONE SISTER FIRED UPON

White, named as Public Enemy No. 2, were in deep conference.

The attack on Capone's sister's party is believed to have been intended for Diamond, who played an important role in the former underworld czar's operations here. The presence of Mrs. Maritote with her baby, may have served to save Diamond's life, for as the report of the first four shots rang out, those in the passing car shouted:

"Shut up or we'll fill you full of holes!"

Numerous theories were advanced for the attempted slayings. In some quarters it was felt the attacks may have been merely reprisals for previous shootings and in others that they were in retaliation for the ride murder of Ted Newberry. Newberry was found shot to death not long ago near Michigan City, Ind.

YOUTH QUIZZED IN PARK DEATH

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Told by neighbors that a young man left his mother's home only after dark, police today held him for questioning in the murder of 19-year-old Rose McCloskey in Fairmount Park January 5.

Detectives said they have developed nothing to link the man, Earl Morris, 27, with the killing, but that they would hold him for further questioning on a charge of suspicion.

Dennis Boyle, 30, Miss McCloskey's escort, was severely beaten at the time she was slain.

William Farnum Files as Bankrupt

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—William Farnum, former motion picture actor, today had filed a petition in bankruptcy, listing his liabilities at $45,438.28 and assets of $500 in clothing.

Farnum, who won fame in the fight scene of "The Spoilers" years ago, listed among creditors Thomas Meighan, with a claim of $5,500.

Scott, Play Writer, Marries Actress

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The marriage of Laura Straub, who plays a leading part in "Another Language," road show now in San Francisco, and Allan Scott, author of the New York production, "Good Bye Again," was announced here yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Straub, of Berkeley, parents of the bride.

Brookline Boy Hopes To Earn Enough For Schooling

As a Sun-Telegraph carrier boy Andrew Mehaffey has two fixed purposes. One is to give perfect service to his customers, the other to earn enough money to maintain himself while he attends manual training school with the determination of making something of his future.

"Andy" was the winner in the recent carrier boy drive for the new Sun-Telegraph home delivery orders in the Brookline district. It was in this drive that Louis L. Kaufman, Sun-Telegraph Globe Trotter, co-operated. "Andy" secured 22 new customers in a single week and on the 6:30 p. m. Globe Trotter WCAE broadcast tomorrow this enterprising youngster will tell how he put it over.

"Andy" is 17 years old and lives with his parents at 1322 Ormond street. He has been a newspaper route boy for five years in the Brookline and Hazelwood districts and is proud of his success in this contest.

Lent Cash to Read, Claire Windsor Says

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Investigating the stock-selling activities of Alfred C. Read, Jr., authorities were told yesterday by Claire Windsor, screen actress, that she invested $5,000 with him and made him ah additional loan of $5,000.

Miss Windsor, whose name was linked with that of Read in a marital tangle last year, told investigators her money was invested in the promotion of a secret chemical process.

Dry Forces Set Wilkinsburg Rally

The thirteenth anniversary of the Eighteenth Amendment will be celebrated by dry forces of Wilkinsburg and vicinity at a mass meeting Sunday sponsored by the Council of Churches of the district. The meeting is scheduled for 3 p. m. in the South Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church.

United States Attorney Louis E. Graham and Congressman Clyde Kelly will speak.

Dye Saves 4 More From Poison Death

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The initial application in a Los Angeles Hospital of methylene blue, a chemical used to treat monoxide gas poisoning, had aided today in saving the lives of four persons.

Police surgeons said that in its first test the treatment had been fully effective in two cases, but that in two others blood transfusions might be necessary to restore normal health.

Grant Capone Aide U.S. Tax Abatement

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(Universal)—Frank Nitti, "the enforcer" of the Al Capone gang of Chicago, yesterday was granted an "abatement" of $285,723 in income taxes by the Internal Revenue Bureau. It was only a bookkeeping transaction, however, and he got no cash.

The "abatement" was for overassessment for the years 1925 to 1928. It was for non-payment of federal taxes for the time that Nitti was sentenced to Leavenworth for 18 months and fined $10,000.

WOMEN AT AUTO SHOW DEMAND DRIVING EASE

Women have become motor-wise and now rank a car's appearance, color and upholstering secondary to driving comfort, according to the concensus of sales representatives at the annual Pittsburgh Automobile Show being held this week in the Hotel William Penn.

Convenience of driving operations seems uppermost in the minds of most women visitors inspecting the 1933 models in the Chatterbox and Exhibit Hall. Only a few salesmen at the show hold to the belief that bright colors enhancing the graceful new streamlines plus the shade and quality of upholstery still predominate in making the choice of the family car.

The other representatives say their feminine prospects now look for ease in the steering operation and appreciate a brake that works with a light touch. The convenience of watching the dash dials has become a factor. Few women ask about motors, but comfort has become a main requisite.

The industry's advance in engineering accomplishments has made this factor difficult to decide. In a wide variety price range with many more offering in the low cost field, the show visitors find many operations have become automatic. Every car has features for a new driving comfort.

The show continues through Saturday with doors open from 11 a. m. until 11:30 p. m. A free exhibit of automotive accessories, parts and equipment, as well as radios and electric refrigerators, occupies the lobby and corridors leading to the Chatterbox entrance.

Samson Firm Holds Dealers' Meeting

The Samson Motor Company conducted a dealers' meeting and luncheon at the Schenley Hotel at noon yesterday. Harry G. Samson, president, presided. Speakers were C. L. Jacobson, director of sales; Zoe Dunlap, promoting manager, and H. R. Bish, Pittsburgh regional zone manager, all of the Chrysler Corporation.

A motion picture entitled "Hell Drivers," starring Barney Oldfield and Billy Arnold, was shown. This picture is shown every afternoon and evening at the special Chrysler-Plymouth Salon in the show rooms of the Samson Motor Company at Baum boulevard and Melwood street, where interesting and novel displays are arranged in connection with the free exhibit of 1933 Chrysler and Plymouth motor cars.

SOCIETY DEATH VERDICT 'OPEN'

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—An open verdict was returned by a Coroner's jury which investigated the fatal shooting of John Hellyer Silverthorne, 28, member of a socially prominent family, at his home.

Discrediting the suicide theory, members of the family said Silverthorne had not been mentally depressed and had no financial difficulties.

George M. Silverthorne, a brother, said the victim had a "mania" for revolvers and related an incident of how a gun he had been handling was accidentally discharged.

DIVORCE GIVEN EX-TEACHER

Judge Harry H. Rowand has granted Mrs. Mary M. Lynn, 42, of Arlington avenue, McKeesport, $70 a month alimony in awarding her a limited decree of divorce in her suit against Ewing K. Lynn.

Mrs. Lynn, a former school teacher, testified her husband, a draftsman for the Westinghouse Air Brake Company, told her he regretted having married her. In one of their quarrels, she said, he pushed her and her head struck a stove.

Mrs. Lynn did not apply for an absolute divorce. Her husband contested the action.

Roxy Quits Hospital Plans to Go South

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—S. L. Rothafel (Roxy), director of the Radio City theaters, has returned to his home after an operation for an abdominal ailment at the Post-graduate Hospital.

Rothafel went to the hospital soon after the opening of the Radio City music hall. He said he would go "South somewhere for a few weeks."

Bride Throws Acid In Husband's Face

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. Josephine De Antonis, 22, a bride of two months, was held in bail today on a charge of throwing acid in the face of her husband, William, 31.

Police said the bridegroom told them as he lay on a hospital cot:

"I thought she was going to kiss me."

PRAGUE PROBES ENVOY'S DEATH

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Police continued their investigation today of the death of Raymond Davis, United States consul, who died last night when he jumped or fell from a second floor stair landing to the lobby of the Hotel Alcron.

He and Mrs. Davis dined at the hotel and were having coffee in the lobby when he went upstairs to attend to some business. On the way back he fell or jumped, the body landing in the lobby near were Mrs. Davis sat. Physicians said the spinal column had been broken and that he had died instantly. Police said it was suicide.

Philadelphia Park Leader Dies at 72

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Eli Kirk Price, a leading patron of the city's park system, art lover and winner in 1929 of the Philadelphia award as the citizen who during the preceding year had done most for the city, died yesterday. He was 72.

He was stricken ill in the city hall suite of the Fairmount Park Commission, of which he had been vice president for many years.

STATE'S SALES TAX ATTACKED

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 25.—The Pennsylvania retail sales tax is discriminatory and confiscatory, Harry D. Adamy, vice president of the Pennsylvania Retailers' Association, told a group of traveling salesmen, members of the Travelers' Protective Association, here last night. He said:

"Pennsylvania is the only state in the union which has a retail dealers' privilege tax. It cannot be passed on by the merchant to his customer and therefore discriminates against the retailer. Few people seem to realize this. You recall how the oil companies started last September to collect the 1 per cent so-called sales tax like they do the gasoline tax. What was the result? They found it was entirely different and could not be collected on an equitable basis. They finally decided to absorb it.

"So of your motor sputters and spits and your engine knocks, remember that it is the state sales tax absorbed in your gasoline and oil."

How to Keep Well

Bump From a Fall May Cause Bone Infection

Every parent knows that the growing and active child is apt to scratch or injure himself while at play. A simple injury due to a fall may appear to be of no consequence, yet it may result in a serious disease, such as "osteomyelitis."

Dr. Copeland

Osteomyelitis is an inflammation of bone tissue, caused by infection with pus producing germs. Most cases of osteomyelitis can be traced to a germ called "staphylococcus." This is an organism commonly found in infected tonsils, adenoids, nasal sinuses, teeth and other organs of the body.

The injury received in a fall or blow prepares the way for an infection of the bone. The germs are carried by the blood stream from a diseased part of the body to the recently injured part. They are deposited at the point of injury where the resistance is low. This is a common experience, but, of course, not all cases of osteomyelitis can be traced to an injury.

Osteomyelitis may be caused by the direct entrance of the pus germs through a wound. This may happen in a severe accident, compound fracture, amputation or other condition where bone is exposed. It may follow a severe attack of tonsilitis or sinusitis, certain fevers such as scarlet fever, measles and influenza.

The disease comes on suddenly with marked chills and high fever. The afflicted bone is painful and there is acute tenderness near the joint. Children who complain of pain or discomfort in a leg or arm should be carefully examined by a physician. This is particularly important if the child has recently fallen or scratched himself.

In what I have said, I do not mean to infer that all children who fall and complain of pain will have osteomyelitis. But if a child does have high fever, tells you he has had a fall, and complains of pain in a bone, he should be suspected of having osteomyelitis.

Unfortunately, this complaint is often overlooked or improperly it may be called "growing pains." As I have told you many times, there is no such thing as growing pains. There is always a definite cause for the symptoms.

Early recognition and proper treatment of osteomyelitis are vitally important. When overlooked, the disease becomes chronic. Then it greatly impairs the health and growth of the child. In severe cases disabling deformities may result.

Fortunately, by means of the X-ray, early recognition of the disease is possible. In every suspected case, an X-ray picture should be taken of the afflicted part. This should be attended to promptly. If the picture shows haziness and involvement of the bone, treatment for osteomyelitis must not be delayed.

In mild cases, simple rest in bed and keeping the afflicted limb from motion brings about a cure. In more advanced cases, a trifling operation is necessary. An opening is made over the infected bone and the pus is removed. Postponement of this operation may mean delayed recovery and the need of repeated operations.

SPECIAL STAMP WINDOW OPENS

The growth of stamp collecting in the Pittsburgh area has been so rapid in recent months that Postmaster James B. Anderson announces the opening of a special window to take care of philatelists and their needs. Every assistance possible will be given collectors in obtaining stamps they may require and the stocks will be specially selected so that all stamps sold at this window will be well centered. The philatelic window opened today. It remains open daily except Sunday from 12 o'clock noon until 1 o'clock. It is located in Room 213 on the second floor of the Postoffice Building.

Postmaster Anderson said this morning:

"I find that the window service required by collectors takes much more time than it does for the regular sales of stamps, and in view of the growing interest in stamp collecting in Pittsburgh, I deemed it advisable to open this special window as an experiment. If the results justify, the service for collectors will be permanent."

Heretofore collectors have had to get their special requirements through the Philatelic Agency of the Postoffice Department at Washington, and wait for the filling of their orders from this point.

The special window in the Pittsburgh Postoffice was opened at the suggestion of the Sun-Telegraph Stamp Collectors.

DO HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

It's the worst kind of folly to dope and drug yourself every time you have one of those blinding, throbbing headaches. For drugs only relieve the pain for the moment, and in a little while the headache returns worse than ever and you have to drug yourself all over again. You've got to get at the cause.

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

By starting the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment, today, you may free yourself from this constant torment.

This new form of Nujol is specially designed to rid you of poisons which very often cause this condition.

Cream of Nujol contains no drugs, and does not in any way interfere with work or play. It is delicious to take. Moreover, you can use this modern treatment at a cost of but a few cents a day.

Take Cream of Nujol night and morning. Begin this very night and give it a real trial. Buy it at any drug counter.

'MOIST THROAT' ENDED HIS COUGH!

"I had coughs all winter, till I learned about 'moist throat,'" writes R. G., of New York City.

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny "bottles" continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these pores clog. Phlegm collects — dangerous germs find a breeding place. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when you increase the flow of your throat's natural moisture, loosening the phlegm so it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely "deaden" the nerves . . . but don't get at the real root of the trouble!

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of throat moisture and brings quick relief naturally.

If your throat's the least bit raw or dry, take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN now. It's absolutely safe, even for children. At all drug stores, 60¢.

'TORCH SINGER' TO CROON ONLY LULLABIES

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Broadway never may hear Libby Holman Reynolds' torch songs again.

Since the tragic death, July 6, of her husband, Smith Reynolds, heir to tobacco millions, she has indicated her desire for quiet and retirement.

Mrs. Louisa Carpenter Jenney, niece of Pierre du Pont, of Wilmington, Del., and close friend of Mrs. Reynolds, disclosed yesterday the young actress is being treated for a nervous breakdown at the hospital where the child was born two weeks ago.

Mrs. Jenney's statement was given out in the law offices of John R. K. Scott and William T. Connor, who have been retained by Mrs. Reynolds to seek her share in her husband's estate, estimated at $15,000,000 to $20,000,000. The attorneys stated:

"Mrs. Reynolds has requested us to say that as soon as she and her son are in health she will permit their being photographed.

"At that time, she will give to the public a statement of her future plans and will request that she be allowed to retire from public notice and to live with her child a peaceful, quiet life."

Stolen Gems Strewn On Street in Chase

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Diamonds were strewn on Tacoma streets yesterday by thieves who broke the windows of two Broadway jewelry stores and then fled in an automobile with police prowl cars in pursuit.

Two men were arrested and officers later recovered diamond rings and other jewelry from street gutters.

COOKING SCHOOL, FOOD INSTITUTE OPENS

Free Lectures to Be Continued Tomorrow And on Friday

Facts about food and its preparation are being offered housewives, students and all others interested in culinary art at the Kroger Foundation Cooking School and Food Institute in Soldiers and Sailors Memorial Hall today. Lectures and exhibits will be presented tomorrow and Friday.

Helen Watts Schreiber, nationally known lecturer and food expert, is conducting the school and institute. She will be introduced today by Mrs. Saul Lavine, president of the Pittsburgh conference of Jewish Women's Organizations. Mrs. Paul Howe, newly appointed chairman of the home for the southwestern district of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, will introduce the lecturer tomorrow, and Mrs. T. M. Stahlman, president of the Congress of Clubs and Club Women of Western Pennsylvania, will present her Friday.

USHERS ANNOUNCED

Ushers for the sessions were announced today. They are:

Today—Mrs. Charles Lockhart, Mrs. Frederick Gwinner III, Mrs. Davidson Herron, Mrs. George Kennedy, Mrs. James McKay, Mrs. W. W. Blair, Jr., Mrs. Reginald Macdonald, Miss Catherine Suydam, Mrs. George A. Kelly III and Mrs. Reginald Quaile.

Tomorrow—Mrs. Sherman Parker, Mrs. Raymond Moreland, Mrs. J. Porter Gillespie, Mrs. W. McCook Reed, Mrs. Wallace H. Rowe, Jr., Mrs. H. H. McClintic, Jr., Mrs. Harvey Childs III, Miss Smiley Frew, Mrs. J. Shirley Austin and Miss Louise Reed.

Friday — Mrs. Ray Harrison, Mrs. Arthur P. Woolfolk, Mrs. John J. Bissell, Mrs. George H. Love, Mrs. George L. Craig, Jr., Mrs. Paul B. Dickey, Mrs. John H. Wilson, Mrs. R. Green Annan, Miss Virginia Wright and Mrs. John Berdan.

MEETINGS FREE

The cooking school and institute is presented by the Kroger Food Foundation of Cincinnati. All meetings are free and the lectures will be given between 2 and 4 o'clock each afternoon. There will be many food exhibits which will be open during the mornings for students by appointment. However, there will be no cooking school session in the mornings.

Members of women's club and home study and educational groups were expected to attend. Gifts will be presented guests at each session. Many new ideas and methods will be introduced.

Leading food manufacturers have prepared exhibits for the institute, which will include displays detailing the production, manufacture and marketing of food.

PUBLIC TO TEST VOTE MACHINES

Allegheny County's two improved voting machines will be shipped to Pittsburgh tomorrow from the Dayton plant of the National Cash Register Company. After being set up here they will be put on public display for a 30-day trial period.

According to William T. Rees, director of the Department of Elections, it is planned to demonstrate the machines in the Court House and the City-County Building and later in Sanders' store, East Liberty, and Jenkins Arcade, downtown.

STUDENT GROUP HITS POGROMS

A new protest was to be launched today, leaders of the United Workers' and Students' League said, unless the Polish consul, Jan Byszewski, does not join in a movement to stamp out alleged pogroms against the Jews in Poland.

At a meeting staged by the group yesterday at the Forbes street entrance to Schenley Park, eight spokesmen decried alleged economic, political and national discrimination against the Jews.

ERIE MAN KILLS WIFE AND GIRL, ENDS LIFE

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—A man, his wife, and their 21-year-old crippled daughter were found shot to death in their home early today.

Police, summoned by Leonard Shaffer, 27, the only remaining member of the family, described the case as "a double murder and suicide."

The youth, who ran to police headquarters in his pajamas, told the officers his father, John Shaffer, 64, shot his mother, Margaret, 53, and then fired on his sister, Virginia. Police quoted Leonard as saying:

"He was going to shoot me, but I ran."

He told them that his mother and father had quarreled, the woman threatening her husband with separation.

Shaffer then picked up a shotgun and fired two charges at his wife. Next he shot the girl and, failing to get Leonard, killed himself.

Police found the three bodies in the home.

They reported that Mrs. Shaffer had been shot twice, once in the side and arm and once in the head. Virginia was killed by a shot in the neck.

Officers say the three were slain by a charge from a shotgun.

Shaffer has been unemployed for more than two years.

Authorities held Leonard pending further questioning.

Wife Sues Widow For 'Love Theft'

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 25.—Alleging that Mrs. Anna E. Corbin, widow of Edwin Corbin, of Union Township, alienated the affections of her husband, William A. Caldwell, Mrs. Mary A. Caldwell has brought suit in which she asks $20,000 damages from Mrs. Corbin.

TREASURE HUNT OF RED CROSS BARES CASH

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—A treasure hunt, in which the American Red Cross had the charts and did the digging, today had netted some $6,000 in gold and currency from hiding places on the North Arkansas farm of R. F. Leigh, aged recluse, who suffered torture and hanging rather than reveal his secret to anyone else.

The "treasure" was found yesterday on Leigh's hilly farm, where his body was found hanging from a rafter in his home, December 29.

The search, for which minute directions had been left, was conducted by officials of the American Red Cross, a beneficiary of the Leigh estate. The directions were contained in a letter left by Leigh to be mailed to the Red Cross in Washington after his death.

Two youths, Jesse Hardester, 17, and Aaron Moody, 23, have confessed, according to officers, that they killed the eccentric recluse in an effort to force him to reveal the hiding place of his money. He died with the secret left in the unopened letter and the youths found only a few dollars and an old watch.

A year before his death, Leigh gave a neighbor, Elton Reeves, two sealed envelopes, one of which he was asked to send to the Red Cross in Washington upon Leigh's death. Reeves was to open the other.

Reeves' letter instructed him and another neighbor to stand guard over the Leigh home until Red Cross representatives arrived.

L. M. Mitchell, of St. Louis, assistant manager, Red Cross, went to Leigh's home yesterday and found the two neighbors on guard.

'Broke,' Nita Naldi Says in Bankruptcy

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Nita Naldi, former screen actress, said she was without funds while testifying yesterday at a hearing on her bankruptcy petition.

Questioned by attorneys for a firm of furriers which is seeking to collect a $1,008 bill, Miss Naldi described her occupation as "actress, unemployed." Referee Kurtz reserved decision on a motion to appoint a trust to inquire further into Miss Naldi's financial affairs.

McCanns

55,000 more people ate at McCanns last year than the year before

You see the food's excellent . . . prepared after favorite home recipes by young women under the direction of a dietitian and her trained assistants. Surroundings are singularly pleasant and quiet. Prices are downright reasonable. And you can't complain about the service . . . it's quick, courteous and efficient. These are the reasons why more and more people are patronizing McCanns cafeteria. Come up soon and pursue the joys of home cooking in a particularly pleasing setting. The escalator takes you right up without a moment's delay.

Here's the kind of meals 40c buys:

Baked Ham
Escalloped Sweet Potato and Apple
Fresh Green Beans
Hot Biscuits, Butter
Betty Crocker Cake
Coffee Supreme or Milk

Served 10:30 to 8 p. m. in the cafeteria Thursday.

❖

Fresh Rhubarb Cup
Tomato Bouillon
Roast, Stuffed Duck with Spiced Apple
Baked Idaho Potato

There are other good cigarettes, of course—

TO TELL you that Chesterfield is the only good cigarette . . . that the makers of Chesterfield Cigarettes are the only ones who can buy good tobaccos and manufacture cigarettes scientifically . . . would be nothing short of foolish.

For all tobacco is sold in open auctions—where anyone can buy if he will pay the price. Even the machines on which different cigarettes are made are alike.

This much, however, is true: By using the right kinds of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos in just the right proportions . . . by blending and cross-blending them together in the most careful way . . . we make Chesterfield what smokers say it is . . . a cigarette that's milder, that tastes better. Just try them.

PORTO RICO AID PLEA MADE

A plea for more than 400,000 children, under and of school age, "dangerously underfed" since the hurricane in Porto Rico last September, is being made by the Pittsburgh church and lay committees of the Porto Rico Child Feeding Committee, in an effort to curb the alarmingly high mortality rate among undernourished children in the stricken areas.

The Pittsburgh Church Committee consists of Bishop Alexander Mann, the Rev. Dr. A. R. Robinson, the Rev. John Ray Ewers, the Rev. Dr. J. Kirkwood Craig, Henry E. Cole and the Rev. Dr. Walter Schuette.

The Pittsburgh lay committee includes Francis R. Dravo, Howard Heinz, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, Howard H. McClintic, W. L. Mellon, David A. Reed and Malcolm McGiffin, of the Fidelity Title and Trust Company, treasurer.

BUYING OF HOME GOODS URGED BY 'BUILDERS'

The Community Builders of America, Pittsburgh chapter, whose membership includes leading manufacturers, wholesale and reail merchants of the district, today added their whole-hearted indorsement to "Buy American".

The Electric Sign Service Company last night lighted its seven-foot electric sign "Buy American" at Penn avenue and Water street, near the Point.

And Sun-Telegraph "Buy American" buttons, which may be had free and for the asking, have arrived at the downtown offices of the Sun-Telegraph, Fifth avenue and Market street, and the main office, Telegraph square.

MATCH TRADE BOOSTED

While many additional organizations, patriotic, labor, fraternal, manufacturers and others were only awaiting regular meetings to join the crusade to reopen American factories by insisting on American-made goods, many stores were filling their shelves with native products to supplant foreign-made ones.

This was particularly true of several chains. Cunningham's Economical Drug stores had placed American-made matches instead of Russian, Swedish or Japanese, and H. C. Traute, executive vice president of the Diamond Match Company, announced that every Diamond match — 5,000,000,000 books — would contain the legend "Buy American." These books will be distributed by 10,000 advertisers.

BACKED BY BUILDERS

H. B. McNeal, president of the Community Builders, wrote:

"The Community Builders heartily indorse Mr. Hearst's 'Buy American' campaign.

"It is a movement which points the way to the resumption of prosperity. It is right in line with the policy we have been fostering for several months. The Community Builders have urged the people of Greater Pittsburgh to buy merchandise manufactured in this great trading area, as a means of restoring employment locally. Mr. Hearst goes further. If the American people will be guided by his advice we will soon have thousands of men and women returning to their jobs in every part of the country.

"To our slogan 'Buy Greater Pittsburgh' we now add 'and if it isn't made in Pittsburgh buy American.'

"A meeting of representative manufacturers of Greater Pittsburgh will be held at the Fort Pitt Hotel on Friday at 8 p. m. to draft definite plans for a huge publicity campaign. We must acquaint the people with the merits of Greater Pittsburgh-made products. The people have a powerful weapon, which if used intelligently, can defeat the depression locally. Let us reopen our idle mills with our buying power."

The State Senate of New Jersey has passed a resolution indorsing "Buy American," and New York's department of hospitals has awarded a $119,000 X-ray contract to an American firm over a Belgian competitor whose price was $5,000 lower.

Al Jolson, who sang a "Buy American" song, declares it brought him more radio fan letters than he ever saw before. In Washington, the Senate Finance Committee voted to investigate the effect of depreciated foreign currencies on the American trade structure while House plans were laid to calculate tariffs on the basis of such currency.

Railroaders, Vets Back 'Buy American'

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 25.—James G. Blaine Lodge 703, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Brownsville, and Cumberland Legion Post at Carmichaels, have indorsed the "Buy American" movement. Members will urge their friends to "do likewise."

Hearst Radio Heard At Record Distance

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(Universal.)—What is regarded as a record distance for a 500-watt bradcasting station to be heard was reported when WINS, the Hearst newspaper station in New York received a letter from Heinz Oelkers, of Bremen, Germany, stating that he listens in there.

The station will arrange a special program dedicated to Oelkers and any other persons in Germany who may be among its listeners.

Further Tip Should Help in Solving Tricky Cipher

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor.

Many fans are stumped on Cipher No. 47, according to telephone reports received yesterday. Well, don't be discouraged — it's really as hard as it looks. It will give you smart cipher fans a chance to see if you're really good.

Did anyone solve it in less than the 20 hours given for its completion?

Maybe the tip given yesterday helped. Step No. 2, given today, should make it easy. Let's see what you do with it.

Write the Cipher Editor and let him know how you enjoy this new game.

An original cipher came today from J. F. Irion, of Leetsdale. The mail man brings letters from these fans who have solved the ciphers: Mrs. Henrietta Bradwell, of Carnegie; Gilbert Seightley, of Clairton, Pa., and Dr. R. M. Skidmore, of 1209 Grandview avenue. The doctor writes:

"I have watched your cipher column since its inception, but I never took the time to work them until yesterday. This is all very interesting. I hope I will find a few more hard and easy ones."

BALM MAKER ASKS DIVORCE

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Lotions and balms and the fortune they produced having failed to soothe discord, Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Coons have agreed to divorcement.

Mrs. Lillian Coons started things by asking separate maintenance from the retired cosmetic manufacturer, and had her husband enjoined from entering their home. There followed the wounding of Humphrey W. Fall, a detective who tried to bar Coons from his home.

Coons filed an amended bill for divorce yesterday and his wife's counsel agreed to have the case heard on his bill.

His bill alleged that "Mrs. Coons, a strong and vigorous person, used personal violence on her husband" in the form of kicks, scratches and blows."

They were married at Jeffersonville, Ind., in 1914.

The wounded detective filed suit for $50,000 against Coons yesterday.

NERVE WEAKNESS

Present times and conditions have increased the number of sufferers from nervous troubles to an alarming extent.

Nerve exhaustion (Neurasthenia) is the distressing result of great mental irritation and overwork. It is also the penalty for bad habits and incorrect living.

The first signs indicating jumpy nerves are lack of energy, unrest, insomnia and mental weakness. If nothing is done to remove these symptoms, they usually result in physical disability, nervous debility and general breakdown.

This laboratory staff, brought into daily contact with many neurasthenic cases, are thoroughly qualified to advise, direct and treat such patients with highly gratifying results.

In the office every patient receives blood pressure and laboratory tests, chemical analysis and a careful physical examination. Files are overflowing with expressions of gratitude from former patients.

Diseases Successfully Treated

Among the many ailments treated at this office are diseases of the stomach, anaemia, asthma, bronchitis, biliousness, bladder and bowel troubles, constipation, chronic diarrhoea, diabetes, dizziness, eczema, jaundice, gallstones, gout, high and low blood pressure, heart weakness, lumbago, neuralgia, nerve exhaustion, nose and throat trouble, insomnia, liver and kidney trouble, obesity, rheumatism, sciatica, skin complaints, swollen glands and Varicose Veins and Ulcers. The cost involved in taking these treatments is within everybody's reach. Examinations $1.00.

STATUARY HALL IN DANGER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Statuary Hall, in the Capitol—one of those places the tourist never misses—may be relieved of some of its marbled heroes.

The joint library committee of Congress, considering the crowded condition of the hall, decided yesterday to ask for authority to distribute the 65 statues and busts already there in other part of the Capitol.

Under existing law, 31 more statues may be placed there. Engineers say the floor is already under a strain that should be relieved.

Three statues are now waiting niches that cannot be found—one from Maine and two from Delaware. Each state in the Union is entitled to two.

SEVILLE BOMB SCHOOL SEIZED

SEVILLE, Spain, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—A man known as "professor" Manuel Rodriguez was arrested after police said they found him conducting a school in which he taught seven boys around 15 how to make bombs and explosives. The school was located in nearby Villanueva de Las Minas. Police said that Rodriguez also taught the boys the history and procedure of revolutions and added that they confiscated a laboratory equipped to make explosives and also found some inflammatory literature. The boys were sent to a reformatory.

Yes, Ten Dollars a Week, Extra, Is A BIG Help, These Days!

You see I had two extra rooms we never used and I got to thinking: Why not rent them?—we can certainly use the money—since Jim's not working. My neighbor had told me how she had rented a room through a Classified Ad in the Sun-Telegraph, so I thought I'd try too. Well, I did, and sure enough I rented both rooms—to two very nice young men who were looking, they said, for nice rooms in a comfortable home like mine. I'm glad I did, for we like the boys very much and that money certainly is a life saver.

Have you rooms to rent?
If so, just call Grant 5400

Counterfeit Money Floods Cumberland

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 25.—Cumberland has been flooded with counterfeit $5 and $10 bills, it developed today when store customers presented the notes. All banks reported the $5 bills lacked numbers printed in red in two places on genuine notes, while the border on the $10 bill is much blacker than that of the genuine.

Your Income Tax

Individuals Are Allowed Exemptions on Taxable Income

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

(This is the third of a series of articles analyzing the Revenue Act of 1932 and discussing the problems of income tax payers.)

All the income of a person required to file an income tax return is not necessarily taxable. Individuals are permitted to deduct allowances for personal exemption. A single person is allowed an exemption of $1,000. This amount is deducted from income before computing ordinary taxes.

A married couple is allowed an exemption of $2,500. If both a husband and a wife have incomes they may file a joint return and deduct the entire exemption or they may file individual returns. In case individual returns are filed either one may claim the entire exemption or it may be divided between them in any proportions that they desire. This sometimes makes a savings in taxes possible, as will be explained in the future.

In order to claim the exemption for a married couple the husband and wife must be living together. Widows, widowers and divorcees are classified as single persons.

A single person who is the head of a family may claim a $2,500 exemption. To be classified as the head of a family he or she must be providing the chief support for one or more dependents under the age of 18 or physically or mentally incapable of earning a living. Each dependent also entitles the taxpayer to an additional credit, which will be explained tomorrow.

Co-Eds Wear College Colors on Nails

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Beauty parlor operators reported today that Ohio State University co-eds are now wearing their college colors on their fingernails.

The colors are carefully etched on the nails by manicurists. Some co-eds also wear colors on their fingernails to match the colors of their dresses.

LONG LINES FED BY FATHER COX

Waiting—four abreast and four blocks long—men and boys, ragged and haggard—in the breadline at Old St. Patrick's Church.

This, in brief, is the dismal picture of distress as it can be seen at Liberty avenue and Seventeenth street every day at noon. Yesterday there were close to 2,500 in this line as it shuffled along to the basement of the church where they are fed, 250 at a time.

These destitute men and boys are given all they can eat. One day it is a heavy meat soup with plenty of bread and coffee. Other days it is a meat roast or stew and on Friday clam chowder and fish is the invariable dish. The length of the line varies but little. In extremely cold weather it goes up to 3,000. The daily average is 2,500.

The breadline, however, is only one of the Father Cox activities. Hundreds of families look to him every day for baskets of food. It requires money to purchase supplies for these daily activities. Father Cox is still in Mercy Hospital and being unable to make his daily personal appeals for assistance, donations are slowing up.

These are some of the reasons why the Sun-Telegraph continues the subscription drive for Father Cox. If you want to help him, and he needs help more than ever, now is the time to do it. A subscription for the Sun-Telegraph on the blank on this page brings a liberal cash commission to his unemployment relief fund.

Short-Weight War On in Westmoreland

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 25.—County sealers of weights and measures have begun a drive upon short-weight butter merchants in Westmoreland County.

Several informations have been made and others will follow if the the dealers don't give honest weight, the sealers say.

Owners Absent, Thieves Steal Home

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—H. A. Zimmerman wants his house back. He reported to police that thieves loaded the building on a truck during his absence and drove away.

Indict 4 Policemen In Crowe's Slaying

ROYAL OAK, Mich., Jan. 25.—(AP.) — Four officers stand indicted in the fatal shooting of Patrolman Jesse Crowe, formerly of Bentleyville, Pa. The accused, Capt. Alfred Reynolds, Lieut. Milo Cinader and Patrolmen Edward H. Lietzau and Thomas H. Kelly, were indicted at Pontiac on charges of involuntary manslaughter. Crowe was shot in an ambush laid for robbers. The officers are accused of failure to apprise Crowe of the ambush plans.

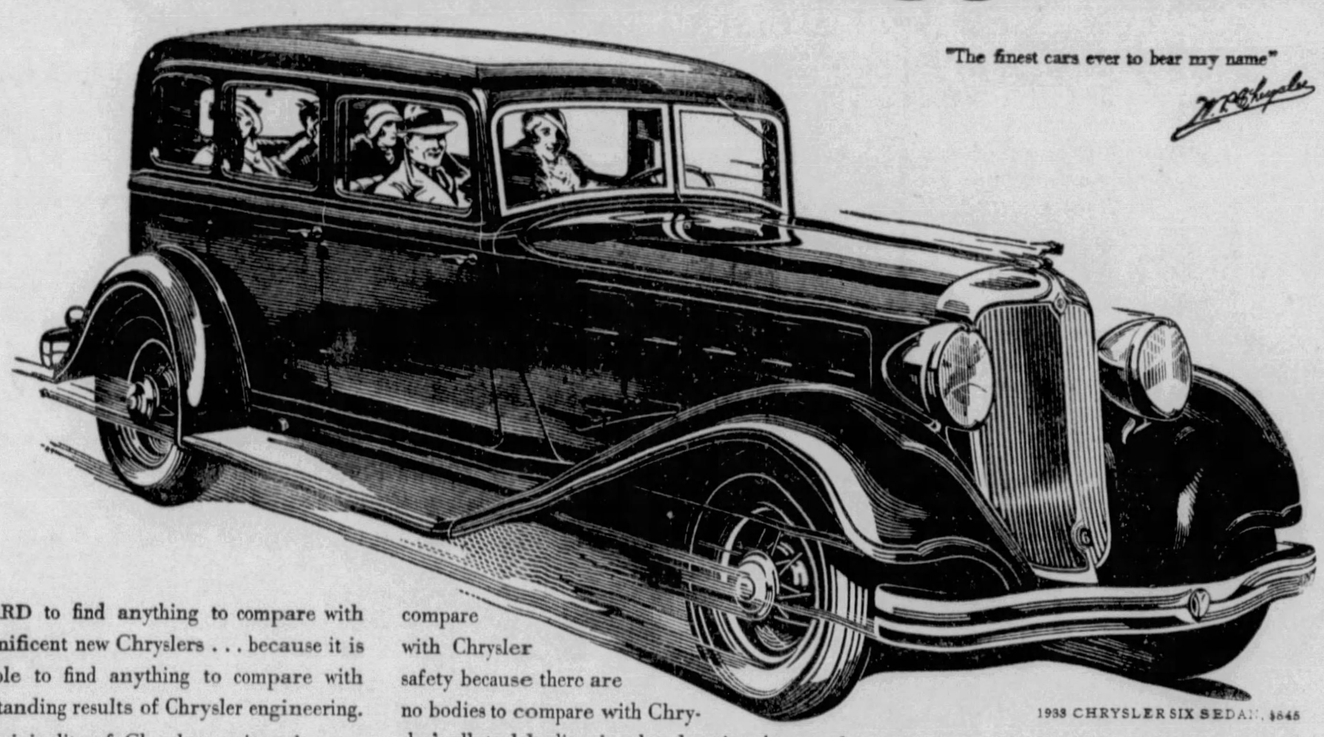
New CHRYSLERS that climax nine years of engineering greatness



"The finest cars ever to bear my name"
Walter P. Chrysler

1933 CHRYSLER SIX SEDAN, $845

IT'S HARD to find anything to compare with the magnificent new Chryslers . . . because it is impossible to find anything to compare with the outstanding results of Chrysler engineering.

The originality of Chrysler engineering was apparent in the very first Chryslers. Ever since, for nine straight years, Chrysler has widened its lead in all the factors that make for faster, safer, smoother motor cars.

There's a nine year lead behind the flashing action of the new Chryslers that makes all other performance seem pale.

There's a nine year lead back of their All-Silent transmissions . . . silent in all speeds including reverse . . . behind their celebrated Chrysler patented Floating Power which wipes out all engine tremor.

Today there is no safety to compare with Chrysler safety because there are no bodies to compare with Chrysler's all-steel bodies, insulated against heat and cold . . . no brakes to compare with Chrysler's matchless hydraulics.

There are years of pioneering behind Chrysler's Oilite squeak-proof springs that never need lubrication . . . behind Chrysler's new alloy steel valve seats that greatly reduce valve grinding . . . increasing performance by scientifically sealing compression.

It's hard to take the lead if you're busy catching up . . . Leadership is the reason why Chrysler is so far ahead in design and so far ahead in value.

You can have no real idea of what your dollars can buy today until you see the smart and luxurious new Chryslers . . . and get the never-to-be-forgotten thrill of driving one.

'Wolf of Paris' Police Drama On WCAE

A thrilling dramatization based on H. Ashton-Wolfe's article, "Secrets of the Sureté" which is appearing serially in the American Weekly, magazine distributed each Sunday with the Sunday Telegraph, is presented on WCAE tonight at 6 o'clock. The drama depicts the activities of "The Wolf of Paris" and his gang of murderers as filed in the official records of the Paris Detective Bureau. The presentation is one of a series being offered over more than 100 radio stations throughout the country by 17 Hearst newspapers, including the Sun-Telegraph. Howard Smith, vaudeville actor, and Elizabeth Day, young radio and stage star, portray the leading roles.

Miss Millay

In response to numerous requests, Edna St. Vincent Millay, internationally famous American poet, is presented as guest artist with the NBC Symphony Orchestra, directed by Issay Dobrowen, on WCAE tonight at 9 o'clock. Appropriate to the occasion, Miss Millay reads her poems, "The Concert," "Renascence" and "On hearing a Symphony of Beethoven."

Lois Montross' light comedy about a small town couple off to the city for their one big fling, "A Day in New York," is the Five-Star Theater's dramatic offering on KDKA at 7:30 tonight.

* * *

Program Pointers

Incidents in the early life of Franz Schubert and his romance with the Countess Caroline Esterhazy, one of his music pupils, are re-enacted during "Sheer Romance" on KDKA at 6:30 tonight. The dramatic portion of the presentation provided by the KDKA Players, the musical background by the staff orchestra under the direction of Zoel Parenteau. Bertha Schmid, young Pittsburgh soprano, and Frederick G. Rodgers, baritone, are soloists.

Miss Schmid

Robert Russell Bennett's Orchestra, directed by Victor Baravalle, offers "Luckiest Man," from the new Jack Pearl show, "Pardon My English," and a new tango, as yet unnamed, by Oscar Levant, Pittsburgh pianist of the orchestra, as WCAE-at-8 highlights.

Bing Crosby's songs on WJAS at 6 o'clock include the new hit, "Playing With Fire."

The final installment of "The Dinah Touch," in which Spencer Dean prevents the theft of $5,000,000, exposes the criminals and explains all, is listed for the mystery fans on KDKA at 8.

Rudy Vallee's 'Find' Goes Network

Frances Langford, the Florida contralto discovered by Rudy Vallee, is to start a new series of NBC-WCAE programs tomorrow night at 11 . . . Although they had previously vowed they'd never do it, Jane and Goodman Ace, the "Easy Aces," have signed a vaudeville contract and open at a Chicago theater Friday . . . Al Jolson, Florida-bound, will broadcast from Miami Beach during the next two weeks.

Miss Langford

Richard Halliburton, author and adventurer, is to be guest star with Abe Lyman on WJAS Thursday night . . . If plans for the transposition of the Saturday night dance hour into a musical comedy period go through, the first production will be "Good News."

Their breakfasts . . . Frederic William Wile likes cantaloupe, boiled eggs and toast . . . Ruth Etting eats bacon, one egg, dry toast and a tall glass of milk . . . The Funnyboners commuters, have orange juice, toast and coffee anywhere between the living room and the train . . . Vaugh de Leath, two kinds of fruit . . . Freddie Rich, tomato juice and tea . . . Donald Hughes, 11-year-old actor, cereal, coffee and toast . . . Norman Brokenshire, being a Canadian, goes in for grapefruit and orange juice, cereal with cream and bananas, eggs with potatoes, onions and bacon, three cups of coffee and toast with marmalade! . . . and Louis Dean works so late at night that he gets up at noon and can't remember his last breakfast . . .

Kate Smith's stage tour won't interfere with her regular broadcasting schedule . . . Supported by Nat Brusiloff's orchestra, Ted Collins, announcer, and Jack Miller, she'll go on the air direct from the stage of the theaters at which she's appearing. The procedure marks the first time that a series of radio programs is tied into a regular theatrical performance.

Plans are being made by NBC and CBS for broadcasts of the memorial service for Calvin Coolidge to be held by a joint session of Congress February 6 . . .

Outdoors Writer With Seals

Gib Marsh, outdoors writer for the Sun-Telegraph, discusses the game and fish bills now before the Legislature at Harrisburg as a feature of the weekly Trained Seals program on WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock. Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph, is master of ceremonies.

A special presentation for children by a group of talented Pittsburgh youngsters is broadcast by WCAE today at 4:45 during the Sun-Telegraph Family period.

Broadcasting direct from the Sun-Telegraph editorial rooms, Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, flashes the latest bulletins to WCAE and WJAS listeners at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Who started this "signs of spring" business anyway? It proves that we are all a bunch of optimists and find a sign of spring in almost anything and everything. There used to be one infallible sign and that bore the legend "For Rent." If we went by that these days we never would have winter. Now if the cuckoo in the clock seems a bit more chipper, or the family gas wagon doesn't miss on more than two cylinders, or the baby stops crying at night, it is interpreted as a sign of spring. And, maybe after all, that's right. Spring isn't necessarily a season to all people. Sometime it is a condition, a state of well being or a joy in life . . . A promise of better times.

* * *

F'evven's sake, I wonder what brought all that on? Surely not these letters about redbreasts, canaries and redbirds. I know. The boss smiled this morning. . . Must be a sign of spring.

* * *

Mrs. Edward Stritzinger, Wilkinsburg; George Huff, Jr., West View; S. R. Cox, Jr., and Teddy Messenger, Wilkinsburg, are the new members of the Seekers of Spring Society.

* * *

After this column's publication, dart baseball has taken root in Wilmerding. If that champion Tarentum team wants a match, see D. A. Lewis, of Welsh avenue.

* * *

Maybe we started something and then again maybe we didn't, by using that nickname item several days ago. Today, J. A. R. submits "Old Three Stars" for Gen. Grant; "Old Buena Vista" for Zachary Taylor, and for the only Pennsylvania President, James Buchanan, "Old Buck." Then there is Napoleon's "Little Nap," and the not so affectionate "Nero," applied to him by Victor Hugo. The original "Old Man of the Mountain," was Hassam-Ben Sahas, founder of a band of assassins.

* * *

But R. J. N., of Johnstown, is satisfied when his ambition sighs "sweetums."

* * *

You're just under the wire, Howard. Send your application to Harrisburg. A two-year lapse makes it necessary to apply for a learner's permit.

I see where Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, R. C. A. vice president and one of the best known figures in the radio engineering field, has resigned to form a private consulting engineering practice. His scientific genius will still be available to Radio Corporation as one of his clients.

Reckless Marriages Caused By Nagging Parents

A worthless tramp, with a come-hither smile, or a righteous mother with a nagging tongue—

If you were a moonstruck young girl, which one would you choose?

"Daughter Darling" was all for the tramp; and, though Mamma redoubled her tantrums and tears, she couldn't do a thing to break up the romance.

We told her she'd be wiser if she stopped trying; that persecution was simply turning a common loafer into a martyr, and that if we knew girls this was the soonest way to urge on a reckless marriage. And here's Josephine to say we're right; for Josephine's mamma was just like that, and see what Josephine did!

"I went through the same thing," says she, "and I married the man. And even now I'm happier with him, worthless as he is, than with my good, nagging mother."

Listen!

Dear Elsie:

I've just read the letter from that mother, whose heart is breaking because she is afraid her daughter is going to marry a worthless man.

You gave good advice when you told her to quit criticising him, be nice to him, invite him over with a crowd and let him show himself up.

I know what I am talking about. I was like that girl once, and I know that the sweet words of that man will be sweeter to that girl than the food of the gods, compared to the nagging and the fretting her mother is doing.

INDEPENDENCE AROUSED

Some years ago I met, and finally married, a man who was utterly worthless. Probably, if my mother had done as you told this mother to do, I wouldn't have done it. I would have seen through him before I took that final step. But she didn't.

When a mother criticizes our friends or sweethearts, it arouses every bit of independence and fighting blood we have; so much so that we can't really see those people as they are. They become abused heroes, and we fly to their defense.

That's only natural. If mother liked someone, and that someone was criticized, she would probably act the same way. It's just human.

Well, anyway, I married this man. He has broken all the commandments except the one that says "Thou shalt not kill," but of course he is still young, and, given time, he may make the job complete.

HAPPIER WITH HUSBAND

Yet every time I think of leaving him and returning to my mother, I see the scorn in her eyes. I think of her acid tongue, her intolerance, her constant nagging. She is a "good woman," but—she just can't be pleasant.

I cannot remember a single word of praise she ever gave me, a single caress, or even a small, unnecessary service of any kind.

And I can truly say that I am happier with my worthless husband than I could ever be with my worthy mother.

JOSEPHINE.

There you have the picture—and one more proof that you can catch more flies with even bum honey than you can with the best of vinegar.

It is a true picture of scores of well-meaning people who are sure they see the right scheme of things, and try to club others into accepting it.

Is it a picture of you?

Are you trying to save your youngster from making a terrible mistake by nagging, criticizing and really pushing him or her into it? Then you'd better change your technique.

For a smiling sinner can outsmart a sour saint any day.

Equality of Feeling Commended by Fay King

OK, SEND HIM IN, KID!
HEY BOSS! THERE'S SOME GUY OUTSIDE WANTS TO SEE YOU!
I THINK HE'S TOO FRESH!
SO DO I!
AN EQUALITY OF DISRESPECT
GOOD MORNING, MR BROWN!
GOOD MORNING, GEORGE
AN EQUALITY OF RESPECT
FAY KING.

By FAY KING

Equality of feeling toward one another is as it should be in this world. Floppery and toadyism were always disgusting.

But some persons in their eagerness to express equality assume a manner of speech and actions which are no credit to themselves or others.

They have discarded all the little formalities that denote self-respect and the proper respect for others.

Equality of feeling should never lower us to mutual disrespect. It should always raise us to mutual respect.

Everyone has a certain innate pride which will appreciate that politeness and consideration that is due to all at all times.

Everyone resents disrespectful familiarity though he pretends to tolerate it.

Let your words and actions always show the considerate regard you should have for others.

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

Madge Explains About Attack on Sam Brixton

Ronald's whispered query held so much bewildered suffering that I wished suddenly I were 60 and a grandmother. If I had been, I could have put my arms around him and comforted him, as I would a hurt child; but all I could do was to put an encouraging hand upon his shoulder.

"I wish I had an idea what your stepfather's actions mean," I told him, "but I haven't. We're not even sure that the man who struck him down was one of the kidnapers. But one thing is certain. We are as powerless to aid him now as we were when the man felled him. We must wait for a decision until our men get back, but I am sure they will also say that we must not jeopardize the plan to rescue the girls by any effort in your stepfather's behalf."

"I know," Ronald said miserably. "I feel that way, too. But what I am to tell my mother, I do not know."

A remembrance of a delightful moment in "The Darling of the Gods" flashed across my memory.

"Long ago, Ronald," I said slowly, "I heard a clever actress, playing the role of a high-born Japanese girl, close a scene and bring down the house with these words: 'It is better to—lie a little—than to be—unhappy—much.' I do not commend the sentiment, but in the present case I do not see anything else you can do. Say that your stepfather had evolved a theory of the kidnaping that made him leave the hotel suddenly. Intimate, but do not say outright, that you think he went to New York. Tell her he did not wish her to worry, and therefore did not waken her, but that you are quite sure he will be back tomorrow afternoon, if not sooner. She leans much on you, Ronald. I think you will be able to quiet her."

MADGE REBUKED

"I hope so," Ronald said, but his tone was dubious, and then we went into the hotel, where Noel came from the darkness of the sitting room to receive us.

"You'll find two very worried men upstairs, Mrs. Graham," he said. "They wanted me to ask you to come upstairs the minute you got here. Ronald and I can turn back the bicycle and fix up something to quiet the hotel clerk's curiosity."

I found Lillian, Harry and Dicky in our sitting room, with Mary curled up on the couch, apparently asleep. But she jumped to her feet as I came into the room and, rushing to me impetuously, hugged me tight.

"Oh, I'm so glad!" she said incoherently. Then Dicky almost pushed her aside as he put gripping hands on my shoulders, his eyes blazing down into mine.

"How dare you risk your life like this?" he demanded.

"I don't risk anything," I answered stoutly, then flushed as I remembered the blow that had felled Samuel Brixton, and the volley of threats, that had come out of the darkness.

TELLS STORY

"That's not quite true," I admitted, "but, Dicky, I'm back, unharmed, and I have most important news. You're wasting time. Please let me tell you what happened."

"All right; shoot!" he said grudgingly, and, beginning with Ronald's announcement of his stepfather's stealthy departure from the hotel, I told the story of our trailing Brixton, dismissing with a sketchy word or two our adventures with the bicycle. I was a bit ashamed of my insistence upon riding that wheel so much of the time, but in the excitement of the chase I had felt that I must entrust to no one any task that I possibly could do myself.

"A well-chanted saga, with the exception of the details of the chase. I imagine Ronald could unfold a more graphic tale of the activities of one M. Graham.

"But we'll waive that for the present. I'm most interested in that voice from the darkness. As you tell it, and your memory can always be trusted, he sounded like a real, honest-to-God mountain moonshiner, defying the 'revenooers.' What did you think of him?"

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When will the sisterhood of beauty seekers learn that it isn't half so much what you wear as how you wear it? Posture that is spirited, erect, beautiful will make the cheap frock look like an expensive model, while the lovely robe loses line and charm when it is carried awkwardly. It was meant that the human frame should be held beautifully. Then muscles tighten and fat hasn't a chance to get a foothold.

Let no femme overlook the fact that animation is the best of all eye brighteners. Dumb brains, dull eyes. Health, too, has much to do with making eyes take on a fascinating sparkle.

Always there is with the sisters that problem of making powder stay put. On a dry skin it fluffs away unless there is an oily base. A base can be supplied by a foundation cream. Even the oily skin gets a closer relationship with makeup if the epidermis is spread over with a liquid cleansing oil, wiped away with a bit of soft toweling.

Contract Bridge

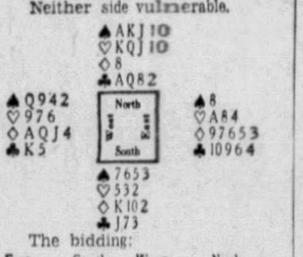
HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Interesting From Two Angles

Some hands are interesting purely from the standpoint of bidding. Other hands in Contract are interesting from the point of play. Occasionally, a hand turns up which commands comment both because of the bidding and the play, such, for instance, as the one below:

East—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	1 ◇ (1)	Double
2 ◇ (2)	Pass	Pass	Double (3)
3 ◇ (4)	Pass	Pass	4 ◇ (5)
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—A semi-psychic Third Hand Opening bid. West has a hunch, and wants, in addition to confusing his opponents, to indicate an Opening lead to East.

2—A mild attempt to keep South out of the bidding, as well as to let West know that there may be a save in the hand.

3—Still for a Takeout.

4—Trying to keep South quiet.

5—An absolute demand that South name his best suit. North realizes that South must hold a very poor hand not to have responded to either of his two Takeout Doubles. There is no danger that South will carry the bidding too high under the mistaken impression that North holds no losers in diamonds, but there is a danger that, having passed inconsistently, South will pass a third Double, considering it as for penalties.

Faced with a difficult choice of the Opening lead, West opened the deuce of trumps. From the bidding, he could read that South had a poor hand and that Dummy would probably have considerable trouble getting into it. If Dummy were really void of diamonds, South might hold three or four to the King. In any case, neither diamonds nor clubs seemed a good Opening. Dummy was also marked with a strong heart suit, so the trump appeared to be the best lead.

The first trick was won with the spade Ten, and another round of spades from Dummy disclosed that West had held four to the Queen. This information gave South a partial count on the hands. The trump suit was abandoned, and the heart King led to the third trick. East won with the Ace and returned the nine of diamonds, South covering with the Ten in order avoid a second lead through his King. West won with the Knave, but was in trouble for a lead. His best return would have been a heart, against which the contract could not have been made but South had made only one Forced response to his partner's strong bidding, and West thought he could see defeat of the contract by blocking the Declarer in the Dummy.

I do not at all agree with West's defense. As a matter of fact, I think it was extremely weak. The sole excuse for his next lead is that South might have held only two diamonds.

Finally, weighing all chances, he decided that the best prospect lay in establishing a trump trick for himself through leading the Ace of diamonds. This was ruffed with the Knave in Dummy, and the Ace of spades was laid down. Three rounds of hearts followed, South ruffing the last heart, even though it was high, as otherwise West would have discarded a diamond, and Dummy would have been compelled to lead from the Ace-Queen of clubs. This was the last trick for West, as when he returned a diamond, South won with the King, led a small club, finessing the Queen, and followed with the Ace, which dropped West's King.

A careful plan of play had brought its just reward.

Today's Question

South opens with a bid of one club. West bids one heart. North bids two spades, and East passes. What should South now bid, holding the following hand?

♠75 ♡753 ◇K864 ♣AK43

Answer—Three clubs. North's bid of two spades is a Forcing Takeout, requiring both partners to keep the bidding open until a game contract is reached. South lacks adequate trump support for partner's spades, a secondary biddable suit and a heart stopper. He, therefore, bids three clubs as a minimum response. A pass, of course, should not be considered.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

For a Grandmother

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—We have just had a death in the family and we would like to know what to say to our friends when they say, "Sorry to hear of your loss?"

2—In a few months my grandmother will be married 70 years. What shall we give her? It can't cost too much!

READERS.

1—Say for instance, "Thank you so much for your sympathy. I appreciate it very much" or "You are very kind. Thank you so much for your friendly words."

2—Something that you know she would like for her home is the ideal gift for this occasion. Perhaps a tea set? Or a set of dessert plates, or salad plates? Or some after-dinner coffee cups? A charming vase, of silver or crystal. Or a dinner or luncheon or breakfast set, of linen. Or a nice warm throw for her divan or bed. Or you and the family might combine in sending them a check, to do with what they wish. And with the check a devoted note of love and good wishes.

Brian Aherne Cast With Marlene

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25.—Dynamic Brian Aherne has succumbed to the movies at last.

A Brown Derby sensation and the goal of eager producers when he was out here with "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," the young Irishman temporarily gave Hollywood the slip. His return here Sunday, however, found him talked into submission.

He has signed that Paramount contract and he will begin to work opposite Marlene Dietrich in "The Song of Songs" next week. Fredric March, thus released, will be asked to play one of the leading roles in "The Story of Temple Drake."

Shy of publicity and rather fearful of Hollywood, the tall Aherne is the object of much interest among the film folk. When he came into the Paramount lunchroom yesterday with Marlene Dietrich and Director Rouben Mammoulian, dozens of stares were leveled at him. Besides Miss Dietrich, he'll work in his first picture with Alison Skipworth and Hardie Albright.

Mr. Aherne

Of course, you'll not need reminding that Aherne played Robert Browning to Katharine Cornell's Elizabeth Barrett in the stage version of the love story of these two poets.

His younger brother, Patrick Aherne, made a recent trip to Hollywood to test out for Connie Bennett's lead, but didn't fit the role.

Small David, son of Director Howard Hawks, has never been allowed to see anything but cartoon comedies.

The other day he made his first visit to a motion picture set. Howard introduced him to Joan Crawford.

"Who is she, daddy? he asked.

"Miss Crawford is an actress," explained Howard.

The youngster looked at Joan dubiously.

"You mean like Mickey Mouse?" he asked.

Hollwood's so-called jungle epics disturb George Arliss very much. The English actor is a great lover of animals. During the filming of "The King's Vacation," they had to put up a long argument to get him to okay a shot of two dogs hitched to a milk cart. In the script of his new picture, "The Adopted Father," he came upon a fishing scene. The returned script bore these words in Arliss' handwriting:

Mr. Arliss

"It is understood that no fish will be used in this shot, and no animals, whatsoever, in the picture."

Vienna to Be Topic Of Holmes Tonight

Vienna, former rich and handsome capital of the Hapsburg empire, is to be submitted by Burton Holes to his audience in Carnegie Music Hall tonight.

Beginning his illumined survey with the life and color and movement of the famous Kaerntner Strasse and the Stephens-Platz, Mr. Holmes will conduct his hearers to the various points of interest throughout the city and its picturesque environs, so that those who travel under his guidance will be given a comprehensive idea of Vienna as it is today. Next Wednesday evening Mr. Holmes will close his current Pittsburgh season with a new screen journey, "Doing Europe on a 1932 Budget."

Plays and Players -:- By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Hal Skelly, comedian with the George White company that will be seen in "Melody," in the Nixon next week, learned his trade—we mean he learned his trade. It is an axiom among actors that one never really is a trouper until a show has gone bust in his face and left him stranded. So Skelly, whose folks thought he had the makings of a priest, was a trouper within a few weeks after he ran away from St. Bess College, near Davenport, Ia., to join a musical comedy company. He was conformed as a trouper a short time later when the dog and pony circus that he next joined—as a clown—also flopped. When he did arrive back in the old home town he was one of the freaks in a side-show. Later he was the "professor" who sold the "world-famed remedy" in a medicine show. For two years he was carried on the rolls of the Boston Braves, but, as the regular first baseman remained inconsiderately healthy, he decided to quit the bench for the boards, and finally caught the eye of both producers and public in "Fiddlers Three," and has managed to hold it ever since. The Nixon box office boys will attend to seat shoppers tomorrow. "Melody" is an operetta by Edward Childs Carpenter, Sigmund Romberg and Irving Caesar.

Forty years ago today, the evening of January 25, 1893, the empire Theater, New York, was opened under the management of the late Charles Frohman. A maker of theatrical history in America, it is still in the procession. Its first attraction was "The Girl I Left Behind Me," written by the late David Belasco and Franklin Fyles. It has many memories . . . Maude Adams in "The Little Minister," the glories of the Empire Stock Company, in which Henry Miller was leading man, echoes of lines spoken by William Faversham and John Drew, of the old-timers, and Helen Hayes and Katharine Cornell, of the present. To Miss Cornell goes the honor of giving it its longest run, 370 performances of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

Only about 100 movie houses in the United States remain unwired for sound, compared to about 1,000 a year ago. . . . When Warner Brothers' "Forty-Second Street" is released in March, a special train, carrying members of the cast, will visit cities where the picture is having district premieres —Dennis King, prominent star of operetta, will appear with Laurel and Hardy in a film version of the old light opera, "Fra Diavolo"—"Cracked Ice," next film vehicle for the Marx Brothers, will go into production February 15.

MUSIC

String Symphonic Ensemble

Carnegie Lecture Hall

PROGRAM

Manfredini	Concerto Grosso
Handel	Concerto in F Major
Stillman-Kelley	Confluentia
Fischer	Suite in D Major
Sinigaglia	A Rain Song
	Etude-Caprice

The String Symphonic Ensemble gave its fourth concert in Carnegie Lecture Hall last night before an ever increasing audience. There is a growing interest in this music, for otherwise Pittsburgh has had starvation diet of chamber music during the present season.

Mr. Lissfelt

Grove's dictionary fails to give us information regarding the composer Manfredini, who makes music in the classic style. Since the management failed to send the manuscript for perusal and publishes no program notes we were all at loss for his identification. The music is fluent and pleasing, not so different from the Handel concerto which followed.

Stillman-Kelley writes an impassioned score for his "Confluentia," but why should he mute his strings when the music is bursting for expression? We could hear more of the music of Fischer (German born and a worker in Paris), for like the painting of Franz Hals, it shows the way to modernism. The two works of Sinigaglia were finely sketched and the last had to be repeated.

The ensemble played enthusiastically and Oscar DelBianco conducted.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Concert by McCormack In Mosque Tomorrow

John McCormack, tenor, will give his first recital in Pittsburgh in five years in Syria Mosque tomorrow evening. In addition to the songs of the great classic composers, his program will include a group of Irish folk songs, many being given by request. Among the favorite folk songs are "O Mary Dear" (Derry Air), with words by McCormack; "The Spanish Lady," "Little Boats," "Kitty My Love," "Smilin' Kitty O'Day," "Bless This House," "Song o' My Heart," "The Fairy Story By the Fire," "The Last Rose of Summer" and "The Little Silver Ring." The McCormack concert will be the fifth May Beegle event this season.

Broadways Of the World

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

ESPLANADE HOTEL, BERLIN, Germany.—In case you have forgotten about it, which is possibly best for both of us, I am still making motion pictures in connection with this tour. Mr. Cozine is still directing me—but the young man seems to be encountering many difficulties. The weather being what it is in this part of the world, he has much trouble finding the sun. When it finally does appear, he can't find me. It's all very hard on him.

On the other hand, Signor Romognoli, my Italian cameraman, seems to be thriving on the tour. He weighed a good 200 pounds when we left Rome and he must be nearing 240 by this time. When there is no sun, there is, of course, no work for him to do. Thus, when it's cloudy, he gains half a pound. When it rains heavily, he gains a pound. If we ever run into a severe storm, I'm afraid the guy will burst on me.

Mr. Romognoli, however, has been improving his English during his spare time. He could say nothing but "How!" for several weeks, but he has been anxious to learn more and I have been giving him some expert lessons. He knows how to employ without any effort whatsoever the words, "lous," "bum," "scram, you muzzler" and several others that I cannot quote in such a polite family journal as this.

As he uses these expressions, however, he is as innocent as a newly born babe as to their actual meanings. For, under my expert guidance, he has been taught that a "lous" is a fork, "bum" is a policeman, "scram, you muzzler" means "if you please"—and so down the line.

Mr. Romognoli has become quite proud of his ability to use these and he now employs them as often as possible in conversation. It's nothing at all for him to sit down in a restaurant and address the waiter most politely in the following fashiong:

"Regardez, garcon, Donnez-moi un lous, scram, you muzzler."

By that conglomeration, Mr. Romognoli is doing nothing more than asking for a fork in a polite fashion—and it sometimes hurts him that he cannot make himself quite clearly understood. But I tell him to keep practising and, in due time, everybody will know just what he's talking about. Especially if he ever gets to New York.

There's only one thing that worries me. Meaning quite well, Mr. Romognoli is going to step up to an English-speaking policeman some morning and call him a bum. I fear the consequences . . .

All this is by way of being an introduction to the fact that Mr. Cozine strolled into my room at an ungodly hour this morning and awakened me by asserting that the sun was out.

"What of it?" I muttered crossly. "Is that news?"

"Yes," he replied cheerfully. "In this part of the world, it most certainly is. It seems also that you are going to do some work this afternoon. Are you well insured?"

"What's that?" I cried. "Did you ask me if I were insured?"

"Exactly," he returned. "You're going out to the Berlin zoo and you're getting into a cage with a couple of South African leopards. Isn't that great?"

I peered at him suspiciously.

"Ray," I chirped, "haven't I warned you often enough to stay away from my cognac? A young fellow like you—"

"Stop talking nonsense, Mark," he interrupted, impatiently. "I'm serious, and you know it. You're getting into a cage with those leopards and we'll stage a little scene. I've got permission from the zoo and the keeper."

"That's fine," I returned. "That will help a lot. But the main thing I want to find out is whether you got permission from the leopards?"

He glared at me, began to say something—and evidently decided that it wouldn't be worth the trouble.

"I'll be back in 20 minutes," was all he muttered. "Be ready."

A fine way for a director to speak to his star! Small wonder my artistic blood sometimes boils and I am tempted to poke him in the nose. He is a little too strong for that, I imagine, but the temptation is still there. . . .

Well, I got into the cage with the aforementioned leopards. From whence my courage came and why I was ever dumb enough to do such a fool thing I cannot for the life of me tell you. All I know is that I went to the zoo and that Mr. Olsen, the keeper of the wild animals, assured me that there was very little danger.

"You're not afraid, are you?" he grinned.

"Who, me?" I said hoarsely. "Brother, I've seen tougher beasts than you have here back home in the Texas Guinan Club. Lead me to your leopards."

He led me all right. He led me right to a cage that contained two of the smelliest and most ferocious-looking animals I've ever gazed upon. Nonchalantly, Mr. Olsen opened the cage, stepped inside and told me to follow.

Meanwhile the camera was grinding—far back. Mr. Cozine was directing—still further back. I sighed, closed my eyes, breathed a farewell prayer to my insurance company and fell into the cage. The door closed.

I'd like to describe my sensations inside that cage, but I am frankly unable to do so. I'll admit I was plenty frightened, especially when one of the beasts grabbed my left leg and began to shake it playfully.

And then, cutting through the air like so many knives, I heard my director's sharp command.

"Hey, there, keeper," he cried. "Punch one of those leopards in the eye and then point to Hellinger. Let's get some action in this picture."

If ever I hated a man, it was Mr. Cozine at that moment. There I stood, as unhappy as a man in a roller coaster with his own wife. There I shivered, at any moment the unfortunate prey of savage beasts. There I shook, a great martyr to the cause of motion picture art. Just an old alma martyr. There I was, practically petrified. And there stood Mr. Cozine outside the bars, yelling for more action!

The other beasts, sensing something unusual and evidently annoyed by the lights, began a terrific racket. Lions, tigers, leopards, pumas, wildcats joined in an ever-increasing chorus of highly alarming cries. One of the leopards in my cage stood up suddenly and batted the keeper with his paw. The other one looked at me and crouched as if to spring.

That, picture or no picture, was more than enough for Hellinger. With far more nervousness than sense, I aimed a well-directed kick at the leopard, pushed open the gate, tumbled out of the cage and closed the gate behind me. The keeper followed immediately after.

"Bad business, young fellow," he muttered. "Don't you ever kick a leopard again."

"Mister," I breathed fervently, "you have my word for that."

I marched over to Mr. Cozine. There was a dangerous gleam in my eyes.

"Well, smart guy," I said. "I suppose that was bad?"

"No," he murmured, "It was okay. But you'll have to do the last part over again. The cameraman ran out of film!"

RUSSIAN TALKS TO CLUB HERE

"Technocracy and Algebra" was the subject of D. I. Vinogradoff, formerly a professor in Russia, before the University Professors' Club yesterday.

On the premise that the technocrats were no better than their figures, Vinogradoff found mathematical fallacies in two of their basic statements—first, that the productive capacity of the country is larger than all its requirements, and second, that machines have in the past decades replaced man and deprived him of work.

Although Vinogradoff believes the technocrats' reasoning is incorrect, he credits them with calling attention to many vital questions of the day.

WASH OUT YOUR K-I-D-N-E-Y-S SLEEP FINE

No More Getting Up Nights

So you feel achy all over, miserable and blue? Your head feels "crowded" your nerves quiver, you have pin-and-needle cramps—your appetite has gone and you feel weak as a cat. Don't fill your stomach with tonics or laxatives or rheumatism remedies. How can they help if it is your kidneys.

The job of the kidneys is to strain the uric acid and other poisons out of your blood. They purify your blood, that's it. Now you must not let these acids stay in the kidneys or they'll get back in the blood and poison your whole body. That's why your kidneys must pass 3 pints of "water" a day. Let them fail and you know it. Your appetite goes back on you, so does your pep, your sleep, and your nerves—your back hurts, your ankles and feet may swell up and you feel cranky and sick.

Now see what a wonderful change takes place after you start on Foley Pills. Kidney action increases at once. Out go those acids. Burning stops. Sleep is sounder, and none of this getting-up business. You feel like "somebody."

Your druggist has Foley Pills. Sells a lot of them, because most people know how good they are. Don't cost much either—but they certainly do a grand job. If they don't, your money back any time you want it.

This week-end will be an important one for boys and girls for Huckleberry Finn, that childhood hero, is coming to town.

The Clare Tree Major New York Theater Company will present "Huckleberry Finn" in the Nixon Theater Saturday morning.

Scores and scores of social registerites are planning to come to the theater with their children or their friends' children.

Among those who'll support the attraction Saturday, given under the auspices of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, will be Mrs. J. H. Hillman, Jr., Mrs. Benno Janssen, Mrs. Henry R. Rea, Mrs. O. G. Richter, Mrs. Herbert A. May, Mrs. Max Henrici, Mrs. Edward A. Woods, Mrs. James C. Rea.

To Be in Audience

Others will be Mrs. Theodore F. Smith, Mrs. B. W. Lewis, Mrs. H. Fred Mercer, Mrs. Thomas Gillespie, Mrs. Joseph H. Bialas, Mrs. John C. Ritchey.

* * *

Even if the winter days, which seem like spring days, aren't particularly eventful, we have ever so much to anticipate.

Grayson Betrothal

And most of these social anticipations are of weddings to follow the interesting list of betrothals being added to every day.

One comes from Washington, Pa., today. Mrs. Harry Scott Grayson, of Washington, announces the engagement of her daughter, Louisa Hamilton Grayson, to W. Emory Ferree, Jr., of Pittsburgh.

The bride-to-be studied at the Holton Arms School in Washington.

The vivacious Tunnell sisters, Helen and Shirley, daughters of the E. Paul Tunnells, are having a gay time down at Palm Beach, where they are guests of their aunt, Mrs. Peyton J. Van Rensselaer, their mother's sister.

Visiting In South

They were at the dinner following tennis matches Sunday, given by the John Randolph Hopkinses at Palm Beach for Lord Decies, his daughter, the Hon. Moya Beresford, and his son, the Hon. George Beresford, all of whom are Mrs. Rensselaer's house guests, too.

* * *

We seem to be ever so "lecturey" this winter, don't we? Today I know of another one, to be given by Vash Young, the author of "A Fortune to Share." He'll speak at Carnegie Music Hall Monday night at 8:15.

Lecture Monday

And what do you suppose his topic is—"Let's start over again, Pittsburgh."

His press agent says his specialty is telling folks how to get out of their own private slump.

Anna Betty Davis Is Married to O. S. Laughead

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Davis, of Northumberland street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Anna Betty Davis, and Oliver S Laughead, of Washington, Pa., which took place January 14.

Miss Marjorie Anderson and Richard Sweadner were the attendants.

The bride studied at the Principia School in St. Louis, and the bridegroom attended Cornell and is a member of Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Mt. Lebanon Music Unit's Guest Day on Friday

The first guest day of the music department of the Mt. Lebanon Women's Club will be in the home of Mrs. A. L. Schiel, Midway road, on Friday.

The opening number will be a piano solo by Mrs. Robert Vroom. A vocal sextet, composed of Mrs. Earl Cappel, Mrs. J. J. Estabrook, Mrs. E. J. Gealy, Mrs. W. Kaye Estep, Mrs. J. S. Mason and Mrs. J. E. Burke, with Mrs. Nellie Risher Roberts at the piano, will sing two numbers. Mrs. Adolph Batz will sing three German compositions. Mrs. Helen Hunt Allen will play a violin solo and Mrs. Nelle Moore Sprouls will read. The program will be closed by a chorus of 30 voices.

Ambridge Woman's Club Presenting Benefit Play

The Ambridge Woman's Club is presenting "Your Uncle Dudley," a three-act comedy, tomorrow evening in the junior high school auditorium, as a benefit for the public health fund.

The cast, under the direction of Dr. W. J. Hutchison, includes Miss Myrtle Trembley, Miss Margaret McMaster, Miss Helen McNees, Harry Calig, Robert Machesney, Miss Mary McCalister, Charles N. Reed and E. Bernard Meyer.

The clubwomen have adopted a slogan, "Help Us Help Others," for the presentation of the play, which is made possible by 125 patrons and patronesses.

Auxiliary to Medical Society Hears Baird

The January meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Allegheny Medical Society was held yesterday afternoon in the Keystone Athletic Club. George M. P. Baird, scretary of the Art Commission, discussed "Evolution of the Theater," reviewing the theater for 3,000 years.

Mrs. Isaac Davis presented the musical program, which consisted of selections by children of members, and featured Betty Holliday, soprano, accompanied by Frieda Marcus; Bernard Hanover and Barnetts Davis, piano; Janet Turner, violinist, with Marion Deuel McDade as accompanist.

Dr. McConnell to Speak At Noon Club Meeting

The Rev. Dr. Harold H. McConnell, of the Second United Presbyterian Church, Wilkinsburg, will be the speaker at the Thursday Noon Club for business women tomorrow at the First Presbyterian Church. Solos will be sung by Blanche Lyons, soprano, accompanied by Frieda Wilson.

Grove City Woman's Club Luncheon February 11

The Woman's Club of Grove City College will meet February 11 at the Food Craft Shop for luncheon and bridge, the proceeds of which will be used for the scholarship fund. The finance committee is in charge.

Dorcas Chapter, O.E.S., To Meet on Saturday

Dorcas Chapter No. 401, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold a card party at Utility Hall on Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Lily Aitken and Mrs. Minyon Meissner as joint chairmen.

Oakland Chapter, O.E.S., To Give Minstrel Show

Oakland Chapter No. 369, Order of Eastern Star, will sponsor a minstrel show Friday evening at 9 o'clock in Serbian Hall, Fifth avenue, Oakland.

Phoenix Club to Mark Anniversary With Dance

The Phoenix Club of the Y. M. H. A. will celebrate its sixth anniversary with a dance at Eddie Peyton's on Monday.

Club Women Plan Programs for Town's Needy

Having clothed their needy through Red Cross volunteer sewing and fed them through county relief, Washington, Pa., clubwomen are now looking towards their mental help by giving a series of entertainment programs. Each organization in the town is in turn presenting an evening of entertainment and tomorrow night the Current Events Club will give "An Evening in Spain"—dancing and music in costume—in the high school auditorium.

For these programs the police have contributed their protection, the Boy Scouts have done the ushering and the school board has donated the building.

Gossipy Chat

—By NANCY JANE—

Here's the first of a series on "Who's Who" in the masculine realm of Pittsburgh's "400."

Pittsburgh's two most eligible bachelors are cousins—Richard King Mellon and Paul Mellon.

They have ever so many things in common besides their cousinship—both are handsome, although they don't resemble each other; both are enthusiastic about a fox hunt, and both of them work in their fathers' bank.

And they are both friendly and approachable and without pomp, in spite of the Mellon millions. If you call either at the bank, he will be on the line in no time without an intervening interval of conversation with a staff of secretaries.

Paul Mellon is tall, broad-shouldered and distinguished. He resembles a bit his cousin, Sarah Mellon—now Mrs. Alan Magee Scaife, and Richard King Mellon's sister.

He has literary tastes, and is just out of Yale and Oxford.

His cousin, Richard Mellon, resembles a hunting English squire. After business, his chief interest is the Rolling Rock Hunt, of which he is master of fox hounds. And a horse show or races are his favorite recreation.

He's ever so popular. He's seen frequently with Louise Reed, one of Pitsburgh's most attractive and best-liked girls.

Towering, slender and black-haired Norman Allderdice is another handsome Pittsburgh bachelor.

Then there's quiet Malcolm McGiffin, who frequently entertains at theater parties—particularly on Theater Guild nights.

Two husbands in the social set who'd set any feminine heart a-flutter—Harvey Childs III and Herbert A. May.

Then there's T. M. Jones III, whose wife is on the Theater Guild committee, and the mother of three boys. He always seems to be having a better time than anyone else.

Mrs. Zangwill To Speak Here On Friday

Mrs. Israel Zangwill, widow of the noted author and said to be one of the most able speakers in the British peace movement, is to speak here Friday under auspices of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. Mrs. Zangwill is making a month's tour of the United States, speaking on "World Disarmament," having begun her tour in San Antonio early this month. Last week she attended the Cause and Cure of War conference in Washington and is now beginning her eastern visits. These will include Philadelphia, Wilkes-Barre, Erie and Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Zangwill has been a member of the executive committee of the Women's International League and treasurer of the Women's Peace Crusade, a sister society in England to the Cause and Cure of War committee in this country. She was chairman of the committee which obtained the 2,000,000 signers to the disarmament petition presented to the Geneva conference, and she organized the greatest mass meeting ever held for peace—that in Albert Hall.

The luncheon at which Mrs. Zangwill will speak on Friday is open to the public by reservation through the Congress of Clubs where it's to be held.

Wells College Club Luncheon Tomorrow

The Wells College Club will have a luncheon meeting tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Irving Wilson, of Murrayhill avenue, with Mrs. William Patterson as joint hostess.

Motion pictures taken at the cornerstone laying for MacMillen Hall at the college commencement in June will be shown.

Arnold Parent-Teacher Conference This Evening

Opening the spring season of parent-teacher conferences tonight at Arnold School, Mrs. John M. Phillips, a member of the Pittsburgh Board of Education, will lead the discussion on "Development of a Sense of Ethical Responsibility in Younger Children." Willard Mead, of the Arnold School faculty, also will speak.

Frick Training School Alumnae Bridge Feb. 18

The alumnae of the H. C. Frick Training School for Teachers will hold their annual bridge Saturday afternoon, February 18, in the College Club.

Miss Flora Mill is chairman, aided by Miss Virginia Meisel in charge of reservations; Miss Irma Schaffrit, tickets; Miss Anne Kane, Miss Ruth Stolzenbach and Mrs. Sara Davidson Penn, candy; Mrs. Betty Pettit George, Mrs. Mercedes Brandau Reichenbach, cakes, and Mrs. Niella Snyder Reese, publicity.

Mrs. Eleanor Peoples Bye is president of the Alumnae, who are giving the party to aid girls in the training school.

Bookfellows of Miami To Fete Pittsburgher

Mrs. Marie Tello Phillips-Yaegle, of Pittsburgh, will be honored on February 6, by the Miami Branch of the Bookfellows' Library Guild. Mrs. Yaegle, who is national president of the Guild, will speak, and a program of music and readings will be given, the music including songs for which she has written the words and the readings, excerpts from her published works. One of the songs was written by Mana-Zucca, who will serve as accompanist for the singer, Ruby Showers Baker.

THE WIDE SLEEVE CONTINUES A FEATURE OF THE NEW MODE

WIDE SLEEVES—the fashion success of 1932—promise to carry out their popularity through 1933. They appear in every fashion house; the newest models, made in advance of the shows, feature sleeves that are not only wide, but frankly voluminous. Many a new frock which otherwise sticks to pretty straight lines bulges out wide at the elbows or shoulders. It is a carrying-out of the current style program for slim figures—the accents placed on wide shoulders in order to make hips and waistlines look narrower.

* * *

THERE ARE two distinct types of wide sleeves—those which begin their fullness right at the shoulder line and those which do not widen until they are halfway to the elbow. The former type of sleeve appears more often on coats than it does on dresses. Any dress which has a puffed-shoulder sleeve requires a special kind of coat or wrap—one which has the same widened line that it does not crush the dress sleeve.

* * *

FOR THIS reason, the drop-shouldered dress and coat are more popular. Many designers use this line repeatedly in new 1933 costumes. Two models, sketched today, show exaggerated versions of the drop-shoulder, full-sleeve silhouette—both of them with sleeves which are tightened in close to the arm from elbow to wrist. The coat is of black broadcloth, collared with pale lynx, and has sleeves which terminate in tiny cartridge plaits; the dress, of black crepe de chine, has a detachable scarf of pale blue slightly tinged with violet.

Woodsman-Poet Preaches 'Sermon' to Council Of Jewish Women

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG.

A man of many talents came in woodsman's garb before the Council of Jewish Woman yesterday in the Y. M. and W. H. A. and preached a sermon of sorts. It was Lew Sarett, woodsman, imitator, nature lover and teacher, monologist, impersonator and philosopher. He preached of a Gentle Jew who lived 2,000 years ago and of what He practiced. He preached of the affirmations of life—books, music, home, friends, gardens, work—as opposed to the negations of the skeptic and the iconoclast.

It wasn't highbrow stuff—couldn't possibly be construed as such—but just a summing up and appreciation of the simple, homely things which, as he said, give beauty and zest and meaning to life.

Then he read some of his wild animal and nature poems, his manner of reading adding rhythmic beauty to the words—all of them original in thought. For example, there was the poem giving "the overtones of vegetables." A little later he demonstrated an unusually fine gift of histrionicism by doing several monologues of the French voyageur and the northern Indian, of whom he has been a close student and friend.

And as if all this were not enough in a demanding hour and a half, he imitated the calls of birds and animals and crowned the afternoon with the beautifully musical bedtime chant of the Indian grandmother.

St. Raphael Social Club To Give Benefit Tuesday

A card party will be held Tuesday in St. Raphael's School, Chislett street, by St. Raphael's Social Club, for the benefit of St. Vincent De Paul Society, the proceeds to be used for the needy. Bridge, eucher, 500, old maid and bingo will be played.

The following committee is in charge: The Rev. V. J. Rieland, chairman; Miss Marie and Miss Claire Boyle, Miss Marie and Miss Agnes Colton, Miss Mary Dawson, Mrs. Thelma Evrard, Miss Louise Halli, Miss Frances Kraus, Frances, Florence and Hannah McCarthy, Mrs. Loretta McCue, Miss Estelle Riley, Miss Marie and Miss Margaret Stack.

Report $23,214 Pledged In 'Y' Budget Campaign

A total of $23,214 was announced yesterday at the second report meeting in the budget campaign of the Young Women's Christian Association at Central Branch, Chatham street.

The Rev. Dr. Louis H. Evans, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, was the principal speaker; Mrs. R. D. Campbell, member of the metropolitan board of directors, presided, and Mrs. Thomas Hannah, vice chairman of women's teams, called for reports.

Reunion of Grove City Alumni Set for March 10

Graduates, former students and friends of the Grove City Alumni Association have been invited to attend the annual spring reunion which is set for March 10 in the Smithfield Grill. On the dance committee are Victor L. Baker and Mrs. Horace Thomas; ticket chairman is Victor V. Young, and the bridge committee includes Mrs. T. C. Stephens and Miss Isabelle Blyholder.

Co-operative Playhouse To Present 'Red Dust'

The "Y" Co-operative Playhouse will present its second major production of the season, "Red Dust," Saturday and Tuesday, at the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association. Miss Ruth C. Adams, of Bellevue, will have one of the leading roles.

Miss Adams

The membership list includes Miss Mathilda Meyer, Miss Betty Graham, Mrs. Walter D. Baer, Miss Virginia Lewis, Mrs. C. V. Keil, Miss Martha J. Arnold, Mrs. Irwin D. Wolf, Miss Mary Purcell, Miss Martha Beck, Miss Adelaide Lasner, Miss Katherine Emily Smith, Miss Mary L. Dickinson, Mrs. James L. Stinchcomb, Miss Mae Sweeney, Mrs. George V. Emerson, Miss Ruth Pippert, Miss Carmen Corriols.

Others are Miss Frances Heckert, Miss Blossom Lomax, Mrs. R. B. Perry, Mrs. E. D. Harvey, Miss Lydia Patterson, Mrs. J. M. Irwin, Miss Mercedes Liddell, Miss Ruth Hopkins, Mrs. Henry Scott, Mrs. Robert M. Buka, Miss La Verda Dent, Mrs. A. A. Bialas, Mrs. Ralfe Silverman, Miss Louise C. Walker and Miss Ruth M. Haverty.

Woman's Mission Group Sponsors Tech Concert

BOARD TO CONTINUE FEEDING IN SCHOOLS

POLITICS

Hands Off Schools, Vare Orders

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 25.—William H. Vare, boss of whatever constitutes the Philadelphia Republican organization in these days of political flux, has issued orders to Republican legislators from Philadelphia that they shall do nothing to interfere with the present school system in Pennsylvania. These orders are direct, and as binding as orders can be these days.

Mr. Shields

They apply to the bill of Representative Morris J. Root, of Philadelphia, which would make school boards in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh partially elective, with the appointive officials in the minority. They apply also to the suggestion that the taxing powers of the school board be taken from their present source and lodged with city councils.

This decision by Vare may be extended to apply to opposition to revision of the Edmonds Act and its automatic ratio of state assistance to local school districts. It probably will not act as a bar to any movement for a moderate reduction in the salaries of school teachers, but the intimation is that the cut will not go beyond the 10 per cent reduction already voluntarily taken by the Pittsburgh teachers.

* * *

Vare Opposes Big Salary Reductions

Some Philadelphia senators are understood to have favored a cut of 20 per cent because the Philadelphia teachers so far have not followed the lead of those in Pittsburgh toward a voluntary reduction. A few rural members have discussed 25 per cent as the basis of reduction. Vare, however, is reported to be opposed to such drastic reductions.

In view of the attitude of the Philadelphia boss, it seems assured that in this session of the Legislature there will be no ripper legislation aimed at school boards which will be successful. Indeed, Root may not even introduce his bill, which has been prepared for a week.

* * *

Leadership Stumbles On Disputed Point

Already there is evidence that the Republican leadership of this Legislature is stumbling in its approach to controversial problems. The attitude on the blue law modification bills and the dry law repealers is a case in point. It was on the plea of the organization heads that the House Law and Order Committee did not yesterday report out the blue law modifiers, but instead scheduled a public hearing for next Tuesday.

The committee is set in its minds. It will report out the bills. The House will pass them, and the result is only to delay action. But the Republican organization became perturbed when church groups objected to this haste, though formerly the organization had paid no similar heed to liberalists who had protested in previous session the failure of the committee not only to grant hearings of such subjects, but even to organize until the fag end of the season.

The organization worked out what it thought was harmony between the House and Senate, arranging a joint hearing. And from this gesture of harmony the Senate promptly retreated, slating a hearing of its own for next Wednesday.

Tuesday some senators will sit with the House members, but only unofficially, unless there is a further change of heart. And the dry law repeal question will not come up until a week from Tuesday.

* * *

Liberals Resent Delay of Program

From this clash has developed anger among some liberals, who were prepared yesterday to go ahead with what they know they are going ahead with. They saw no sense in the organization program of temporizing or endeavoring to throw dust in the eyes of the public. For the hearing will mean not a thing in changing a single vote in the committee.

The Republican organization in this session suffers from a plethora of gubernatorial candidates, or individuals or groups backing some gubernatorial aspirant. There is an open effort to be all things to all people, to carry the closed Sunday in one hand, the open Sunday in the other, water on one shoulder and alcoholic beverages on the other.

The chairmanship of the Senate Utilities Investigating Committee is another illustration. Last Sunday night Senator Thadeus Krause, of Philadelphia, was decided upon by Republican leaders for the chairmanship left vacant by the retirement of former Senator William S. Rial. Monday morning Krause still held the post, and as late as Monday afternoon he was in the driver's seat.

* * *

Democrats' Protest Keeps McClure Out

But then the organization wabbled. Vare objecting to Krause, and Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware, came to the front. He was the chairman in prospect Monday night.

Senators Roberts and Baumer, the two Democrats out of seven on the committee, raised a row, declaring that McClure, an avowed enemy of Gov. Pinchot, would paint the committee immediately as an anti-administration outfit, so the Republican organization back-tracked from that plan.

The organization hasn't changed much with the passing months. On legislative matters it is to be expected that there will be hesitancy because of the complexity and seriousness of the problems. But on minor details the organization, if there is an organization, should be able to maintain a sustained mind at least over night.

Holding Same Office For Long Time Didn't Appeal to Coolidge

CHAPTER X.

The Speaker assigned me to the Committees on Constitutional Amendments and Mercantile Affairs. During the session I helped draft and the committee reported, a bill to prevent large concerns from selling at a lower price in one locality than they did in others, for the purpose of injuring their competitor. This seemed to me an unfair trade practice that should be abolished. We secured the passage of the bill in the House, but the Senate rewrote it in such a way that it finally failed. I also supported a resolution favoring the direct election of United States Senators and another providing for woman suffrage. These measures did not have the approbation of the conservative element of my party, but I had all the assurance of youth and ignorance in supporting them, and later I saw them all become the law.

The next year I was re-elected, but in running against a man who had a strong hold on some of the Republican wards, my vote was cut down. Serving on the Judiciary Committee, which I wanted because I felt it would assist me in my profession, I became much interested in modifying the law so that an injunction could not be issued in a labor dispute to prevent one person seeking by argument to induce another to leave his employer. The bill failed. While I think it had merit, in later years I came to see that what was of real importance to the wage earners was not how they might conduct a quarrel with their employers, but how the business of the country might be so organized as to insure steady employment at a fair rate of pay. If that were done there would be no occason for a quarrel, and if it were not done a quarrel would do no one any good.

Candidate for Mayor

The work in the general court was fascinating, both from its nature and from the companionship with able and interesting men, but it took five days each week for nearly six months, so that I thought I had secured about all the benefit I could by serving two terms and declined again to be a candidate. Another boy had been given into our keeping April 13 who was named Calvin, so I had all the more reason for staying at home.

My law office took all my attention. I never had a retainer from any one, so my income always seemed precarious, but a practice which was general in its nature kept coming to me. In June of 1909 I went to Phoenix, Ariz., to hold a corporation meeting. It was the first I had seen of the West. The great possibilities of the region were apparent, and the enthusiasm of the people was inspiring. It told me that our country was sure to be a success.

For two years Northampton had elected a Democrat to be mayor. He was a very substantial businessman, who has since been my landlord for a long period. He was to retire, and the Republicans were anxious to elect his successor. At a party conference it was determined to ask me to run and I accepted the opportunity, thinking the honor would be one that would please my father, advance me in my profession, and enable me to be of some public service. It was a local office, not requiring enough time to interfere seriously with my own work.

Ready for Opportunities

Without in any way being conscious of what I was doing I then became committed to a course that was to make me the President of the Senate of Massachusetts and of the Senate of the United States, the second officer of the commonwealth and the country, and the chief executive of a city, a state and a nation. I did not plan for it but it came. I tried to treat people as they treated me, which was much better than my deserts, in accordance with the precept of the master poet. By my studies and my course of life I meant to be ready to take advantage of opportunities. I was ready, from the time the Justices named me the Clerk of the Courts until my party nominated me for President.

Ever since I was in Amherst College I have remembered how Garman told his class in philosophy that if they would go along with events and have the courage and industry to hold to the main stream, without being washed ashore by the immaterial cross currents, they would some day be men of power. He meant that we should try to guide ourselves by general principles and not get lost in particulars. That may sound like mysticism, but it is only the mysticism that envelopes every great truth. One of the greatset mysteries in the world is the

SQUIRREL HILL GIRL, ESCORT HELD UP

Couple Robbed in Auto; Bandit Gang Visits Store, Gas Station

Two bandits held up Miss Jennie Kutkowski, of 2024 Beechwood boulevard, and John Coll, of 18 North Sixth street, Duquesne, as they sat in an automobile in Beechwood boulevard at Shaw avenue, shortly after midnight.

The bandits stopped their automobile behind Coll's car, leaped out and pointed revolvers at the couple. The girl surrendered her purse valued at $5 which contained 85 cents. Coll told the bandits he had no money and was forced to hand over his automobile keys, police said. The bandits then drove away in their machine, which bore Ohio license plates.

Two well-dressed gunmen with an accomplice for a chauffeur obtained $29 in two holdups in the East End in 15 minutes last night.

After robbing Max Wolff, a grocer at 1407 North St. Clair street, of $9 in his store, they sped to the Standard Service Station at Center and Negley avenues and held up A. M. Matthews, of 432 Biddle street, Wilkinsburg, the attendant. They rifled the cash register of $20 and fled.

A man and a woman who "switched" rings in the S. Mallin jewelry store, 729 East Ohio street, last night, making off with a ring valued at $330, were being sought by police today. The couple entered and asked to see a tray of rings, police said. After a lengthy examination they left without making a purchase and a short time later Mallin found a cheap imitation diamond ring among other gems in the tray, police said.

$1.50 'DOLE' DUE JOBLESS MEN

Single unemployed men in Allegheny County are entitled to receive $1.50 relief a week. Announcement to that effect was made yesterday by Samuel E. Claney, director of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, to a committee of the Unemployed Council.

Claney emphasized that the term "single men" applied only to those maintaining a room by themselves. Nevertheless, this move, approved last Wednesday, was a partial recognition of one of the demands made by the Unemployed Council more than a week ago.

The committee remained closeted with Claney more than two hours arguing other demands to no effect while a crowd of some 50 unemployed waited in the Emergency Association lobby under supervision of four policemen.

OLIVER TO HEAD RELIEF HERE

HARRISBURG, Jan. 25.—A. K. Oliver, active in welfare work and civic affairs in Pittsburgh, this afternoon will be named chairman of the Allegheny County branch of the State Emergency Relief Board. Oliver will succeed Senator Frank J. Harris, who has resigned and who suggested Oliver as his successor.

Harris' resignation was not brought about over any objection to the commissary plan of furnishing state relief to the needy, which is to be expanded, but was due to the pressure of other business. Oliver has not been sounded as to his attitude toward the commissaries, according to the understanding here.

Westminster Head To Attend Meeting

The Rev. Dr. Robert F. Galbreath, president of Westminster College, with Prof. H. J. Brennan and A. A. McDonald, will attend a meeting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. John McBride in Ben Avon tomorrow, when parents of high school seniors and alumni of the college will discuss college plans.

Friday morning Dr. Galbreath will speak at the Ben Avon High School assembly, and in the evening will deliver the commencement address for the mid-year class at Crafton High School.

FARM LEADERS SEE REVOLT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Warning of revolution in the farm belt unless Congress enacts aid for agriculture was served on a Senate committee today by heads of two big farm organizations as hearings opened on the domestic allotment price-boosting measure.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said:

"Unless something is done for the American farmer we will have revolution in the countryside in less than 12 months."

John A. Simpson, president of the Farmers' Union, declared:

"The biggest and finest crop of revolutions you ever saw are sprouting all over this country right now."

O'Neal indorsed the allotment bill passed by the House, although conceding it might be "simplified." Simpson urged two amendments. One would make cost of production the basis for fixing the price the farmer would receive for his share of domestic consumption, rather than the prewar level.

COUNCIL HOLDS PARLEY OVER FUNDS

Garland Announces Funds Will Be Provided

There will be no interruption in the feeding of hungry children in the Pittsburgh schools, according to an announcement made today by Councilman Robert Garland following a conference between members of the Board of Publication, the Allegheny County Emergency Association and City Council.

Who will furnish the money was not revealed.

The school board voted yesterday to continue the feeding with school funds until the controversy on who will provide the appropriation has been settled.

$100,000 ASKED CITY

There was no indication on what will happen to the request for a $100,000 appropriation from the city.

Garland said:

"The Emergency Association, Council and the school board have agreed to co-operate and have taken measures to assure that sufficient funds will be provided."

About 8,000 school children are being fed. The school board had originally decided to stop this feeding February 1, but voted yesterday to continue to buy the food during the negotiations with city and state.

URGE HOME AS PLACE

The Emergency Association has taken the position that the feeding should be done in the home and has proposed that school officials give the association names and addresses of undernourished pupils.

The school board had asked Council to furnish $100,000 for the program, but Council failed to act when emergency leaders claimed the responsibility. School officials said numerous cases turned over to the Emergency Association and the welfare agencies in November have not yet been cleared, due to the great increase in relief demand.

School board members made it clear that their action in continuing the feeding is only temporary during negotiations for city and state help. The legality of the board providing the funds had been questioned.

COUNCIL ACTION BALKED

In City Council yesterday Councilman Robert Garland made an attempt to call out of finance committee the appropriation bill which, if passed, will give the school board $100,000 of city bond relief funds for the work.

Councilman P. J. McArdle opposed Garland, saying that the joint committee should be called into another session before Council acts. McArdle succeeded in having a motion passed calling the joint committee together today.

Councilman Garland indicated yesterday that there is little possibility of the city getting money from the state to feed the children.

NEELY FREED IN VOTE CASE

Attorney Howard Neely, Fourth Ward Republican chairman, today stood acquitted of obtaining tax receipts for 1931 elections illegally. The verdict was directed by the court and the jury placed the costs on the county in its formal finding this morning.

By his own admission, Assistant District Attorney James Geltz could not bring into the trial, which ended yesterday, sufficient evidence to link Neely with the purchase of more than 4,000 receipts distributed in his ward.

Arthur G. Drumm, tax clerk in the County Treasurer's office at the time of the purchases, produced records to show payment of large blocks of taxes on orders from the taxpayers in the Fourth Ward. The orders, Drumm testified, named Neely as agent for the taxpayers and records showed Neely collected the receipts.

Drumm, however, failed to identify specific receipts as having been paid for by Neely.

Great Experts Hope for 2-Way Explanations

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Lloyd George says that only Mussolini and Stalin know what's wrong with the world. And we don't speak either language.

We have our choice of two worlds. This and the next. We'll take this and try to postpone the other.

The trouble with this old sunkissed apple is efficiency experts. A couple of guys are smart enough to know it all and too dumb to keep it a secret.

You can't even build a dog house these days without blueprints. We heard a Harvard professor explain everything the other night in Harrisburg. It was like doing a jig-saw puzzle on camel back.

His solution of the problem was the language of flowers in the original sanskrit. Like all experts he rushed into a burning building to rescue a redhot stove.

Too many Einsteins and Scotts. They're the boys who tell you things hoping you will understand 'em and explain 'em back to them.

Flier Levine Given Suspended Sentence

MINEOLA, N. Y., Jan. 25.—(Universal.)—Charles A. Levine, first trans-Atlantic air passenger, was given a suspended sentence in Nassau County Court yesterday on a charge of violating the workmen's compensation act. The case was the result of an accident at Roosevelt Field in 1930, when Helmut Kohlt was killed by the propeller of a plane owned by the Columbia Air Lines, of which Levine was president. The widow was awarded $8,811.38 compensation, and Levine was accused of failing to carry liability insurance for his employes.

GIRL RESCUES MAN IN FIRE

Fire which followed a mysterious explosion at 113 De Soto street today, caused injuries to one man, damaged a three-story rooming house and routed a family of five from the dwelling adjoining.

H. D. Leonard, proprietor of the rooming house, was burned seriously. He was found, his clothing ablaze, running downstairs by Miss Edith Wolfred, 20, a roomer, who extinguished the flames.

Leonard's nephew, Anthony Leonard, 19, trapped by the flames on the third floor, climbed to the roof and made his way across housetops to a telephone pole half a square away and slid down it to a fire alarm box to send in an alarm.

Leonard, according to occupants of the house, was in his bedroom at the rear of the third floor. There came the sound of the blast and Leonard's screams. Miss Wolfred, eating breakfast in the kitchen, ran into the hall to find Leonard stumbling down the stairs with his clothing in flames. She grabbed a rug and threw it around him and then assisted him to the street. He was taken to Montefiore Hospital.

Bar Liars, Smokers At Old Ladies' Home

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Liars, smokers and users of profane language were barred from "an old ladies' home" and from a home for elderly couples under the terms of the two wills of Mary Leonard, who bequeathed $300,000 to a fund to establish the homes.

Three relatives asked today to be named administrators of the estate of Mrs. Leonard, who was 76 when she died recently.

Best Guernsey Herd At Harrisburg Exhibition

For the second time in seven years the Farm Hill Dairy, of Sewickley, owned by Mrs. Henry R. Rea, has won first honors at the state farm show in Harrisburg for the best Guernsey herd. Four times during the same period the herd has won first place in the county show.

One of the cows, Ringdale III of La Mare, imported from the Island of Guernsey, produces 70 pounds of milk a day. During December she gave more than a ton of milk.

The herd of 16 cows produced 8,893 pounds of milk and 449 pounds of butterfat during the past year to capture the record.

The dairy is run commercially. Each day more than 105 quarts of milk is delivered to Emsworth and Sewickley residents.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 25.

To the editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, this is not only the lamest lame duck Congress, but it's our last lame duck Congress. States stayed up all night in order to be able to ratify it, and here it was turned down by Congress six years in a row. But we got to give the old Senate credit. They passed it every year, so quit knocking the Senate. They were six years ahead of the House. Give the Senate a great big hand. If the House had followed out the peoples' wish like the Senate did, this session of Congress, which is being held now just for amusement's sake, would not have been held, and we would have been just three months nearer prosperity, or posterity, or whatever it is we are headed for.

2 BLONDES, MAN FACE QUIZ IN MURDER LINKED TO RUM

HOLD BRADDOCK VICTIM SOUGHT RACKET 'CUT'

County detectives today were to question two women described as blondes in connection with the "ride" slaying of Sam Wilson, 38, Braddock butcher, whose bullet-riddled body was found in Hangman's Hollow, Penn Township, yesterday.

According to detectives, Wilson met the two women about three months ago and for some time was attentive to them. Later, it is said, he threatened to cease his attentions to one of them.

Yesterday officers committed Walter Nicholson, 35, of John street, Braddock, to jail on a District Attorney's detainer for questioning in Wilson's alleged efforts to cut into the liquor racket.

County Detective John Burke said Wilson had told a friend the night before he was killed that he had money and needed only an automobile to get started in the racket. Burke also said Wilson had been in the liquor and sugar racket previously in Detroit.

The body of Wilson, shot and slashed, was identified at the morgue by his brother, Oscar, with whom he conducted a meat market at 874 Braddock avenue, Braddock.

BARTER PLANS TO BE PUT UP TO MERCHANTS

The Barter Association of Pennsylvania, organized by Chartiers Valley businessmen to relieve unemployment in the district, and designed to use scrip in trade instead of currency, gained momentum last night.

A scheduled meeting attracted a crowd that filled the rooms of the West End Board of Trade, and suggestions from merchants and unemployed workmen were heard.

A committee of 12 was appointed by the temporary president, Howard W. Miller, to canvass the district for merchants willing to trade on a scrip basis.

Names and addresses of all present were listed with the work or merchandise they would barter for their needs.

L. D. McMichaels, an engineer, of the Columbia Bank Building, described the plan as operated in other communities. He suggested a clearing house where the members could list their needs and the commodities they have to exchange.

A suggestion was made for a proposal to farmers to obtain their products in exchange for labor or commodities.

Businessmen declared they would willingly accept scrip for their wares if wholesalers would take it from them. When the organization begins functioning it will reach into wholesale fields, Miller predicted.

Officers of the organization are, besides Miller, Max Applebaum, vice president; Clark Koch, secretary-treasurer, and William H. Bell.

The temporary committee appointed last night includes Miller, Charles A. Shaner, Jr., Applebaum, T. Parke Hershberger, John Kertes, James T. Fox, Harry W. Wohlwend, L. Buka and Arthur Banks.

Communities represented included Crafton, West End, McKees Rocks and Elliott.

FORD SUBPENA TRUCE CALLED

DETROIT, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—An armistice has been declared by Judge Guy A. Miller in the legal battle to bring about the appearance of Henry Ford as a witness in a law suit. At the end of the armistice Saturday Judge Miller will rule of the validity of the subpena served on Ford.

Counsel for Ford and for the Sweeten Automobile Company, of Philadelphia, which seeks compel Ford to testify, have until then to uncover more aspects of the law bearing on the case.

The suit, in which the Sweeten company asks $227,000 damages as an outgrowth of the purchase of the Lincoln Motor Company by the Ford Motor Company, has been in the courts for several years. It was revived recently when Wilfred C. Leland, Jr., grandson of the Lincoln Motor Company's founder, succeeded in serving the subpena on Ford after sheriff's officers had pronounced it an impossible achievement.

KISSING MATE WINS VERDICT

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Mrs. Marie Wininger, pretty young married woman who was "trapped" kissing her own husband by a private detective employed by another man's suspicious wife, today was awarded $100 damages by a jury in Superior Court here from the detective agency which shadowed the wrong husband.

Mrs. Wininger sued for $10,000 damages.

The agency was employed by Mrs. Hamilton to shadow her husband. Mrs. Hamilton charged she received voluminous reports that her husband was kissing Mrs. Wininger daily in the lobby of a downtown office building. When she acted on the reports she discovered that the man Mrs. Wininger had been kissing was Mr. Wininger, Mrs. Wininger did not even know Mr. Hamilton.

Mrs. Hamilton also has a suit for $3,000 damages pending against the detective agency.

Free Beer Prize For Biggest Liar 65 Years Ago

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 25.—Twenty barrels of lager beer go free to the man who can find a bigger liar than the former engineer at the old Smith brewery. This proposition was unearthed in the cornerstone of the brewery, laid 65 years ago. Workmen wrecking the building opened the copper box with a canopener. Newspapers found in the box flayed Secretary of the Treasury John Sherman for running up the national debt to 80 millions.

TROLLEYS SHOW SMALLER LOSS

Pittsburgh Railways Company earnings, although lower in the first two weeks in January than in the same period last year, have recently shown a steadier tendency, part of which the company attributes to a temporary turning away from the more expensive automobile transportation.

Passenger earnings of the railways for the first two weeks in January, 1933, amounted to $450,000 against $560,000 in the same period last year, a decrease of 19.6 per cent.

The decline in earnings of the last few years apparently reached its peak in July, 1932. The company has reduced its operating expenses by the extension of one-man cars and speeding up schedules on some lines.

Several years ago the company defaulted on the payment of certain fees and licenses to the city because its earnings were not more than meeting fixed charges. Since that time the net earnings have fallen short of the amount necessary to meet bond interest.

Last June the company eliminated the weekly pass, and while there has been no striking pick-up in revenues since that time, the decline has not been as rapid.

NURSE REGAINS MAYVIEW JOB

Mrs. Henrietta Y. Quigg, dismissed as chief of registered nurses in the Mayview Home and Hospital because her husband, Dennis, is also on the Mayview payroll, is to be reinstated.

Council, during its recent budget sessions, declared itself opposed to the practice of the city employing a man and wife. Mrs. Quigg was among several Mayview employes ousted under Council's new policy.

The Kline majority in Council yesterday moved to reinstate Mrs. Quigg despite vigorous objections from the other members.

Councilmen Robert Garland and P. J. McArdle held that it would not be impossible to obtain another qualified woman to take Mrs. Quigg's position. Councilman Charles H. Anderson supported Garland and McArdle.

Dr. James S. Hammers, superintendent of Mayview, had recommended the reinstatement of Mrs. Quigg.

HIGH STUDENTS GRADUATING

Midyear commencement exercises will be held by 11 high schools, seven junior high schools and the Frick Training School this week and next. South and Fifth Avenue High schools held their exercises last night.

Other high school commencements are Oliver, tonight; Allderdice, Carrick and Langley, tomorrow; Allegheny and Perry, Friday; Schenley, Monday, and Business, Peabody, South Hills and Westinghouse, Tuesday.

Junior high school commencements are Herron Hill, tonight; Latimer, tomorrow; Gladstone, Knoxville and Liberty, Friday; Overbrook, Monday, and Baxter, next Wednesday.

Frick Training School and Crafton High will have their graduations Friday.

AUTO, TROLLEY CRASH, 1 DEAD

One man was dead today and another reported in a serious condition in St. Joseph's Hospital from injuries suffered when their automobile collided with a street car on the South Twenty-second Street Bridge last night, according to the Coroner's report.

Felix Dzikowski, 60, of 273 Dunseith street, died in the hospital from a fractured skull two hours after the crash. Herman Slain, of 2563 Aliquippa street, driver of the machine, suffered a probable fracture of the skull and bruises, deputy coroners said.

Injured when the automobile in which they were riding collided with another car in Ridge avenue, near Irwin avenue, last night, Hettie Ollman, 19, and Clifford C. Buckingham, 50, of Chicago, Ill., were in Presbyterian Hospital today. They were riding in a machine driven by F. J. Wharton, of 533 Southern avenue, who suffered bruises, police said. H. E. Carothers, of R. D. No. 7, Bellevue, driver of the other car, was injured slightly and treated at the hospital. The drivers were arrested and later released on $1,000 bonds each.

SQUIRREL HILL HUSBAND SUES

Herman Heymann, 6323 Darlington road, has filed a divorce suit against Mrs. Blanche Heymann, 325 Melwood street, charging cruel and barbarous treatment.

Divorce suits also were filed by William L. Farrish against Elizabeth Farrish, David M. Dittman against Sarah E. Dittman, Sanford T. Griffin against Thelma Griffin, Flora M. Martine against Frank J. Martine, Mary Kraksun against Andrew Kraksun, George Doemling against Catherine Doemling and Nellie Kiley against Harold J. Kiley.

Divorces were granted to Edythe G. Campbell from William G. Campbell and to Roberta McCrea Prothater from Sidney Prothater.

SCARE CAUSED BY LAZY AKRON

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—The Navy's dirigible, the Akron, mightiest in the world, floated lazily over Philadelphia today to boost a local "cleanup" campaign, but not before it had given hundreds of residents in adjoining New Jersey towns a real scare. They noticed several of the giant motors were idle while the craft drifted at an extremely low altitude.

Scores rushed to their homes to telephone officials at the Lakehurst hangar that the craft was in danger.

Navy officers explained it all with a laugh. They said:

"The crew was just killing a little time."

League of Nations Advocate to Speak

Dr. Alden G. Alley, representing the League of Nations Association of New York, will speak on "What Is Happening in Europe and What It Means to America" at the Westinghouse Club, Wilkinsburg, tonight.

Dr. Alley is professor of history at Dana College, Newark, N. J. Since the war he has spent a portion of every year abroad in the study of international problems.

111th Veterans Set Election for Tonight

Induction of officers for 1933 will mark the meeting tonight in Room 314, Courthouse, of the 111th Infantry Veterans' Association.

Those to take office are: Commander, Timothy J. Regan; vice commanders, Harry Newlin, Herman Strasser; adjutant, William G. Blough; treasurer, John M. Kelly; historian, Gordon Clawson; publicity chairman, Fred S. Wertenbach. The retiring commander is George V. Murray.

School Board Refers Job Clinic Proposal

A plan to transfer the junior employment bureau of the Board of Education to an occupational clinic to aid unemployed men to find a place in business and industry has been referred by the Board of Education to its committee on finance and administration.

Half of the expense of the clinic would be borne by the school district and the rest by outside sources.

Schools Save $700 In Lamp Purchases

The contract for light globes for the school district has been awarded by the Board of Public Education to the Hygrade Sylvania Corporation. The school board has joined with the state in making the purchase, saving approximately $700 in discounts as compared with the former plan.

Community Club Installs Officers

Officers were installed at a meeting of the Seventh Ward Community Club in the Shakespeare School last night. They were: President, George J. Porter; vice president, William J. L. Wilcox; treasurer, Sam Allen; secretary, Mary C. Foley, and delegate to the Allied Board of Trade, Arch W. Loney.

An entertainment to benefit the needy of the Seventh Ward will be held in McDougal's Hall, East Liberty, February 22.

Pilot Injured In Plane Crash

Forced down by engine trouble near Elizabeth, Robert Hinkle, 27, Philadelphia plane pilot, en route to Oklahoma, suffered a broken nose when the plane crashed in an attempted takeoff yesterday.

The plane, described by Bettis Airport officials as an antiquated racing ship, had been sold to an Oklahoma purchaser and Hinkle engaged to fly the craft to that state.

Kansas City Bank Fails to Open Doors

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The Pioneer Trust Company of Kansas City did not open today, and its affairs were placed in the hands of the State Banking Department by the directors. The 30-year-old financial institution had deposits of $2,500,000.

Georgia Woman Dies As Tornado Rages

QUITMAN, Ga., Jan. 25.—(INS.)—A tornado today killed one person, injured several others and caused serious property damage.

Mrs. Warren Cone, of Barwick, was crushed to death beneath timbers of her home. The twister struck after an all-night rain.

Burns Cause Death Of Aged Woman

Mrs. Elizabeth Triplett, 70, of 16 Carver street, died last night in Pittsburgh Hospital from burns suffered when her nightgown ignited from a gas stove in her home January 18, according to the Coroner's report.

Stranded Steamer Located, 250 Safe

TOKIO, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—In distress since January 12, the Soviet steamer Sakhalin was found today 200 kilometers off a point on the seacoast where the OHA Radio Station is situated.

Advices said the 250 members of the crew and passengers were well and expected to proceed to Vladivostok.

Grandson Joins John D. in South

ORMOND, Fla., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Lawrence R. Rockefeller, son of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is here to visit his grandfather. Young Rockefeller was said to be recovering from a slight cold and did not join his grandfather in the latter's customary golf game.

TWO MORE HELD IN ARSON QUIZ

Held in the Mercer County Jail today in connection with a fire which destroyed the Mercer County farmhouse of Florence Brunner, Pittsburgh policeman, were William Pletcher, 33, and Marcell Williamson, 23, caretakers.

The two were arrested yesterday, a short time after the arrest of Brunner and Clarence Getz in connection with an alleged arson plot through which a $6,000 insurance policy is alleged to have been collected. Brunner and Getz, arrested here, are being held in the state police barracks at Butler.

VAPOR KILLS "COLD" GERMS

UNBIASED tests by a prominent medical research laboratory prove that the vapor of a single drop of Vapex kills dense colonies of germs present in head-colds. In exactly similar tests, other inhalants (often offered as substitutes for Vapex) were shown to be greatly inferior in germ-killing power.

Many cheaper imitations of Vapex are said to be "just as good." But Science proves they are not. Vapex has a remarkable germ-killing power. This is the extra value that Vapex brings you at very little extra cost. One bottle brings months of relief from the distress of head-colds.

Mrs. Hurley Writes Song To Southwest Homeland

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. Patrick Jay Hurley, wife of the Secretary of War, today became a candidate for "Tin Pan Alley" fame with the announcement that she has written words and music to a song, "My Homeland," soon to be published.

The song is dedicated to the great Southwest, her adopted homeland since her marriage to Secretary Hurley in 1919. Mrs. Hurley is the daughter of Admiral Henry B. Wilson, retired, and Mrs. Wilson.

She has played the piano and improvised music for years, but had never written formal music until John Charles Thomas, the American baritone, persuaded her to arrange the air for her poem, "My Homeland."

The words are:

"My homeland, I hear you calling to me,
Across the ranges so far away
Where the mighty streams are flowing,
Giving life and hope to the desert gray.

The hills and fields of my own land,
The vivid shadows, the clear moonlight,
The plain, like a mighty ocean,
Meeting the sky in the starry night.

Take me home to the scenes of my childhood,
Let me sleep with the heavens for my tent,
I will ride my painted horse o'er the prairie,
My longing heart shall be content.

Take me home to the land I love the best,
Where dreams come true and I long to be,
God grant that my spirit there may rest,
When my work is o'er and my soul is free."

ABORTING a Cold

(with lemon juice)

It's just a waste of time taking a cold remedy that can only relieve. To end your cold, abort it. The lemon juice treatment will do it. Squeeze two full-size lemons in a large glass of very hot water and drink without sugar. First, take three tablets of Pape's cold compound an hour apart. This clears the head, dries the nasal passages, reduces any fever. The lemon juice then drives all cold symptoms right out of the system. Bedtime is best. This treatment will abort, the worst cold, overnight. One cold compound tablet will check a cold at any time, for several hours; then when night comes you can get rid of it by abortion. Any druggist has Pape's cold compound. It's perfectly safe. Try it, and you'll never go back to half-way remedies.

BLUE MONDAY LOOKS BRIGHTER NOW —— by C.A. Voight

WHAT'S WRONG, MARIAN? CAN'T YOU SLEEP?
IT'S MY BACK AGAIN FROM ALL THE SCRUBBING I DID TODAY. OH, HOW I HATE WASHDAY!
THERE OUGHT TO BE AN EASIER, MORE MODERN WAY TO WASH CLOTHES THAN SCRUBBING THEM AGAINST A BOARD
IT'S THE ONLY WAY I KNOW TO GET THEM CLEAN AND WHITE
NEXT MORNING
LOOK, MARIAN — HERE'S A WOMAN WHO SAYS SHE GETS SNOWY WASHES WITHOUT SCRUBBING. SHE LIVES RIGHT DOWN THE STREET
LET ME READ IT
LISTEN, DEAR! SHE SAYS, "I JUST SOAK THE WASH IN RINSO SUDS AND THE DIRT FLOATS OUT." I MUST TRY RINSO
NEXT WASHDAY
THIS IS THE SNOWIEST WASH I EVER SAW — AND I DIDN'T SCRUB OR BOIL! NO MORE HARD-WORK WASHDAYS FOR ME NOW — THANKS TO RINSO
I SEE YOU'RE USING RINSO FOR DISHES, TOO
YES, AND IT'S MARVELOUS! IT SAVES LOTS OF WORK — AND IT'S EASY ON MY HANDS
Rinso

"Surprising how much it does," says Mrs. F. J. Shodt of Erie, Pa.

I WAS interested to see how much work a big box of Rinso would do; so I kept a record. Besides doing two large washings for my family of six, I scrubbed the floors three times and did the dishes several times. Here's my list of wash:

2 bedspreads	95 handkerchiefs	6 pairs socks
22 face cloths	4 children's nightclothes	14 pieces underwear
12 napkins	8 pairs children's stockings	6 aprons
12 pillow cases	4 pieces children's underwear	13 house-dresses
6 sheets	2 nightshirts	6 nightgowns
6 table-cloths	4 pairs pajamas
41 towels	22 shirts

PRICE OF MILK MAY ADVANCE CENT HERE

Independent milk producers were in the process of organizing a new co-operative group as a price conference with dealers in the Mayfair Hotel today indicated a possible retail price rise of one cent, effective February 1.

The independents, temporarily organized as the Western Pennsylvania Milk Producers' Association, were sitting in the conference with the Dairymen's Co-operative Sales Association, which heretofore met only with dealers using its products. Producers report that independent dealers have agreed with the organized dealers in supporting a price offer.

TERMS SUBMITTED

The terms already submitted to producers are based on the stipulation of raising the retail milk price from the present 8 cents to 9 cents, it is reported. The new price paid producers would be $1.55 per hundredweight for grade A-1 milk, as against the present $1.30, less 30 cents a hundredweight for hauling. Prices on grade A-2 would remain at $1.15 and surplus at 84 cents, both minus hauling.

The independent producers have units organizing in eight counties. They will be represented in the conference by President J. B. Henderson, of Washington County, as chairman; A. C. Marburger, Butler County; Albert Craig, Allegheny; C. I. Davidson, Butler; Elmer Pflugh, Beaver; J. Creiyton, Washington, and Mr. Clovis, Washington. Besides these counties, the independents are organized in Westmoreland, Indiana, Lawrence and Crawford.

POLICY STUDIED

Plans for the operating policy of the new co-operative group are being studied by the executive committee. Contemplated steps are co-operation with the Dairymen's Co-operative Sales Association, many members of which are reported in the independent group; substitution of a pool price for the present basic surplus price; handling and disposal of surplus through its own plant; provision for the association to collect for its members, guaranteeing payments; a limit on the price spread between what producers receive and the retail sales price, and the seeking of contracts with independent dealers.

Grieving for Wife, Man Dies in Home

Grief over the death of his wife five weeks ago today was believed by friends to have hastened the death of August W. Kreil, 70, veteran showman and dance hall operator, yesterday in his home, 47 Claus avenue.

He was found dead by a friend, Joseph Ritter, 508 Warrington avenue, to whom he had recently written a letter inviting Ritter to visit him. Death was attributed to heart disease.

Broadcasters Hire Baker as Counsel

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Appointment of Newton D. Baker as counsel for the broadcasting industry in matters arising out of the recent license agreement with the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, was announced today by Alfred J. McCosker, president of the National Association of Broadcasters.

SLEEP EXPERT URGES DARK BEDROOM

Does your bedroom have heavy, dark drapes over the windows; black wallpaper, dark and heavy velour bedspread?

If it doesn't, it's all wrong and you are losing valuable sleep units, according to Dr. Donald A. Laird, director of the psychological laboratory, Colgate University. Dr. Laird is an authority on sleep. He is appearing today in two lectures open to the public at Boggs & Buhl's.

Dr. Laird has devoted much time to the study of sleep in the past few years and he is of the opinion that most people either do not get enough sleep or, due to disturbances to the subconcious mind, are not getting the full benefit of the hours spent in slumber.

Decorations, layout of the furniture and noise which could be eliminated are some of the contributory causes to restless slumber, according to the eminent psychologist. He declares, contrary to popular belief, the bedroom should be papered in black rather than gay, light colors.

As an example of the perfect sleeping room, Dr. Laird described his own chambers in Hamilton, N. Y. He said:

"Black wall paper faintly figured; heavy, dark green velour drapes over the windows and a turquoise velour covering on the bed—these are soothing, color and noise absorbing. For decoration, I have a plaster bust of "Solitude" which is restful to the eye, and two pictures, done for me by Pickerings. One is a restful glimpse of a beautiful young lady going to sleep with the moon peeking over her shoulder and the other a picture of the same young lady arising in the morning. They are restful and just colorful enough to break the monotony of black wall paper."

One of the commonest causes of fatigue today, Dr. Laird said, was unemployment.

EPISCOPALIANS ELECTING HERE

Election of officers occupied this morning's session of the sixty-eighth annual convention of the Episcopal Diocese of Pittsburgh, which opened yesterday in Trinity Cathedral. The principal speaker was the Rev. Charles Collett, of the field department of the National Council. Miscellaneous business was transacted at the business session, and this evening a dinner will be given in McCreery's in honor of Bishop Alexander Mann.

At yesterday's sessions reductions totaling between 15 and 20 per cent of last year's figures were made in the 1933 budget which was adopted.

At the close of the business sessions Bishop Mann was honored at a reception in the cathedral in recognition of the tenth anniversary of his episcopate. Attending were Bishop Cameron J. Davis, of Western New York, a boyhood friend of Bishop Mann, and Bishop John C. Ward, of Erie. A festival was held in Bishop Mann's honor last night, at which Bishop Davis was the principal speaker.

The Rev. Thomas J. Bigham was elected secretary of the convention.

Forbid Dangerous Play, Parents Told

Following the injury of three children riding on the rear of a street car in the Hill district Monday night, the Passavant Hospital has appealed to parents to warn their children against such dangerous play. Sister Pretzlaff, superintendent, said:

"If parents realized the dangers children face in catching rides on street cars or trucks, they would insist that they keep off."

Air Impure Even At Pole, Says Expert

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Take it from E. E. Moultrop, chief of the Bureau of Smoke Regulation in Pittsburgh, "not even the North Pole is free from air pollution." He told the Engineers' Club here:

"Neither the North Pole, nor even the middle of the ocean, is free from a certain amount of pollution. Workers in modern buildings breathe purer air than is to be found outdoors."

'Trade' Machine Yields Harvest Of Nickels

STEUBENVILLE, O., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Imagine the embarrassment of P. S. Nelson.

Charged with operating a gambling device, he protested yesterday that the slot machine was nothing but a trade machine and asserted it yielded no profit in gaming.

An arresting officer, his veracity at stake, put a nickel in the slot. A stream of nickels flowed out. Then Nelson pleaded guilty.

DEATH FIRE QUIZ TURNS HERE

Prosecuting Attorney Frank J. Cullitan and Director of Safety Frank T. Merrick, of Cleveland, planned to go to Harrisburg today to seek the temporary release of Abe Redlich, serving a jail sentence in Beaver County on an arson charge, and L. J. Kamons, held in the penitentiary on a similar charge, to aid them at the trial of five men in the Ohio city for the Ellington apartment fire which cost the lives of 13 last June.

Cullitan revealed his plans here last night after he had spent three hours in Beaver questioning Redlich. Paul Childs and Samuel Neamon, both of Pittsburgh, accused of being implicated in the fire, surrendered to Cleveland police several days ago.

Pay Long Overdue, Teachers Strike

SANTIAGO, Cuba., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Public school teachers here went on strike today after informing the School Board they found it impossible to continue work until paid the eight-months' salary due them. The teachers met and approved plans for extending the movement throughout the province.

Fall Injuries Kill Dravosburg Youth

Robert Harper, 20, of Curry Hollow road, Dravosburg, died last night in his home from injuries suffered in a fall on the stairs of his home, the Coroner's office reported. The accident occurred 10 monthts ago.

FLIER BATTLES THEFT CHARGE

Capt. Jack Morris, Rodgers Field pilot, had permission from the owner of the ship he flew to the Miami air races to fly it to Eastern Point, Md., it was brought out at the hearing before Alderman John Kenna yesterday, when Morris was arraigned on charges of larceny by bailee.

Therefore, according to the argument of Capt. Morris' attorney, J. E. Evans, Sr., if he is guilty of any offense, it was committed in Maryland and beyond the jurisdiction of Pennsylvania courts. Capt. Morris allegedly flew the ship, owned by Miss Katherina M. Edwards, social registerite, to Florida without her permission, and was arrested upon his return here. Alderman Kenna reserved decision.

Meanwhile Capt. Morris' attorney prepared another angle of defense, preparatory to entering a cross suit charging false imprisonment.

'Ma' Loses in First Clash With Senate

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, who has been Governor of Texas exactly a week, lost her first contest in the Senate yesterday when that body voted to deny her request to withdraw three appointments made by former Gov. R. S. Sterling.

Mrs. Ferguson wanted to withdraw three Sterling appointments to the State Board of Education and substitute her own selections in order that she might have representation on the nine-member board.

UPHOLDS STONE FOR SCHOOLS

The use of face brick and stone in school construction has been defended by James Bonar, superintendent of buildings, in a report to the Board of Public Education.

Apparently replying to the critics of the board who have suggested the use of ordinary brick, the report was commended by Marcus Aaron, president, who said:

"I don't think anyone would want to replace these buildings if they knew the difference in cost. This is the only extravagance we have indulged in."

The difference in cost between face brick and common brick over a 30-year period amounts to $14,000 a year, Aaron said. Bonar declared durability and maintenance must be taken into consideration along with first cost.

Policemen, 2 Others Deny Bribery Guilt

DETROIT, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Pleaes of not guilty were on file today in the cases of Patrolmen Russel Veach and Emil G. Moede, of Detroit, and William A. Jackson, suspended inspector for the State Utilities Commission, who are accused of accepting bribes from Stephen H. Berke, of New York, eastern district manager for the Nevin Bus Line, to overlook failure of the bus company to pay full state license fees. Berke also denied guilt.

To Mothers whose children won't eat

NATURE knows best. Never coax a child to eat! Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite. When appetite fails tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, don't give small children a constipating cathartic that drains the system. California fig syrup is all the "medicine" they require.

The Child's Appetite Will Always Respond

Specialists will tell you that a sluggish appetite almost always means the child has a sluggish colon. Correct this condition called stasis, and see how quickly a listless, drooping boy or girl begins to eat—and gain! The only "medicine" such children seem to need is pure unadulterated fig syrup.

Children who get fig syrup now and then soon have the appetite and energy of young animals. They keep well and avoid colds and sluggish spells.

Nature never made a finer laxative for children; and they all love the wholesome, fruity flavor of the red California syrup of figs. It's purely vegetable, but every druggist has it all bottled, with directions. Begin with it at once. The very next day, your child will be eating better and feeling better. Keep on with the syrup of figs a few days and see amazing improvement in appetite, color, weight, and spirits.

A single IF

The promises made by the bottlers of California Syrup of Figs are true, and it will do the same for you, IF it's genuine CALIFORNIA. Don't accept substitutes.

WIVES QUITTERS, WRITER SAYS

Charges American Women Won't Fight To Save Homes

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Many of the 200,000 marriages which are wrecked every year could be saved if American wives would show their husbands they consider them worth fighting for when the other woman appears on the horizon.

So declares Vera Connolly, well-known writer, who says the modern wife is spineless, a quitter, an easy loser, who fights to hold her place in business, politics, society, against stiff competition but who releases her life partner under the mistaken guise of good sportsmanship.

Miss Connolly has done no little research on the matter, reporting her conclusions today in the February issue of Good Housekeeping. These conclusions are based on actual cases—the young bride who confided to Miss Connolly that she would simply slip away and see her husband free if he became interested in another woman; the bride's sister who insisted on giving her husband a divorce when, through loneliness, he fell temporarily in love on the golf links with a young Englishwoman. Miss Connolly said:

VERA CONNOLLY

Blame for Wrecked Marriages Placed On 'Good Sports'

"I wrote the article because it has become fashionable among modern wives to be 'sporting'—to permit themselves to be robbed. What they need is the spirit of the pioneer women who defended their homes against all outside invasions. Women today defend everything they have except their homes."

Miss Connolly is not against divorce when absolutely necessary, she adds. If a husband and wife find they can't work their marriage out, they should part. But often it is simply a lack of stability in their attitude toward marriage, especially on the part of the wife whose job is homemaking. She sees her friends divorce their husbands, remarry a second and third time—and catches the fever. As Miss Connolly sums it up:

"She accepts the philosophy of easy come, easy go."

DUNN FIGHTING POLITICAL RULE OF SCHOOLS

Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Chamber of Commerce, addressed members of the South Hills Kiwanis Club yesterday on "Shall the Schools of our City be Taken Over by the Politicians and Put Under Control of the Ward Chairman?"

He declared that the Chamber of Commerce was opposed to having the public school board elective instead of appointive and said he would go to Harrisburg to fight the proposal.

He said:

"The ambition of the politicians is to take control of about 5,000 employes, teachers and others, and to make it necessary for the ward chairman to approve every application for a teaching post or any other job connected with the school system of Pittsburgh, thereby making it part of the political machine."

Priority of Schools Over Hogs Urged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(Universal)—Priority for America's children over hogs and bankers in the race for Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds was demanded of Congress at final hearing yesterday before a Senate sub-committee.

Organized labor, education and women's groups supported the bill of Senator George (Dem.), of Georgia, to loan local governments and school districts Federal funds on local security, including tax anticipation warrants.

Edward F. McGrady, legislative agent of the American Federation of Labor, clashed with Senator Gore (Dem.), of Oklahoma, and undertook to cross-examine the Senator on his record of voting Federal Farm Relief and road aid. He added:

"The United States loans money so hogs can be made happy and healthy, but will not save its children."

SCHOOL SYSTEM HERE APPROVED

The report of the social committee of educators which approved the system in use in the Pittsburgh schools has been formally received by the Board of Public Education.

Marcus Aaron, president of the board, announced that the only charge for the report is the traveling expenses of the members of the committee to and from Pittsburgh. He expressed appreciation for the report and declared it is receiving national consideration.

On the committee were Dr. George D. Strayer, of Columbia University; Dr. Charles H. Judd, of Chicago University; Dr. John W. Withers, of the New York University, and Dr. Herbert S. Weet, of Rochester, N. Y. Two of the members of this committee had made a study of Pittsburgh schools in 1928.

CHURCH BARS SOCIETY SCION

CHESTER, Pa., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Officials of the Chester Presbytery said today that Gordon T. Scoville, member of a socially prominent Haverford, Pa., family, failed to get a license as a Presbyterian preacher because of his support of Buchmanism and a "leaning toward evolution."

Scoville is the son of Samuel Scoville, Jr., attorney and naturalist, who has had published several books on birds. Members of his family have been active supporters of the Buchman movement since it gained widespread attention several years ago. Young Scoville sought a preacher's license as a step toward ordination as a minister.

Palm Beach Asks Delay in Postoffice

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The board of governors of the Palm Beach Taxpayers' Association has adopted a resolution asking that construction of the proposed new postoffice here be deferred because "there now exists a necessity for rigid economy in the affairs of national, state and local governments." The federal government already has authorized construction.

Cleaning Fluid Fire Injures Girl Worker

Burned about the hands when a cleaning fluid ignited while she was using it on the kitchen linoleum in the home of Jacob Marcovsky, 1332 Methyl street, Beechview, last night, Mary Kosti, 22, a domestic, was in Montefiore Hospital today. Firemen from Engine Company No. 60 extinguished the blaze. Capt. Louis Batz estimated the damage at $15.

'Share-Work' Group To Hear Educator

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Jan. 25.—C. S. Coler, president of the Westinghouse Technical High School and educational director of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, will address the Beaver County group of the share-the-work movement here tomorrow.

success that lies in conscientious work.

My first campaign for Mayor was very intense. My opponent was a popular merchant, a personal friend of mine who years later was to be Mayor, so that at the outset he was the favorite. The only issue was our general qualifications to conduct the business of the city. I called on many of the voters personally, sent out many letters, spoke at many ward rallies and kept my poise. In the end most of my old Democratic friends voted for me, and I won by about 165 votes.

Re-Elected to Office

On the first Monday of January, 1910, I began a public career that was to continue until the first Monday of March, 1929, when it was to end by my own volition.

Our city had always been fairly well governed and had no great problems. Taxes had been increasing. I was able to reduce them some and pay part of the debt, so that I left the net obligations chargeable to taxes at about $100,000. The salaries of teachers were increased. My work commended itself to the people, so that running against the same opponent for re-election my majority was much increased. I celebrated this event by taking my family to Montpelier, where my father was serving in the Vermont Senate. Of all the honors that have come to me I still cherish in a very high place the confidence of my friends and neighbors in making me their Mayor.

Remaining in one office long did not appeal to me, for I was not seeking a public career. My heart was in the law. I thought a couple of terms in the Massachusetts Senate would be helpful to me, so when our Senator retired I sought his place in the fall of 1911 and was elected.

The winter in Boston I did not find very satisfactory. I was lonesome. My old friends in the House were gone. The Western Massachusetts Club that had its headquarters at the Adams House, where most of us lived that came from beyond the Connecticut, was inactive. The committees I had, except the chairmanship of agriculture, did not interest me greatly, and to crown my discontent a Democratic Governor sent in a veto, which the Senate sustained, to a bill authorizing the New Haven Railroad to construct a trolley system in Western Massachusetts.

Power Increases

But as chairman of a special committee I had helped settle the Lawrence strike, secured the appointment of a commission that resulted in the passage of a mothers' aid or maternity bill at the next session, and I was made chairman of a recess committee to secure better transportation for rural communities in the western part of the commonwealth.

During the summer we did a large amount of work on that committee and made a very full and constructive report at the opening of the General Court in 1913. This was the period that the Republican party was divided between Taft and Roosevelt, so that Massachusetts easily went for Wilson. But in the three-cornered contest I was re-elected to the Senate.

It was in my second term in the Senate that I began to be a force in the Massachusetts Legislature. President Greenwood made me chairman of the Committee on Railroads, which I very much wanted, because of my desire to understand business affairs, and also put me on the important Committee on Rules. I made progress because I studied subjects sufficiently to know a little more about them than any one else on the floor. I did not often speak, but talked much with the senators personally and came in contact with many of the business men of the state. The Boston Democrats came to be my friends and were a great help to me in later times.

My committee reported a bill transforming the Railroad Commission into a Public Service Commission, with a provision intending to define and limit the borrowing powers of railroads which we passed after a long struggle and debate. The Democratic Governor vetoed the bill, but it was passed over his veto almost unanimously. The bill came out for our trolley roads in Western Massachusetts and was adopted. He vetoed this, and his veto was overridden by a large majority. It was altogether the most enjoyable session I ever spent with any legislative body.

President of Senate

It had been my intention to retire at the end of my second term, but the President of the Senate was reported as being a candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, and as it seemed that I could succeed him I announced that I wished for another election. When it was too late for me to withdraw gracefully President Greenwood decided to remain in the Senate. I wanted to be President of the Senate, because it was a chance to emerge from being a purely local figure to a place of statewide distinction and authority. I knew where the votes in the Senate lay from the hard legislative contests I had conducted, and I had them fairly well organized when I found the President was not to retire.

In this year of 1913 the division in the Republican party in Massachusetts was most pronounced. Our candidate for Governor fell to third place at the election, and another Democrat was made chief executive, carrying with him for the first time in a generation the whole state ticket. But my district returned me. When I reached my office the next morning I found President Greenwood had been defeated. Again I was ready. By three o'clock that Wednesday afternoon I was in Boston, and by Monday I had enough written pledges from the Republican Senators to insure my nomination for President of the Senate at the party caucus. It had been a real contest, but all opposition subsided and I was unanimously nominated.

The Senate showed the effects of the division in our party. It had 21 Republicans, 17 Democrats and two Progressives. When the vote was cast for President on the opening day of the General Court, Senator Cox, the Progressive, had two votes, Senator Horgan, the Democrat, had seven votes, and I had 31 votes. I had not only become an officer of the whole Commonwealth, but I had come into possession of an influence reaching beyond the confines of my own party which I was to retain so long as I remained in public life.

Although I had arrived at the important position of President of the Massachusetts Senate in January of 1914, I had not been transported on a bed of roses. It was the result of many hard struggles in which I had made many mistakes, was to keep on making them up to the present hour, and expect to continue to make them as long as I live. We are all fallible, but experience ought to teach us not to repeat our errors.

Appealed to People

My progress had been slow and toilsome, with little about it that was brilliant, or spectacular, the result of persistent and painstaking work, which gave it a foundation that was solid. I trust that in making this record of my own thoughts and feeling in relation to it, which necessarily bristles with the first personal pronoun, I shall not seem to be overestimating myself, but simply relating experiences which I hope may prove to be an encouragement to others in their struggles to improve their place in the world.

It appeared to me in January, 1914, that a spirit of radicalism prevailed which unless checked was likely to prove very destructive. It had been encouraged by the opposition and by a large faction of my own party.

It consisted of the claim in general that in some way the government was to be blamed because everybody was not prosperous, because it was necessary to work for a living, and because our written constitutions, the legislatures and the courts protected the rights of private owners especially in relation to large aggregations of property.

The previous session had been overwhelmed with a record number of bills introduced, many of them in an attempt to help the employe by impairing the property of the employer. Though anxious to improve the condition of our wage earners, I believed this doctrine would soon destroy business and deprive them of a livelihood. What was needed was a restoration of confidence in our institutions and in each other, on which economic progress might rest.

In taking the chair as President of the Senate I therefore made a short address, which I had carefully prepared, appealing to the conservative spirit of the people. I argued that the government could not relieve us from toil, that large concerns are necessary for the progress in which capital and labor all have a common interest, and I defended representative government and the integrity of the courts. The address has since been known as "Have Faith in Massachusetts." Many people in the Commonwealth had been waiting for such a word, and the effect was beyond my expectation. Confusion of thought began to disappear, and unsound legislative proposals to diminish.

Radicalism Decreases

The office of President of the Senate is one of great dignity and power. All the committees of the Senate are appointed by him. He has the chief place in directing legislation when the Governor is of the opposite party, as was the case in 1914. At the inauguration he presides over the joint convention of the general court and administers the oaths of office to the governor of the council in accordance with a formal ritual that has come from colonial days, and is much more ceremonious than the swearing in of a President at Washington.

It did not seem to me desirable to pursue a course of partisan opposition to the Governor, and I did not do so, but rather co-operated with him in securing legislation which appeared to be for the public interest. The general lack of confidence in the country and the depression of business caused by the reduction of the tariff rates in the fall of 1913 made it necessary to grant large appropriations for the relief of unemployment during the winter. But I could see the steady decrease of the radical sentiment among the people.

In the midst of the following summer the World War enveloped Europe. It had a distinctly sobering effect upon the whole people of our country. It was very apparent in Massachusetts, where they at once began to abandon their wanderings and seek their old landmarks for guidance. The division in our party was giving way to reunion. Confidence was returning.

The Republican State Committee chose me to be chairman of the committee on resolutions at the state convention which met at Worcester, largely because of the impression made by my speech at the opening of the Senate. I drew a conservative platform, pitched in the same key, pointing out the great mass of legislation our party had placed on the statute books for the benefit of the wage earners and the welfare of the people, but declaring for the strict and unimpaired maintenance of our present social, economic and political institutions. While I did not deliver it well, in print it made an effective campaign document. After starting in the contest with little confidence, our strength increased, so that our candidate, Samuel W. McCall, received 198,627 votes and was defeated by only 11,815 plurality. All the rest of our state ticket was victorious. The political complexion of the Senate was completely changed. From a bare majority of 21 the Republican strength rose to 33, and the opposition was reduced to seven Democrats.

My district returned me for the fourth time and I was again made President of the Senate by a unanimous vote. My opening address consisted of 42 words, thanking the Senators for the honor and urging them in their conduct of business to be brief.

People Dubious

As a presiding officer it has constantly been my policy to dispatch business. It always took a long time to get all the committees of the General Court to make their reports, but I was able to keep the daily sessions of the Senate short. I also wanted to cut down the volume of legislation. In this some progress was made. The Blue Book of Acts and Resolves for 1913 had 1,763 pages, for 1914 it had 1,423, and for 1915 only 1,230, which was a very wholesome reduction of more than 30 per cent. People were coming to see that they must depend on themselves rather than on legislation for success.

Massachusetts was beginning to suffer from a great complication of laws and restrictive regulations, from a multiplicity of boards and commissions, which had reached about 100, and from a large increase in the number of people on the public payrolls, all of which was necessarily accompanied with a much larger cost of state government that had to be met by collecting more revenue from the taxpayers. The people began to realize that something was wrong and began to wonder whether more laws, more regulations and more taxes were really any benefit to them. They were becoming tired of agitation, criticism and destructive policies and wished to return to constructive methods.

When I went home at the end of the 1915 session it was with the intention of remaining in private life and giving all my attention to the law. During the winter the Lieutenant Governor had announced that he would seek the nomination for Governor, which caused some mention of me as his successor, but I was Prsident of the Senate and did not propose to impair my usefulness in that position by involving it in an effort to secure some other office, so I gave the matter no attention. A very estimable man who had done much party service and was a brilliant platform speaker had already become a candidate, but, although my record in the General Court was that of a liberal, the business interests turned to me. In this they were not alone as the event disclosed. To the people I seemed, in some way that I cannot explain, to represent confidence. When the situation became apparent to me I went to Boston and made the simple statement in the press that I was a candidate for Lieutenant Governor, without any reasons or any elaboration.

A Valuable Friend

It was at this time that my intimate acquaintance began with Mr. Frank W. Stearns. I had met him in a casual way for a year or two but only occasionally. In the spring he had suggested that he would like to support me for Lieutenant-Governor. He was a merchant of high character and very much respected by all who knew him, but entirely without experience in politics. He came as an entirely fresh force in public affairs, unhampered by any of the animosities that usually attach to a veteran politician. It was a great compliment to me to attract the interest of such a man, and his influence later became of large value to the party in the Commonwealth and nation. I always felt considerable pride of accomplishment in getting the active support of men like him. While Mr. Stearns always overestimated me, he nevertheless was a great help to me. He never obtruded or sought any favor for himself or any other person, but his whole effort was always disinterested and entirely devoted to assisting me when I indicated I wished him to do so. It is doubtful if any other public man ever had so valuable and unselfish a friend.

My activities were such that I began to see more of the Hon. W. Murray Crane. When he came to Boston he was accustomed to have me at breakfast in his rooms at the hotel. Although he had large interests about which there was constant legislation he never mentioned the subject to me or made any suggestion about any of my official actions. Had I sought his advice he would have told me to consult my own judgment and vote for what the public interest required, without any thought of him. He confirmed my opinion as to the value of a silence which avoids creating a situation where one would otherwise not exist, and the bad taste and the danger of arousing animosities and advertising an opponent by making any attack on him. In all political affairs he had a wonderful wisdom, and in everything he was pre-eminently a man of judgment, who was the most disinterested public servant I ever saw and the greatest influence for good government with which I ever came in contact. What would I not have given to have had him by my side when I was President! His end came just before the election in 1920.

Named as Candidate

These men were additional examples of good influences coming into my life, to which I referred in relating the experience of some of my younger days. I cannot see that I sought them but they came. Perhaps it was because I was ready to receive them.

In the summer of 1915 politics became very active in Massachusetts. There was a sharp campaign for the nomination for Governor, my own effort to secure the lieutenant governorship, and many minor contests. I shall always remember that Augustus P. Gardner, then in Congress, honored me by becoming one of the committee of five who conducted my campaign. Many local meetings were held, calling for much speaking. In the end Samuel W. McCall was renominated for Governor. I was named as candidate for Lieutenant Governor by a vote of about 75,000 to 50,000. The news reached my father on the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of his father. My campaign was carried on in careful compliance with the law, and the expense was within the allowed limit of $1,500, which was contributed by numerous people. I was thus under no especial obligation to any one for raising money for me.

In the campaign for election I toured the state with Mr. McCall, making open-air speeches from automobiles during the day, and finishing with an indoor rally in the evening. It was the hardest kind of work, but most fascinating. I remember that Warren G. Harding and Nicholas Longworth came into the state to promote our election and spoke with us at a large meeting one night at Lowell.

STORM KILLS 2 ON WEST COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Two persons were known to have been killed and two more were dying today as a storm of near blizzard proportions gripped the Northern California coast and extended eastward into Nevada.

Lieut. Gov. Morley Griswold and 20 members of the Nevada State Legislature were on a train which was stalled by snowdrifts between Reno and Carson City, the capital.

Cut off from supplies, 25 persons in a mining colony near Grass Valley, Cal., faced starvation. Two miners battled through heavy snowdrifts to telephone news of the plight of their comrades. Rescuers planned to push supplies over snow-choked trails.

An unidentified man was drowned in a gale that lashed San Francisco Bay into a fury, imperiling shipping. Another man was killed and 15 persons were injured when two trucks and two automobiles collided near Salinas, Cal., in a driving rainstorm.

'TABLOID' SUITE IN PREMIERE

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Ferde Grofe's musical interpretation of a tabloid newspaper will have its world premiere tonight at Carnegie Hall.

It's "tabloid"—and Paul Whiteman presents it in his second concert of modern music this season.

And "tabloid" isc modern—as modern as gang wars.

Into his suite, Grofe has woven the trials and tribulations of "sob sisters," a society wedding, and the assassination of a gangster just at press time.

He uses a machine gun (anyway—it's a good imitation); a police siren and whistle, revolver shots.

This is Grofe's first work since his "Grand Canyon Suite" was given its premiere by Whiteman last season in Chicago's Orchestra Hall.

Chief Meyers Returns.

OLD GIANT ONE OF INDIAN STANDOUTS

A FAMILIAR BASEBALL figure of other days comes back to the organized game in the signing of Chief John Tortes Meyers as a scout for the Cincinnati Reds. Shifting from the Giants to the Dodgers and then to the Braves, the Indian catcher dropped out of sight when the last named club released him in 1917, but he is well remembered by veteran fans as one of the main cogs in John McGraw's pennant-winning machines of 1911-12-13. He handled such famous pitchers as Christy Mathewson, Rube Marquard, Jeff Tesreau, George Wiltse, Doc Crandall, Leon Ames and others. He was with another flag winner in Brooklyn in 1916, taking part in four world series all told.

Chief Meyers

The Chief set two National League records that still stand, catching 100 or more games per season for five consecutive years and making 729 putouts in 1911. A member of the Mission tribe, Meyers was one of the best Indian players ever to make the big leagues, a list that includes also Sockalexis, a Penobscot; Chief Bender, a Chippewa; Jim Thorpe, a Sac and Fox; Moses Yellow Horse, a Pawnee; Frank Jude, an Ojibwa, and Ben Tincup and Elon Hogsett, Cherokees.

DURING THE LONG pitching career of Walter Johnson, only 76 home runs were made off his delivery. He faced 24,128 batsmen, which means that only one batter in every 317 nicked him for a homer. Grover Alexander pitched to 20,579 hitters and was reached for 118 four-basers, or an average of one homer to every 174 hitters.

In pointing out the greater effectiveness of Johnson from this particular angle, American Leaguers stress the fact that he had to pitch against Babe Ruth, whereas Alexander did not. On the other side of the argument it might be mentioned that Alexander pitched for seven years in the bandbox park of the Phillies, against the big field that favored Johnson in Washington.

THE OLD PLAYING mates, Ben Chapman and Dusty Cooke, are not to be separated after all. At least, not for the present. The Yankee chiefs have reconsidered their decision to send Cooke to Newark and Dusty will be taken on the training trip.

It seems the announcement that Cooke had been released to Newark was made without the knowledge of Manager McCarthy. When Joe heard about it he asked that Cooke be held over for another spring for observation. He wants to give Dusty's injured arm one more test before letting him go.

THOSE INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE baseball writers who do their own thinking are waging a campaign against the absurd play-off system, just as Mike Kelley, Minneapolis club owner, is denouncing the plan and fighting for its abandonment in the American Association. "Ever since the days when players wore whiskers and speared line drives with their bare hands, baseball championships have been decided on the basis of games won and lost through the regular season," says John Burns, of Rochester. "If a club is strong enough to top seven rivals over a route of 168 games, that team certainly has earned the flag and should not be asked to meet rivals that couldn't make the grade within the time limit. Obviously, it's a scheme to stimulate the gate, but those of us who have grown up loving baseball as a sport can't help shuddering at the introduction of a plan as unfair as the playoffs."

Glenn Spencer

THE GIANT MANAGEMENT was pleased at the speed with which Glenn Spencer signed and returned his contract. It is taken to mean that the former Pirate pitcher is entirely satisfied with his new berth, whereas some players might have been in a rebellious mood after a deal that took them away from a pennant possibility.

Spencer evidently is determined to make a new start and prove his worth by actual work on the mound. And Manager Bill Terry promises that he will be given every chance. He shares the opinion of many Pittsburgh fans that he has a real pitcher in Spencer.

BIG LEAGUE CLUBS differ in their policies in the matter of handling holdouts. The Giant officials are banning secrecy. They say they will announce promptly the receipt of all contracts, whether signed or unsigned. Holdouts will not be covered up.

Cleveland, on the other hand, takes an opposite attitude. Billy Evans, general manager, says the policy of the club will be not to give out the signing of a player or his refusal to sign. It prefers that the statement in every case come from the athlete himself.

CLEVELAND ALSO IS taking the same position always taken by the Pittsburgh club—that a player is not a holdout until he fails to report at the training camp. "We do not regard a player as a holdout simply because he returns a contract unsigned," Evans said. "The club takes the view that the player in so doing is within his rights. If he can present arguments that will get him more money, that is his good fortune. The club does not regard the player as a holdout until he fails to report."

THERE ARE ONLY seven players on the honor roll of the National Hockey League, the list that carries the names of those who have seen 10 or more seasons of service in that circuit. During part of the campaign there were only six, but Reg Noble, cut loose by Detroit some time ago, has returned to join the Montreal Maroons.

Boston has two of the other half dozen honor men in Billy Burch and Lionel Hitchman. Les Canadiens also have two in Howie Morenz and Aurel Joliat, the famous pair of forwards. Detroit has one in John Ross Roach, former Ranger goal tender, and Toronto has the seventh in Frank (King) Clancy.

OF THE SURVIVING six, only Morenz and Joliat still are playing for the same club with which they started. Burch began with Hamilton and then went to the New York Americans. Hitchman, now with Boston, made his big league debut with Ottawa.

Jim Ten Eyck

Roach first performed for the Toronto St. Pats, next went to the New York Rangers, and then shifted to Detroit. Clancy made his bow as a member of the Ottawa Senators before becoming part of the Toronto lineup.

ONE TRAGIC NOTE in the formal abandonment of rowing at Syracuse University was that it would end the career of Jim Ten Eyck, 80-year-old coach, before he had reached a goal. Ten Eyck had coached at Syracuse for 29 years and had an ambition to make it 30. It looked as though he would not realize it, but Capt. Tom Lombardi and the Syracuse oarsmen are going to see that he does. There will be no new shells or other rowing equipment, and the expense of running the coaching launch—gasoline, repairs and operating cost—must be financed without help from the Syracuse A. A. Traveling expenses, too, must be paid by the oarsmen themselves. But they're going to do it, gladly, just to give Old Jim his thirtieth season, with a spring intra-college regatta and an informal race with Cornell.

J. O'LOUGHLIN ADVANCED IN RANKINGS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The National Public Parks tennis championships will be staged in Steel City territory in 1934, if current plans fructify, according to statement of J. Phillips Davis, Pittsburgh Tennis Association president, who yesterday returned home after spending last Saturday as local delegate to the annual meeting of the Middle States Lawn Tennis Association at the Penn Athletic Club in Philadelphia.

Davis announced that the P. T. A. had made formal bid for the All-America municipal event at the Middle States conclave and that the request had been repeated in the course of conference with Edward B. Moss, executive secretary of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, on Monday, in New York.

NEW COURTS PROMISED

Application for the parks classic is based on the promise of County Recreation Director William S. Haddock that some 19 new courts of high grade construction will be put into commission at South Park here this summer. These rectangles will be whipped into shape for title play by the following year. Director Haddock declared himself at the recent P. T. A. winter pow-wow as being especially desirous of playing host to the National tournament and has assured district net authorities of the unflagging support of his department, should the affair be awarded to Pittsburgh.

The Middle States ranking committee, after special get-together with Davis, advanced Dr. John O'Loughlin, first listed Pittsburgher, from thirtieth to twentieth in the M. S. L. T. A. men's singles rating. Dearth of data on tourney and inter-club achievements of P. T. A. stars was blamed for failure of Middle States moguls to accord choicer positions to Western Pennsylvania talent in the 1932 sectional roster.

HARMONY KEYNOTE

This will be remedied for 1933 by adoption of Davis' proposal that each district of the Middle States section submit its annual ranking lists to the sectional group no later than September 15 of each year in order that all possible information may be available when the Middle States committee gets down to business.

Harmony was the keynote of the Philadelphia seance. The follow officers were unanimously elected: W. D. R. Evans, president; Samuel H. Collom, vice president; Joseph Morgan, Jr., treasurer; John T. Parry, Jr., secretary, and Paul C. Gibbons, sectional delegate to U. S. L. T. A. councils.

Davis was renamed to the Middle States executive committee to care for P. T. A. interests. Other committeemen include Paul C. Gibbons, George Rowland, A. L. Burtis, Samuel M. Peacock, Charles N. Beard and Thomas W. Harris, Jr., past presidents; A. J. Batty and T. C. Leonards, Philadelphia Tennis Club; Elgin D. Ramsauer, Delaware L. T. A.; George D. Reiley, Susquehanna Tennis Club; W. C. Cummings, West Jersey Tennis League; T. A. Frank and William Kraft, Philadelphia Inter-Club L. T. A.; and Harry Weiland, Lehigh Valley L T. A.

OPPOSE U. S. L. T. A. MOVE

The Middle States session went on record as opposing a U. S. L. T. A. move to abolish nominations from the floor at national meetings and to restrict nominations coming from sources other than the nominating committee to names bearing indorsement of not less than 10,000 votes.

M. S. L. T. A. representatives will cast ballot at New York next month in favor of proportionate representation on the U. S. L. T. A. executive committee and will seek the National Doubles championships for the Germantown Cricket Club to terminate a 14-year tenure of the dual contesting at the Long Wood Cricket Club in Boston.

Hunting, Fishing Bills Discussion Seals' Offering

An analysis of the hunting and fishing bills pending before the Legislature, by Gib Marsh, outdoors writer, will be the feature of the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight.

Concluding the bill, Keck will review outstanding events in the world of sports in an analytical manner.

Miss Marian Salmon will be at the piano.

COCHRAN SEEKS FOURTH WIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Welker Cochran, of Hollywood, Cal., today was after his fourth straight victory in the world three-cushion billiards tournament, and needed it to hang on to undisputed possession of the leadership.

Cochran's opponent today was Frank Scoville, of Buffalo, N. Y., who, after a disappointing start, captured two straight victories. Cochran and Scoville were down for the second afternoon match, following the opening between J. N. Bozeman, Jr., of Vallejo, Cal., anad Tiff Denton, of Kansas City. Augie Kieckhefer, defending champion, tied with Bozeman for second place today, will meet Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, tonight.

Clarence A. Jackson, of Detroit, and Denton were tumbled out of the four-way tie for second place in yesterday's matches. Arthur Thurnblad of Chicago took care of Denton, 50 to 43, in 48 innings, and Reiselt accounted for his first victory of the tournament in defeating Jackson, 50 to 48, in 62 innings.

The defeats left Denton and Jackson tied for third position, and in the night match Johnny Layton, the Sedalia (Mo.) veteran, joined them at three victories and two defeats, by downing Allen Hall, of Chicago, 50 to 42 in 39 innings. The defeat was Hall's fifth straight.

Canzoneri Given Permit For Bout

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The New York State Athletic Commission has granted permission to Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, to appear in an overweight match at Madison Square Garden February 3. The champion's opponent probably will be Ray Miller, of Chicago.

SPORT VIGNETTES

No bout in Pittsburgh in years has caused such a wide division of opinion regarding the outcome as the Ted Yarosz-Eddie (Kid) Wolfe third meeting, staged at Motor Square Garden last Monday night . . . All day yesterday the fans buzzed about it . . . It brought about the first decision against Yarosz in his entire career as a professional, and the spectators argued endlessly about the justice of the verdict . . . There were some who thought Wolfe won well off by himself, and others who were just as certain a wrong had been done and that Yarosz was the real winner.

The accompanying picture showing Wolfe and his manager preparing to leave the ring is interesting for its historical value in the boxing scheme of things locally. . . .Years from now, this bout will continue to be discussed, perhaps not as vociferously as now, but just as sharply by those who sat in on it . . . . You'll never be able to convince a Yarosz shouter that Wolfe won or a Wolfe shouter that Yarosz had the better of the going . . . It was such a close and hard-fought encounter that it will linger indelibly in memory . . . And here's the picture of the first man to carry out of the ring a victory over Yarosz in the latter's professional career.

It appears that there has been a mixup in the record of Yarosz . . . This was his sixty-first, and not his sixty-third, bout as a pro . . . He won the first 57 straight, including one with Wolfe in Detroit, and then was held to a draw by Wolfe in Madison Square Garden, New York . . . Followed then his two bouts with Jack King, in the Arena, on the North Side, which rounded out the number to an even 60 before he faced Wolfe again and had his string of no defeats snapped.

Wolfe and Yarosz went together to the Pittsburgh Hospital after their latest bout to have sewed the cuts on their right eyes which resulted from a bumping of heads in the second round . . . They were sewed up at the same time in the same room . . . Naturally, there is talk of a fourth bout

DADO DEFEATED BY ARIZMENDI

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—Baby Arizmendi proved himself to be an Aztec wild man as he met Speedy Dado, crack Filipino fighter, for the third time, hammering out a decisive victory in 10 rounds here last night before a crowd of more than 6,000.

There was no doubt that Arizmendi was the master last night. He built up a substantial lead in the early rounds and then widened the margin with a wild finish in the last four stanzas that at times had Dado reeling.

The fight lacked the closeness of the two former engagements, which saw Arizmendi win the first one on a decision and lose the second by a close margin.

Georgie Hansford, 126, Los Angeles, won an unpopular decision over Harry Fierro, 125, Chicago, in a six-round preliminary.

Waynesburg Wins Over Glenville, 42-37

GLENVILLE, W. Va., Jan. 25.—Waynesburg College completed an extended and tough road trip and at the same time, served Glenville State Teachers their second defeat in four years on their home court.

The Yellow Jackets defeated the locals here last night, 42 to 37, with Rab Currie, crack Jacket forward, banging out 16 points. Vass, Glenville center star, outscored the little Waynesburg ace, however, getting 19 points. The lineup:

Waynesburg	G.	F.	Pt.	Glenville	G.	F.	Pt.
Avery, f	3	1	7	Burke, f	1	0	2
Currie, f	7	2	16	Lindell, f	1	2	4

Half time score—Glenville 18, Waynesburg 14. Referee—Art Ward, Marietta.

PAULINO SCORES KAYO

BARCELONA, Spain, Jan. 25.—Paulino Uzcudun, the veteran Basque woodchopper, made short work of Giacomo Bergomas, when he knocked out the Italian heavyweight after 20 seconds of fighting in the first round of their scheduled 10-round bout here last night. It was Paulino's first visit to this country in two years.

PANTHERS GET EASY VICTORY OVER W.-J.

By JESS CARVER

The basketballers at Carnegie Tech and Duquesne are moving about a trifle retrospective these fine days as they complete preparations for their forthcoming clash in the Skibos' gymnasium Friday, putting on, as they are, the third game of the round-robin series between themselves and Pitt for the city championship.

Not only are they studying the situation retrospectively, but they are still practicing the difficult (at times) art of getting the ball through the hoop, which, after all, is highly important.

SPLIT '32 SERIES

A year ago, in the first game of the series, the Dukes gave the Tartans a gosh-all-hemlock walloping. Dudey Moore, you will recall, led the Bluffites to that triumph. The teams came down to the second clash with the Dukes riding high and the Skibos grimly determined to make amends for their lapses in the first game. The result was a victory for the Tartans, much to the disappointment of the Dukes and the chagrin of Coach Chick Davies.

A victory for Tech Friday will toss the city race into nothing short of a three-way tie. It will mean a win and a loss for all three local teams. The Dukes already have beaten Pitt, and the Panthers have taken Tech. Right now, the Panthers are moving along in the best stride of 'em all and look to be the team to whip for the district, city or what have you, title.

Despite their defeat at the hands of Geneva Monday, Coach Hannum had his Plaid tossers out for a brisk workout yesterday. He plans another today and a somewhat lighter one tomorrow. Coach Davies, whose lads have been idle since they defeated Pitt by a single point more than a week ago, is following about the same plan on the Bluff.

MOUNTAINEERS NEXT

Pitt, having recorded its fourteenth victory in a row and its thirty-first in thirty-six starts against Wash-Jeff, looks forward to the Intercollegiate Conference tilt here Sat'day night with West Virginia in serene manner.

Through some sort of a mixup, which Publicity Purveyor George Assidious Kelly, of Duquesne, tried to explain, but without success, it was announced that the Duquesne-Tech boxing bouts had been postponed from Saturday night to Monday. This was denied yesterday and the announcement made that the bouts would be held as per schedule Saturday in the Tartan gymnasium.

Pitt and West Virginia match their punchers the same night following the Panther-Mountaineer basketball game.

Pitt Wins Eighth

The Panthers won going away at Washington last night as they mowed down Wash-Jeff for the fourteenth consecutive time in seven years. The victory was Pitt's eighth of the season and was Wash-Jeff's ninth setback. The score was 47 to 27.

Pitt took a 23 to 12 lead in the first half and boosted this advantage with a mad rush as the second opened. Claire Cribbs, only recently checked off the hospital squad, led the scoring for the Panthers with 13 points, scored in five field goals and three fouls. The high individual scoring mark for the night, however, was credited to Maury Leiber, Wash-Jeff's star forward, who flipped himself five field goals and as many fouls.

Coach Carlson started a revised lineup, benching Capt. Don Smith. Every member of the Pitt cast scored, nine in all, while only six of the nine players used by the Presidents tallied. The contest was a rough-house affair, 40 fouls being called. Pitt made good on 11 of its 23 free tosses and Wash Jeff converted 11 out of 17. The lineup:

Pitt	G.	F.	Pt.	W. & J.	G.	F.	Pt.
W. Hughes, f	3	0	6	Lieber, f	5	3	13

Totals	18	11	47	Totals	8	11	27

Non-scoring substitutes—Pitt: Smith, Bond and Cutri; W. & J.: McVicker, Ferraro, Holmes and Isaac. Score at half time—Pitt, 23; W. & J., 12. Referee—Waite. Time of halves—20 minutes.

R. SMITH TOPS SCORERS

Figures released by the secretary of the Intercollegiate Conference today show that Tech's Bob Smith has garnered a temporary lead in the race of individual scoring honors, with a total of 37 points, two more than are boasted by Red Rosan, of Temple, and four more than possessed by Don McCamant, of Pitt. The records of the leaders follow:

With a single exception, the City League high school basketball teams wound up the first half of their 1933 championship without upset as all hands saw action yesterday. Favorites also came through with flying colors in most W. P. I. A. L. tilts.

South and Perry hung to their first place positions in the two sections of the City League. Perry was idle as far as league competition was concerned, but walloped Shady Side Academy, 28 to 10, with consummate ease. South turned back the challenge of Allderdice in Section I, 26 to 24, in a nip and tuck battle.

The deciding basketball was tossed by Eddie Spotovich, of South, just before the final gun, from mid-court.

SCHENLEY VICTOR

In other Section I tussles, Schenley defeated Westinghouse, 26 to 21, to hold to second place and Peabody scored the day's upset by downing Connelley, 22 to 18.

Section II contests resulted in a 35-to-17 victory for South Hills over Oliver; a 35-to-12 win for Langley over Allegheny Vocational and a 51-to-13 victory for Allegheny over Carrick.

In the top-notch W. P. I. A. L. contest of the evening, Moe Rubenstein's crack Ambridge High School five nosed out Aliquippa, coached by Nate Lippe, 27 to 25, in a great battle. The victors did not sew up the victory until the final period.

New Castle High School's victory string was snapped by Butler, 19 to 13, and as a result, the teams are tide for the Section III lead. Butler took an early lead and never was headed. Rankin, out for the title in Section VIII remained in the unbeaten class by trimming Edgewood, 38 to 31. Scott downed Turtle Creek, 58 to 9 and Braddock, defending W. P. I. A. L. champion, won over Wilkinsburg, 42 to 37.

STOWE DEFEATED

McKees Rocks nosed out Stowe in a low-scoring game, 16 to 11; Freedom topped Beaver, 31 to 29; Homestead stopped Duquesne, 29 to 19; Beaver Falls won over New Brighton, 20 to 14; New Kensington remained out in front by whipping Har-Brack, 29 to 23; Jeannette downed Latrobe, 15 to 12; Monessen tripped Mononga-hela, 32 to 15; Canonsburg kept going by taking Trinity, 24 to 11; Burgettstown barely nosed out McDonald, 19 to 17; McKeesport defeated Munhall, 23 to 21 and Ford City won over Kittanning, 26 to 17.

In the Catholic High School League, St. Justin trimmed St. Luke's, 28 to 16. Fifth Avenue bowed to the Pitt Freshmen, 25 to 24; Washington lost to the Wash-Jeff freshmen, 23 to 15 and Central Catholic lost to St. Francis preps, 23 to 18.

YANK TENNIS STARS WIN

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Ellsworth Vines, Jr., Keith Gledhill and Wilmer Allison, all of the United States, and Jack Crawford, defending champion, of Australia, today won their way to the semi-finals of the Australian lawn tennis championships.

Vines, United States and Wimbledon titleholder, defeated A. H. Hassett, of Victoria, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4, 6-1; Gledhill won from H. O. Hopman, 3-6, 2-6, 8-6, 6-0, 6-3; Allison defeated A. Quist, 1-6, 3-6, 9-7, 6-0, 6-2, and Crawford defeated D. P. Turnbull, a fellow Australian, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2.

Dodge to Get Motorboat Award

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Horace E. Dodge, of Detroit, has been named the outstanding figure of 1932 in motorboat racing.

The selection was made at the annual meeting of the Regatta Circuit Riders' Club, held in connection with the National Motorboat Show. The merit medal, emblematic of the award, will be presented to Dodge today.

Dodge's Delphine IV won the Gold Cup championship on Lake Montauk last summer and he now is building two new boats to defend the trophy.

SEATTLE, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Joe Glick, veteran New York welterweight, and Sammy Santos, Seattle Filipino, battled to a six-round draw here last night, standing toe to toe and slugging away at each other much of the time. Glick weighed 146 and Santos 144.

YALE BEATS PENN

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Led by Earl Nikkel, who scored a total of 22 points and once found the basket for five field goals in four minutes, the Yale quintet upset the powerful Pennsylvania basketball team, 35 to 23, last night.

Cubs' New Outfield Purchase

George (Tuck) Stainback, Los Angeles high school student, who has been signed by the Chicago Cubs for outfield duty. He is one of the costliest prospects of the year, the National League champions being forced to give up cash, Pitcher Ed Baecht, Outfielder Marvin Gudat and another pitcher to be named during the spring training season. His estimated cost is $75,000, but the Los Angeles Club, from which he was obtained, belongs to the Cubs. This is a Wide World News Photo Service picture.

SEEK 72-HOLE GOLF EVENT

By TOM BIRKS

With the announcement that the national open golf tournament will be played early in June and the local qualifying round scheduled for the first week in May comes the rumor that the Bedford Springs open championship will be over the 72-hole route this season for the first time.

Many local professionals are in favor of making the Bedford affair a two-day tournament. This seems logical, provided Manager Gardner, of the mountain resort, agrees. Last year two 72-hole tourneys were competed in by local golfers in the season's campaign, outside of the national and western open tourneys. They were the Pennsylvania State and Oakland Beach tourneys.

This year, the State will be played in the East, and aside from Vincent Eldred, the defending champion from the Highland Country Club, it is unlikely that any other local pro will compete.

After last season's debacle, the Oakland Beach open is out of the question. This makes the Bedford Springs affair stand out as the big tourney of the season as far as tri-state professionals are concerned.

With the usual pro-amateur event scheduled on Sunday, the open would be played Monday and Tuesday, the amateur championship qualifying round would be held Wednesday, with match play on Thursday, the semi-finals Friday morning and the final in the afternoon.

Jules Audy Teams With Irish Rider

CLEVELAND, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Forced out of the six-day bicycle race by injuries suffered in a spill Monday, William (Torchy) Peden last night saw his Canadian teammate Jules Audy, team up with a new partner, Mike Sheehan, of the Irish pair.

Peden withdrew at 7:30 o'clock last night, leaving Audy, the game rider who all day carried the principal burden of keeping the Canadian team well up in the race without a partner, McClay then withdrew, leaving Sheehan free to pair with Audy.

Borrowed Specs Aid Gutowski In Victory

Moe Rubenstein, coach at Ambridge High School, whose basketball team is leading the way in the fight for the Section IV crown of the W. P. I. A. L., has found out that it pays to keep track of the spectacles worn by his athletes.

Ambridge took sole possession of first place in its section last night by defeating its arch-rival from Aliquippa. During the third period of the close struggle, Eddie Gutowski, Ambridge star who finds it necessary to wear glasses on the floor, was shoved in a scrimmage and as a result his spectacles fell to the floor in splinters.

Alex Roscoe, a former star at Ambridge, who was graduated last year, wears the same glasses and luckily he was among the spectators. He proffered his glasses to Gutowski and the Ambridge star was able to finish the game.

Fight Results

At Los Angeles—Baby Arizmendi defeated Speedy Dado, 10 rounds; Georgie Mansford defeated Harry Fuerte, 8 rounds; Fil Quintana and Huerto Evans drew, 4 rounds.

At Detroit—Wesley Ramey defeated Eddie Ran, 10 rounds; Varias Milling defeated Ed Dario Moreno, 10 rounds; Henry Gowatch and Orville Brouillard drew, 4 rounds; Billy Marone defeated Chet Kelly, 4 rounds.

At Barcelona, Spain—Paulino Uzcudun knocked out Giacomo Bergomas, 1 round.

At Coshocton — Henry Firpo defeated Sunny Jim Williams, 10 rounds.

At Alexandria, Va.—Frankie Genaro defeated Joe Fino, 6 rounds.

At Canton, O.—Billy Wallace defeated Louis Severo, 10 rounds.

At St. Louis—Maxie Rosenbloom defeated Al Stillman, 12 rounds; Allen Mathews defeated Ray (Showboat) McQuillan, 10 rounds; Harry Dublinsky defeated Lou Terry, 10 rounds.

At Seattle—Joe Glick and Sammy Santos drew, 6 rounds.

At Chicago—Jackie Parker and Bobby Groshek drew, 8 rounds.

At New York—Paul Delaney defeated Hans Mueller, 8 rounds; Joe Pennino defeated Sammy Binder, 8 rounds.

At Fresno, Cal.—Al Manfredo defeated Lloyd Smith, 8 rounds.

At Portland, Ore.—Young Firpo defeated Wesley Ketchel, 10 rounds; Walter Wolfe won by technical knockout over Cyclone Thompson, 3 rounds.

GENE DEFENDS BIGGER CUPS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—A telephone rang in the office of the Associated Press.

"This is the Santa Monica Hospital calling. Mr. Sarazen wishes to speak to you. One minute, please."

"This is Sarazen in rebuttal."

"In what?"

"Rebuttal. It's a legal word, means a comeback. Sort of a counter punch."

It was easy to identify the voice of the American and British Open golf champion, even with his tonsils removed, so the reporter asked:

"What do you propose to rebut?"

"Some of my friends who are firing at me for my suggestion that the golf cups be increased to eight inches. From the papers some of them seem to think I'm loony."

"Go ahead."

"Well, take the British. I see I can't get any support there. Well, I'm not surprised, for I did not expect my friends on the other side would agree with me in any proposal for a change in any part of the golf game. My answer to that is that in the old days we fought with knives and swords. Now we use airplanes.

"A lot of games have been better for changes. In baseball once upon a time a batter was out if a fielder caught a ball on the first bounce, but not any more.

"I noticed Pinehurst didn't think much of the big cup. The answer to that is they have sand greens there. A 12-inch cup wouldn't make any difference on a sand green.

"That's part of the rebuttal. I will have same more when I get out of the hospital and try that big cup myself."

JERRY BOOKER DEAD

News comes from St. Louis of the death of J. (Jerry) Booker, former Pittsburgh newspaperman in the Grayson-Rake Collender Company. Located here from 1928 to 1931, Booker had been in charge of the St. Louis branch since then up to the time of his death, which followed an illness of six weeks. While here he had a wide acquaintance in the bowling and billiards realm and played a prominent part in the formation of the Greater Pittsburgh Bowling Alley Owners' Association.

GENARO VICTOR

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Frankie Genaro, 112, former flyweight champion, last night won an eight-round decision over Joe Fino, 115, Mexico. Although 32, Frankie proved he still is a master boxer, using his famous left to great advantage.

SCHOOL BOXER DIES IN RING

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Death was the victor in a bout at the Armory here last night, when Guy Ream, 17-year-old Fowler (Ind.) High School senior, dropped lifeless while boxing with Babe Million, of Monticello.

Death was due to heart failure. Ream fell in the third round without being struck by Million.

Gene Tunney, 6 Ft. 1, To Get 6-Foot Boat

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, is going to be presented a boat soon, but what he will do with it remained a mystery today.

George Lauder, of Greenwich, Conn., Tunney's brother-in-law, bought a Cape Cod baby punt at the motor boat show here yesterday and will have it delivered to a small pond on Tunney's Connecticut estate.

So far, so good. But the punt is only six feet long, Tunney is six feet one inch.

Boxing Shows Profit For Chicago Stadium

CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Boxing turned up a net profit of $52,705 during 1932 for the Chicago Stadium Corporation, which went into friendly receivership last week.

Fourteen shows were presented and all but four of them showed some kind of a profit, with the four-round exhibition between Jack Dempsey and King Levinsky setting the top mark of $16,637. Levinsky's bout with Walker ranked second, producing a profit of $16,108.

HALF OF PIRATE CLUB BELIEVED IN FOLD

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

In contrast to the holdout spectre which haunts many big league clubs, the contract situation on the Pittsburgh team today was reported as being entirely satisfactory.

Pirate officials would not divulge the number of signed contracts which had been returned, but President William E. Benswanger's tone indicated that at least half of the family was safe in the fold for the impending campaign.

According to baseball law the magnates, to insure reservation of players, must have the annual documents in the mail by February 15. But it is the custom of the moguls to step on the gas early in January.

CONTRACTS ALL MAILED

Touching on the local situation, Benswanger said:

"We are entirely satisfied with what has been accomplished in the way of 1933 contracts. In some cases we have not had time to hear from players, who were sent contracts, as these were forwarded only a couple of days ago and we do not expect to get any replies for a few days more. However, we do not look for any real trouble in getting our players lined up."

Included among the Pirates signed are the Waner boys, Fred Lindstrom, Larry French and Heinie Meine. Tony Piet recently paid a visit to Pirate headquarters, but the clever secondsacker and his employers did not reach an agreement. That the friendly differences in the case will be ironed out is almost a foregone conclusion. If the Buccos are to be a real flag contender they would seem to stand in the need of Piet, and Tony is too deeply in love with the game to stay out of action on account of financial difficulties.

KREMER IN MOUNTAINS

Apparently the home office has had no communications from Pitchers Remy Kremer and Ervin Brame since the contracts were sent out. Fans are deeply interested in these two cases inasmuch as both were high-salaried performers who could do little for the cause of last season. It is known that Kremer took to the mountains early to condition himself for what his boosters hope will be another banner season.

Brame, it is reported, is slated for a berth elsewhere. There have been hints that at least one other National League club would like to have his services. If the Kentuckian regains his health he probably could win again, but he has not been himself since his influenza illness of two years ago.

Chillysauce

RARE RUTH'S SOLILOQUY

To squawk, or not to squawk, that is the question!
Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer
The slings and arrows of the "daily" magnates,
Or to take arms against the pay-check chis'lers,
And by opposing, scare them?—to laugh—
And threaten boldly to retire,
To laugh? petchance to weep; ay, there's the rub:
For what if Jake should call my hand
And mean it,
And writers hold discuss my awful fielding
Since I began to slip—those second-guessers
Make cowards of us all.

The wail of all the owners of the American League would assume war whoop proportions were The Bambino to retire. Ruth has made fortunes for many of the magnates.

Billy Evans is one magnate who is fearless enough to give a fair estimate of the Babe's drawing power. Ruth was absent from the Yankee lineup when they staged their last series in Cleveland and the turnstiles failed to click merrily.

Local Boy Gains Varsity Floor Post

LEWISBURG, W. Va., Jan. 25.—Raymond Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Robertson, 2727 Glenmore avenue, Dormont, has won a berth at forward on the varsity basketball team at Greenbrier Military School.

Robertson is a member of the school orchestra and is sports editor of the Brier Patch, Cadet year book.

BABE OMITTED FROM LINEUP OF ALL-STARS

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—An all-star major league team without Babe Ruth, still the game's highest salaried performer, may seem like Hamlet without the Dane, but the final vote by baseball writers, in the Sporting News' eighth annual poll, shows the Yankee slugger ousted for the first time in right field by Chuck Klein, all-round star of the Phillies.

The 1932 selections, made public today, show Klein received 111 votes out of a total of 191 cast in the poll by members of the Baseball Writers' Association. Ruth received 63 for the right field post. Counting the votes given them for other outfield positions, Klein's total was 135 and Ruth's 94.

CRONIN MOST POPULAR

The most popular choice, however, was Joe Cronin, new manager and crack shortstop of the Washington Senators. He received 158 votes, swamping all rivals.

Six American and four National League players gain places in the following all-star consensus for 1932:

Center field—Earl Averill, Cleveland.
Right field—Chuck Klein, Phillies.
First base—Jimmy Foxx, Athletics.
Second base—Tony Lazzeri, Yankees.
Shortstop — Joe Cronin, Washington.
Third base—Harold (Pie) Traynor, Pirates.
Catcher — Bill Dickey, Yankees.
Pitchers—Lon Warneke, Cubs, and Bob Grove, Athletics.

The two American League clubs, Yankees and Athletics, which have dominated the selections for several years, thus keep the lead with two positions each.

NEWCOMERS LISTED

Five newcomers are on the list, consisting of Dickey, Warneke, O'Doul, Lazzeri and Klein. Dickey, not considered in previous polls, replaces the great Mickey Cochrane. O'Doul replaces another American League ace, Al Simmons, who experienced a slump in 1932.

The voting follows:

Left field—Frank O'Doul, 101; Babe Ruth, 29; Al Simmons, 26; Heine Manush, 11; Chuck Klein, 8; Riggs Stephenson, 7; Chick Hafey and Goose Goslin, 2; Earl Averill, Paul Waner, Joe Vosmik, Earl Combs, Ben Chapman, 1.

Center field—Averill, 81; Lloyd Waner, 46; Paul Waner, 17; Klein, 16; Kiki Cuyler, 12; Combs, 12; O'Doul, 6; Simmons, 6; Ruth, Manush, Wally Berger and Gerald Walker, 2 each; Melvin Ott, George Davis, Fred Lindstrom, Johnny Moore, Dick Porter, Hack Wilson and Sam West, 1 each.

Right field—Klein, 111; Ruth, 83; Cuyler, 8; Paul Waner, 7; O'Doul and Carl Reynolds, 1 each.

First base—Jimmie Foxx, 138; Lou Gehrig, 40; Bill Terry, 8; Charlie Grimm, 2; Don Hurst, 2; Harry Davis, 1.

Second base—Tony Lazzeri, 67; Charley Gehringer, 51; Bill Herman, 32; Tony Cuccinello, 16; Bill Cissell, 19; Frank Frisch, 8; Woody English, Rabbit Maranville, Hugh Critz, Max Bishop, Dib Williams and Oscar Melillo, 1 each.

Shortstop—Joe Cronin, 158; Dick Bartell, 18; Eric McNair, 4; Floyd Vaughan, 3; Mark Koenig and Charley Gilbert, 2 each; Ralph Kress, Jimmy Levey, Bill Urbanski and Charley Gehringer, 1 each.

Third base—Harold Traynor, 129; Pinkey Whitney, 26; Woody English, 12; Jimmie Foxx, 11; Joe Sewell, 9; Jimmy Dykes, 3; Frank Crosetti, 2.

Catcher—Bill Dickey, 118; Mickey Cochrane, 29; Rick Ferrell, 12; Virgil Davis, 11; Gabby Hartnett, 9; Jimmy Wilson, 4; Earl Grace, 4; Al Lopez, 2; Frank Hogan and Ernie Lombardi, 1 each.

Pitchers—Lon Warneke, 147; Bob Grove, 100; Vernon Gomez, 95; Wesley Ferrell, 12; Charley Ruffing, 8; Alvin Crowder, 6; Dizzy Dean, 5; Johnny Allen, 4; Monte Weaver, 3; Guy Bush, Fred Lucas, Ted Lyons and George Pipgras, 1 each.

MEYERS BOWL BRINGS $500

The Meyers Bowl boxing arena in North Braddock was sold this afternoon by Carl C. Baldridge, owner of the ground upon which it stands, to himself for $500.

The sale was conducted on the premises by Constable John Duhom, of North Braddock, to collect more than $1,400 in back rent and taxes owed Baldridge by I. D. (Apples) Meyers, the lessee, who, with two brothers, built the bowl four years ago.

A large crowd gathered for the public sale. Baldridge opened the bidding at $150 and Peter J. (Bunny) Byntach, Braddock manager of boxers, raised the offer to $200. Then Baldridge jumped to $500. There were no other bids. The terms of sale were one-half down at the sale and the balance within 48 hours.

Meyers' lease on the ground had 18 months to run, with an option of a renewal for five years.

Baldridge was undecided at the sale what he would do with the arena. He may engage a promoter to runt it for him, or he may raze the structure and utilize the ground fo rother purposes.

Scholastic Hockey Confab Tonight

Definite plans for an interscholastic ice hockey league will be arranged at a meeting to be held tonight in Duquesne Garden. A four-team circuit, including Dormont, Arnold Prep, Central Catholic High and Mt. Lebanon, is planned. Shady Side Academy had intended entering a team, but was forced to abandon the plan because the hours of practice would interfere with the school work.

Carnegie Tech, Pittsburgh Athletic Association and other local amateur organizations are discussing plans for organizing hockey teams. Eddie Reynolds will be in charge of the scholastic gathering tonight.

FLOORED, RAMEY WINS

DETROIT, Jan. 25.—(INS.)—Wesley Ramey, lightweight champion of Michigan, boasted a 10-round decision victory today over Eddie Ramm, welterweight champion of Europe, knocked down for a count of nine in the sixth round. Ramey came back strong to win the remaining rounds and the judges' decision.

Dykes to Be Next Pilot of A's, Mack Hints

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Sold "down the river" by the Philadelphia Athletics, Jimmy Dykes goes to the Chicago White Sox with the praises of his former associates ringing in his ears and a prophetic hint as to his future from Connie Mack.

Friends and teammates of veteran thirdsacker feted him last night in a farewell gesture.

Connie Mack, veteran pilot of the Athletics, struck the prophetic note. He said:

"I wish I had the gift to express the admiration and good feelings I cherish toward Jimmy Dykes. I want to say to you, Jimmy Dykes, that you have been a wonderful ball player and a wonderful man, and I want you to know I never will forget you.

"I hope Jimmy plays third base for the White Sox at least five more years, and then I am sure there will be a position open to him that is even more to his liking."

Just what he meant by that last remark, Connie did not explain, but sports writers speculated as to whether he was hinting that Jimmy might be the next manager of the Athletics.

VERGEZ SIGNS WITH GIANTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Johnny Vergez, third baseman of the New York Giants, had a bad season in 1932 which possibly explains why he promptly accepted the club's terms for 1933, Vergez said:

"In view of the fact that I was not so hot last season, I am more than satisfied with the fair way the club has treated me and will do everything I can to regain my form of 1931."

The Giants announced at the same time that Travis Jackson, veteran shortstop who was on the voluntary retired list because of an injured knee, had applied for reinstatement.

Otherwise the baseball contract market was at a standstill yesterday. Charley Devens, Harvard graduate, conferred with Business Manager Ed Barrow, of the New York Yankees, but failed to sign a contract.

BROWN HOLDOUT

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 25.—(INS.) — The holdouts had another member in their ranks today in the person of Walter Brown, pitching ace of the Washington Senators.

Brown said he returned his contract unsigned. He would not reveal whether he had been asked to take a cut.

Nats, Red Sox Act To Lure More Fans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington baseball club, believes that the high school player of today is the big league performer, or at least the big league customer, of tomorrow.

Therefore he has announced that he would offer the use of the Griffith Stadium to local high schools for their annual baseball series and set up a system of awards for players and teams.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Boston is going to have cheaper baseball next season. In keeping pace with the times, President Emil Fuchs has increased the number of 50-cent seats at Braves Field from 1,500 to 5,200. He also set Saturday as "ladies' day."

SPORT SHORTS

SAN FRANCISCO.—Glenn S. (Pop) Warner today is en route east on a several weeks' trip that will include a visit to what soon will become his new football stamping grounds, Temple University, Philadelphia. Pop also will visit in Pittsburgh.

COLUMBUS, O.—Joe Carr, newly appointed promotional director of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, started functioning in his new capacity today when he departed for the Northwest where he will attempt to organize a Class D league in Wisconsin, Minnesota and other northern states.

LOS ANGELES.—Red Grange today said that the football game here Sunday probably would mark the finish of his career as an active grid player. He said that he expected to line up a coaching job for next season.

TOLEDO, O.—The American Association franchise of the Toledo Mud Hens and all physical properties of the Detroit-Toledo Development Company, which controlled the team, were made subject today to disposal at sheriff's sale by order of Common Pleas Court Judge James Martin issued the order on application of the Toledo Trust Company, which was granted a judgment against the company recently.

DALLAS, Tex.—Ted Robinson, minority stockholder in the Fort Worth Baseball Club of the Texas League, said here today that prospects appeared favorable for sale of the controlling interest in the club by S. S. Lard to Norman Perry, of Indianapolis.

Yarosz' injury has caused him to ask for a two weeks' postponement of his bout with Andy Callahan in Boston, scheduled for next Monday night, while Wolfe's cut threatens to take even longer to heal . . . Boxing returns to one of its most profitable spots locally tonight, when Jim McGirr, veteran McKeesport promoter, invades the city to stage the first of a series of shows in the Moose Temple, downtown.

McGirr comes in with some ideas calculated to put over the sport again in the small hall. Among them is a high value for the gate receipts. He will offer a 10-round bout, an eight-rounder, a six-rounder and three four-rounders at the popular prices of 60 cents, $1.15 and $1.75, federal and state taxes included.

HOLT-QUINTERO AGAIN

For his windup, McGirr's matchmaker, Bill Dummer, has rematched Billy Holt, local Negro welterweight, and Manuel Quintero, of Tampa, whom Holt defeated in an upset of the dope at Motor Square Garden, New Years Night. Quintero came here with the idea of forcing a match with Ted Yarosz, but it was obvious after his setback that he first must even his score with Holt. Meanwhile he is in receipt of an offer to box Jimmy McLarnin in Detroit next month.

Marty Gornick, of Whitaker, and Marty McHale, of McKeesport, meet again in the eight-round semi-final, and Johnny Durso, of Oakland, and Jerry Clements, of Jeannette, are down for six rounds. In the four-rounders, Shorty Washko meets Johnny Woods, Elmer Wilson takes on Georgie Schlee and Joey Zelano is in with Jackie McCann.

The first bout will go on promptly at 8:30, and there will be no intermissions. The general admission tickets go on sale at 7 o'clock.

Between Rounds

Al Quaill, of the Y. M. H. A., will be one of three local boxers to compete in the intercity amateur tournament to be held in New York's Madison Square Garden next Monday night.

Johnny Hazel, Tony DePiero and Chink Rosena, three of the boxers who competed in the Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U. junior tournament at the Keystone A. C. last year, since have turned professional. The leading simon-pures of the district will compete in the renewal of the feature in the same ring Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week and the following Monday.

Bill Criggan, of Homestead, will box Dominick Mancini, of Blairsville, in the opening bout on the Jack King-Tiger Joe Randall card at the Arena, Friday night.

Don Asto, Uniontown lightweight, is looking for action and doesn't care how soon the promoters accommodate him.

Mose Butch, local bantamweight, will box Tony Patazzalo, of Detroit, stablemate of Harney Ross, in the eight-round semi-final to Ross' bout with Johnny Datto at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. Bill Criggan and Fritzie Zivic are in the opener.

STOCK PRICES IRREGULARLY HIGHER

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—Trading remained of a desultory character in the stock exchange today, but prices developed an irregularly higher tendency as the session wore on.

Mid-week business statistics failed to provide any fresh impetus, and professionals had the market largely to themselves. Conspicuous in corporate news was omission of Delaware and Hudson's dividend, and confirmation of reports that it had bought a substantial interest in New York Central.

While midweek steel trade reviews indicated another small gain in ingot output, electric power production figures were less satisfactory, and reports of last week's freight movement by individual railroads thus far have failed to indicate an important gain in the aggregate. Nevertheless, railroad interests were keenly interested in news that President-elect Roosevelt had important conferences slated with railroad experts.

Some further selling in the already sharply deflated motion picture stocks appeared. Wall street has buzzed with rumors of mergers and reorganizations in the picture industry, as a result of numerous conferences in the past week, but bankers pointed out that the troubled situation in the industry was not particularly conducive to merger agreements.

Foreign exchanges moved more sedately, after yesterday's gyrations. Considerable interest was expressed in Wall street over the strike of the Paris bourse brokers against the Chamber of Finance Committee's opposition to the government's proposed economies. The franc, which had been heavily sold yesterday, stiffened a little. In the local commodity markets, the flurry of speculation in silver died down, following the Senate's adverse vote yesterday on Senator Wheeler's remonetization proposal. Silver traders, however, pointed out that other plans to help the metal would be brought before Congress.

COTTON PRICES SHOW GAINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 4 lower on lower Liverpool cables, near month liquidation and trade buying. March, 6.16; May, 6.30; July, 6.41; October, 6.60; December, 6.74.

There was also buying for local or Wall street account, and after initial offerings were absorbed the market held fairly steady, with March around 6.17c and active months generally unchanged to 1 point higher. Trading in January contracts ended at noon today and there was some early liquidation of that position accompanying circulation of notices estimated at 1,800 bales. January sold to 6.10c, or about 4 points net lower.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 25.—Cotton, 1,000 bales; American nil. Spot quiet; prices unchanged. Quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 5.84; good middling, 5.54; strict middling, 5.29; middling, 5.14; strict low middling, 4.99; low middling, 4.84; strict good ordinary, 4.64; good ordinary, 4.34. Futures closed quiet and steady. January, 4.92; March, 4.93; May, 4.94; July, 4.96; October, 5.00; December, 5.03.

Offerings were very light after the initial selling and prices worked up on trade and local buying, which was encouraged by steadiness in the grain and stock markets. March advanced to 6.20 and was holding around 6.18 at midday when the general list showed net gains of 1 to 2 points.

GREEN VOICES WARNING OF LABOR

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Is the truce between capital and labor near an end?

Co-operation was agreed upon at the White House conferences called by President Hoover in 1929. But the agreement not to disturb wage rates has long since been abandoned under the stress of acute depression.

Mr. Rukeyser

At the recent convention of the American Federation of Labor, it was indicated that the era of patience on the part of organized labor was near an end. The organ of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States—the Nation's Business — has asked William Green, president, what was really meant by the decision to use "forceful methods."

ANSWER GIVEN

By way of reply, the labor leader will say in the forthcoming issue:

"We shall fight with every legitimate weapon at our command to restore the kind of America in which a man can have a chance in his own right. There has been a fear that we are in earnest. Let me use this opportunity to double-rivet the assurance that we are in earnest. The measure of our earnestness is the measure of the hunger of those who have no work and no food, of those who are being cast into the streets and driven to the gutters in exhaustion at the end of a long and futile search for work and economic safety.

"America cannot be a nation of outcasts and remain America. It cannot be a nation of workless men and remain America. We shall bring back work and safety or give everything we are and have in the effort. Let me make that plain. And I see no reason why every thinking, sane, sensible American, be he banker, lawyer, manager, engineer or leisured loafer, should not join us in that endeavor. Do they not see, too, that a workless America is safe for none?

RESENTMENT GROWS

". . . We have simply come to what we are determined shall be the end of the road of suffering. Here we take our stand and here we fight. Perhaps such a battle as no labor movement has ever fought before. We shall fight a battle for restoration, for happy homes, for great safeguards that shall take from the pillaging bands of exploiters the weapons with which they have stricken down our millions. We are out to end legalized robbery in the United States."

It is not important that outsiders might prefer more temperate words. As a matter of fact, the unemployed have been singularly patient during their period of suffering.

The growing spirit of resentment constitutes a warning that constructive action cannot long be safely deferred. Men in responsible places should recognize the need of making concessions and revisions. In times like the present, the soundest conservatism consists of open-minded liberalism.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Commonwealth and Southern Corporation preliminary report for year ended December 31, 1932, including subsidiaries, shows consolidated net income of $13,242,998 after taxes, interest, amortization, depreciation, minority interest, etc., equal after preferred dividends to 12 cents a share on 533,673,328 shares of common, and compares with net income of $22,369,531 in 1931 or 40 cents a common share.

Marine Midland Corporation consolidated operating profits for the year 1932 amounted to $6,740,933, equivalent to $1.21 a share on the outstanding capital stock, compared with $7,889,927, or

D. & H. ACQUIRES INTEREST IN CENTRAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson Company, announced today that that company had acquired an interest of approximately 10 per cent in the New York Central Railroad. Loree said:

"Delaware and Hudson Company has acquired in the open market through J. P. Morgan & Co. approximately 10 per cent of the capital stock of the New York Central Railroad."

Directors of Delaware and Hudson took no action on the quarterly dividend payment of $1.50 due at this time.

In a formal statement, Delaware and Hudson directotrs said the purchase of Central stock had been made "as an investment, feeling confident that with revived prosperity New York Central will be one of the first railroads to show a return of earning power and sound and intrinsic value. The acquisition of this substantial interest has been with the knowledge and approval of those already largely interested in ownership and all parties contemplate board representation of the new interest."

OLD CONTROL REMAINS

While it was not revealed whose former holdings of Central stock the Delaware and Hudson acquired, there have been rumors in Wall street that Loree was negotiating for a block of Vanderbilt stock, as well as buying shares of Central in the open market. Although the Loree-controlled Delaware and Hudson now becomes one of Central's largest single shareholders, it was understood that the J. P. Morgan-First National Bank group, with their associates, still retained control.

Announcement of omission of the quarterly dividend by Delaware and Hudson caused a drop of more than $3 a share in the company's stock. Loree explained:

"In view of reduced earnings due to general business conditions, the board of managers decided to take no action with reference to the dividends normally payable on March 20 and which dividend is ordinarily declared at the January meeting of the board."

ASTOR ON D. & H. BOARD

For some time there have been rumors that the Loree-controlled railroad was acquiring a substantial interest in New York Central. It was reported that Loree associates would seek representation on the board of New York Central.

Recently the Union Pacific sold a large block of New York Central stock, switching its investment into Pennsylvania. It was said that some of the former Union Pacific holdings may have been transferred to the Delaware and Hudson.

Vincent Astor, the Delaware and Hudson directors announced, has been elected a member of the board of managers and director of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad Corporation to fill the vacancy caused by the death of E. H. Outerbridge.

P.R.R. DECLARES DIVIDEND

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25.—(AP.)—The directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad today declared a dividend of 50 cents a share.

This is a resumption of dividend payments after their suspension early last year. The company paid 50 cents in 1932.

In declaring the dividend, the Pennsylvania Railroad maintains its record of never having failed to make a return to its stockholders in any one year since the company was organized. The dividend is payable March 15 to record of February 15.

MARY FAITH

Story of a Girl With Husband Who Wouldn't Grow Up

By BEATRICE BURTON

Old Position in Nesbit's Office Is Given Back To Mary Faith

CHAPTER XL.

"I've got to go back to work, and Mark Nesbit would pay me more than anybody else, Jean," she added. "Kim's left me."

"Again? What was the matter with him this time?"

Mary Faith shrugged. "Too many parties and too many pals, I suppose. Don't worry about me, Jean. You know how Kim is. . . . He'll come to his senses after a while, and everything will be all right."

"That's what you always say," Jean remarked tartly. "I don't see how you can go on believing him, Mary Faith, when he treats you the way he does . . . Why don't you leave him for good? Why don't you come out to Arizona and make some kind of a new life for yourself?"

"No. I haven't any money to take me and the baby to Arizona. I haven't any money at all, Jean . . . Look here, will you speak to Mr. Nesbit in the morning? Ask him if he'll consider me for your place, and explain how things are with me? I suppose I ought to have too much pride to go back to work for him, but all I'm thinking of now is the baby. I've got to bring him up decently."

NEW DOOR OPENED

At noon the next day Jean telephoned her.

"I've just told Mr. Nesbit that I'm leaving, and I've told him that you'd like to come back," she said. "You know the company never employs married women, don't you?—So I had to explain to him that you're separated from Kim, and he suggested that you drop in to see him on Monday morning."

Mary Faith stood beside the telephone for a long time after she had hung up the receiver. Something that her mother had said to her years and years before came back to her now and seemed to echo through the quiet little rooms of the flat.

"I never really worry about things, Mary Faith," she had said. "The Lord never closes one door without opening another."

Until now Mary Faith had never fully understood what she meant by that. She meant, of course, that there was always a way out of trouble if only you had faith—faith that you would find it.

And, as if to prove her words, here was the way back to Nesbit's opening before her just when every other way in life was closed to her. When Kim had left her, refusing to support her. When her mother-in-law had gone, leaving Mary Faith to face the problem of finding work and caring for the baby at the same time.

"Now it's all settled," she thought as she stood there in the dim little hall beside the telephone. With her salary at Nesbit's she could live at Mrs. Puckett's and hire a nursemaid to look after the baby during the day. It would be hard sledding to do it on $37 a week, but it could be done——

RETURNS TO OFFICE

On Monday morning Mary Faith took the baby to Mrs. Puckett's and left him there for two hours while she went downtown to see Mark Nesbit.

There was a tight feeling in her throat as she went up the narrow staircase of the old building. She remembered how many times, years before, she had run eagerly down them to meet Kim waiting for her in the street below, debonair and smiling and good to look at, slouched behind the driving wheel of his little open car . . . How many noons she had sat at her desk upstairs, embroidering guest towels and tablecloths while she listened to Jean lecture on the evils of long engagements . . . How lovely life had been then, and how much lovelier it had promised to be!

"Well, it was lovely part of the time," she told herself. "I've been happier at times than some women ever are, no matter how long they live."

She went on up the stairs saying to herself a bit of sentimental poetry that she had read in one of her father's books, a novel called "Aladdin O'Brien":

"Give me three breaths of pleasure
After three deaths of pain——"

Her life with Kim had been like that. Long periods of pain when he left her, and then the joy of taking him back and knowing that he was wholly hers for months at a time.

FAMILIAR SIGHTS

She stood at the top of the iron stairs for two or three minutes to get her breath and to screw up her courage.

It was going to take all of her courage to open the door of the office and step into it. To face Miss Saxe and Miss Kelly and Mark Nesbit—the people who new all about her and who would know now that she had come back to them defeated, asking for a job.

The familiar sounds of the place came to her ears as she stood there, like music heard long ago when her life was younger and happier . . . The clicking of typewriters, the sound of Miss Kelly's voice, the sudden sharp ringing of a telephone.

She turned the handle of the door and stepped inside. Everything seemed to be just about as it always had been. Green-shaded lights above golden-oak desks, shiny cork floor, high narrow windows that looked out toward the west.

Miss Saxe leaned over her typewriter, her fingers flying, her eyes bent on a shorthand pad beside her. . . . Miss Gilday read a book, propped up before her on the switchboard, as she worked . . . A new office boy, who looked enough like Stanley Odeskalki to be his brother, was getting a drink at the water cooler in the corner. Even the water cooler was the same dark blue one that had always stood in that corner.

SEES NESBIT

The boy turned away from the cooler and saw her.

"I'm Mrs. Farrell. I have an appointment with Mr. Nesbit," she said to him, stopping beside Miss Saxe's desk to shake hands with her.

"I'll tell Mr. Nesbit that she's here, Leonard," Miss Kelly sang out to the boy, and she said something into the telephone before she got down from her perch to greet Mary Faith.

"Well, if it isn't grand to see you! And looking so well, too!" The sweet, slightly nauseating smell of peanut brittle rose to Mary Faith's nostrils as she put her arms around her. "I just told Mr. Nesbit that you're here. He says to step right into his room."

Feeling perfectly calm and collected, Mary Faith walked across the shiny cork floor and opened the door of Mark Nesbit's private office.

She came in slowly and said, "How do you do, Mr. Nesbit" in a brisk business-like way and sat down beside his desk, like a person preoccupied with grave business. Her whole mind was on that business—the serious business of getting this position he was offering and as much salary as possible along with it. For the moment she forgot that he was the man who had wanted to marry her three years before.

"Jean Bartless says that you'll consider giving me back my old position here, Mr. Nesbit." She clasped her hands on the edge of the desk and looked at him anxiously.

He smiled at her.

"You're not worrying about it, are you?" he asked. "You know you can have it. It's yours. The only questions we have to settle are about your salary and how soon you can start to work."

"You are not worrying about it, are you?" Nesbit asked.

He leaned back in his chair and studied her with his deep, attentive eyes. And under his steady gaze Mary Faith began to feel painfully conscious of a mended place in her white imitation chamois gloves and of her last year's hat that turned down in front when all of the new hats turned back from the face.

"How would it suit you if I started work next Monday?" she asked, taking her hands from the edge of the big flat-topped desk. "There are some things that I have to do this week. You see, I'm breaking up housekeeping and going back to my old boarding house with my baby—and I'll have to find someone who'll look after him days while I'm here. Would you want to start me off at my old salary?"

"I'd thought of thirty-seven dollars a week. That's a cut above your old salary, isn't it? —And next Monday will do." He got up from his desk. The interview was over.

Mary Faith stood up and held out her hand. "That's fine, thirty-seven a week," she murmured. "I hadn't expected a cent more than what I used to earn. Thanks very much, Mr. Nesbit. And good-bye."

He took her hand but without any eagerness. He was all business just as he had been always during the first three or four years she had worked for him. Well, that was as it should be.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Three new units, which have been in rehearsal for the past 10 days, will appear at the regular meetings of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club Saturday.

All the members of the Arsenal, Plaza and Etna-Harris will be entertained by the "Texas Rangers." The members of the Arsenal and Plaza chapters are well acquainted with this group of young artists, their specialty is playing and singing songs that were popular with the cowboys of long ago.

The master of ceremonies of this group will be "Rhea" that funny cartoonist. "Rhea" will announce each act with a cartoon depicting the type of entertainment that is to be offered.

DANCERS IN UNIT

Also working with this unit will be the Colbert Sisters, clever little acrobatic dancers.

Wood and his educated police dog, "Pal," will headline the unit which is to appear at the Cameraphone, Belmar and Schenley. It is reported that if "Pal" lived in Hollywood he would be a second Rin-Tin-Tin. "Pal" does everything but talk.

Kay Burke, the girl with the big blue voice, will sing several numbers and the master of ceremonies will be Rocco Plaza, tap dancer extraordinary, who makes music come right out of his feet.

SCHOOL ACT

The Irish School Master and his mischievous pupils, will appear at the Enright, Rowland and Manor. This one-act comedy will give the youngsters many an opportunity to laugh, because while the stunts and tricks played on the Irish school master are impossible for the youngsters to do themselves, nevertheless, some of them would like to try them. This being a one-act play, no master of ceremonies will be necessary, except for the first introduction, which will be made by the manager of the theater.

In addition to the regular unit which appeared at the Arsenal Saturday, the members were entertained by a one-act sketch produced by Russell Niggl, assistant manager. The parts were played by members of the club.

The title of the sketch was "Who's Your Husband" and the following members took part:

John Hilliard. . . .Geb Leyton
Stanley Kane. .Rufus Wethreby
Josephine Lang. . . .Mrs. Leyton
Alberta Fundy. . . . . Mrs. Titter
Baby Fundy and Ruth Lang. . . . . The Children
Helen Sherry. . . .Mrs. Wethreby

DOLL CONTEST

Following the sketch a doll contest was held and the prizes were awarded to Mary Rogellus, whose doll was selected as the prettiest. Helen Wighter won the prize for having the funniest doll and Joan Neville's doll was judged the ugliest. However, Joan said that she loved her dollie best of all.

Next Saturday in addition to the regular stage show the members of the Arsenal Chapter are going to hold an election of officers. They will elect a new grand jester and a new board of governors consisting of three boys and three girls. The youngsters will take office at the meeting of February 4 and will conduct the club business during the month of February.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Congratulations to the following boys and girls, all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, who are celebrating their birthdays today—

We Insist on Beautiful Memorials

In the rush back to work we certainly supplied plenty of industry for our sculptors.

This is a nation that must have its granite memorials carved in imperishable appropriations. If Gutzon Borglum has run out of mountains we will give him the following commissions to chisel neatly but firmly:

A triumphant figure of civic virtue shaking hands with the bankers. The bankers all have long fingernails, but they make the other guy wear mittens.

Farm relief is a tasty dish. Show a heroic figure of a farmer reading a mail order catalogue while Congress dances in the background.

The stockholder. This is a pip. Figure of citizen reading stock certificate over another man's shoulder. Both figures are holding a bag.

Fauns skipping a dividend. A group of directors done in sawdust and glucose. They are laughing heartily and each one gets a twenty-dollar gold piece for being there.

Thrift, industry and wisdom. We'll have to get three strangers to pose for this one. It can wait anyway.

Bacchus at the well. Speakeasy barkeep surrounded by young folks. A swan is singing its last song in a bathtub full of gin. Berries are falling softly from a juniper tree. Mix well and stand on window sill to cool.

Progress. Athletic figure of mossbacked legislator skating backwards.

Paradise lost. Bas relief of real estate boom with the wolves chasing the rabbits across a first mortgage.

The last pedestrian. Splendid action shows a fugitive between a lion and a buz saw with the red light against him.

Yearly statement. Group of 30 vice presidents swimming in red sea of ink. They are in the pink of condition.

Repeal. Gigantic figures of 22,000,000 voters who want it. You can start this carving on a mountain and finish it in sky writing.

Prosperity. We can't raise the money for this one. Let it go.

THIMBLE THEATER—STARRING POPEYE

THE JUNG IDEA

The boy who brought his parents shame
We one time classified as bad,
But now we learn that all the blame
Should fall upon his ma and dad;
Once when he tried to scalp a friend
His venture was prohibited,
And so, the scientists contend,
His childhood was inhibited.

The wife who fills her mate with lead,
The youth who early turns to crime,
The girl who likes the tea when red,
The man who murders for a dime,
Should not be punished for their flaws
Since learned docs have proved by test
They act the way they do because
Their early longings were suppressed.

So if you want your angel child
To be an individual,
Adopt a manner meek and mild.
And serve him at his beck and call.
Forbid him not a single joy,
Ignore bad habits he acquires,
Or someday they will claim your boy
A victim of suppressed desires.

Barth Bentley.

'Buy American' Campaign Ought to Be This Nation's Official Policy

HERE IS another placard used by France in its national Buy French crusade.

It is not so militant,—so shrill—as the pictorial appeal "FRENCHMEN! BUY FRENCH!" which we printed a few days ago.

But it is nevertheless impassioned and emphatic. It is well calculated to stir patriotic feelings in French hearts, and to impress upon everyone that "Buy French" is a CALL TO DUTY which no Frenchman can ignore.

The translation of all the printed words it carries will be found directly under the placard at the right. The main thought is that Frenchmen who buy either agricultural or manufactured products from abroad, are depriving their fellow countrymen of work.

"YOU ARE DEPRIVING FRENCH CHILDREN OF BREAD"—"Vous privez de pain des gosses Francais"—is the keynote of the appeal; and there is a pictorial repetition of the same thought in the figure of the little child, with tattered raiment and arm extended in moving entreaty.

"FRENCHMEN, LET US DEFEND OURSELVES! LET US RESIST!"—is the arresting phrase at the top of the cartoon.

There follows the statement that while public opinion in England, the United States, Germany and Italy, is violently turned against everything which is not a domestic product, the French continue to show preference for foreign goods.

"THE RESULT IS ENFORCED IDLENESS"—"Resultat: Le Chomage."

Let us stop all unnecessary importation EVERYWHERE, EVERY DAY, the appeal continues, and give preference to French products. "Then enforced idleness will be overcome. Without the collapse of employment there would be no crisis."

If Frenchmen will but "Buy French," "business will pick up; you will recover your lost resources."

"Achetez Francais"—"BUY FRENCH," it concludes. "See where it is your interest"—"Voyez ou est votre interet."

* * *

ALL of it—patriotic, from the French standpoint. Soundly conceived from the point of view of their interests, beyond any exception which can reasonably be taken to it by those against whose trade it operates and is directed.

It is as legitimate for the French as for the British, to protect their domestic industries, and to see that their workmen are not thrown into UNEMPLOYMENT, as the British call it; or "LE CHOMAGE" — ENFORCED IDLENESS—as the French call it, through the invasion of their home markets by foreign goods.

And it is EQUALLY LEGITIMATE FOR THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES TO DO LIKEWISE in CARE FOR THEIR UNEMPLOYED and in SUPPORT OF THEIR WEAKENED INDUSTRIES.

FRANÇAIS DÉFENDONS-NOUS !
Alors que l'opinion publique en Angleterre, aux Etats-Unis, en Allemagne, en Italie, s'est violemment dressée contre tout ce qui n'était pas produit national, nous continuons à préférer souvent le produit étranger.
Résultat : Le Chômage.
Français dites-vous bien qu'en achetant n'importe quel produit étranger, manufacturé ou agricole, vous enlevez du travail à des Français, vous privez de pain des gosses Français.
Supprimons toutes les importations inutiles, partout, toujours, préférons des produits Français, et le chômage sera supprimé.
Sans chômage, pas de crise. Les affaires reprendront, vous retrouverez toutes vos ressources d'autrefois.
Voyez où est votre intérêt.
ACHETEZ FRANÇAIS
Pour répandre ces idées, adhérez à l'Association Nationale "ACHETEZ FRANÇAIS", patronnée par M. le Ministre du Commerce — Siège social : 92, rue de Courcelles — PARIS

Reproduction of placard issued by "Buy French" Association. It reads:

"FRENCHMEN—LET US DEFEND OURSELVES!

"Although public opinion in England, the United States, Germany and Italy is violently opposed to whatever is not a national product, we often continue to prefer foreign-made goods.

"The Result: Unemployment.

"Frenchmen, you cannot repeat the truth too often that in buying any foreign article, grown or manufactured, you throw Frenchmen out of work

"YOU DEPRIVE FRENCH KIDDIES OF BREAD.

"Stop all useless imports; choose everywhere, always, French goods, and unemployment will be stopped.

"Without unemployment, no crisis. Business will recover; you will have again all the resources you had yesterday.

"'BUY FRENCH!'

"To help sow these ideas, join the 'BUY FRENCH' National Association, presided over by the Minister of Commerce. Headquarters, 92 Rue de Courcelles—Paris."

This is the reason that both houses of the New York Legislature have endorsed the great national movement to "Buy American." The Legislatures of other states are following suit.

It is the explanation of the passage by the national House of Representatives of a similar endorsement.

ORGANIZATIONS of citizens, of war veterans, of workers, innumerable trades and guilds, clubs and patriotic societies, are all pledging their adherence to to the movement.

Importers are cancelling orders for foreign goods. Imported merchandise upon merchants' shelves is being moved back and out to give way to domestic goods. The American public will buy no other.

The only voice thus far heard in opposition to this patriotic movement is — WHOSE WOULD YOU SUPPOSE? —WHY, OF COURSE, A MEMBER OF THE HOOVER ADMINISTRATION!

Solicitor Morgan, of the Department of Commerce, observes that the question is "in NO SENSE A PATRIOTIC ISSUE but strictly an ECONOMIC ONE, THE TWO DO NOT MIX."

PERHAPS, Mr. Morgan,—but only in the opinion of the discredited administration of which you have the misfortune to be a part.

Throughout the course of that administration, there has been a line of DEMARCATION, only too clear, between PATRIOTISM AND ECONOMICS — if the strange mixture of fact and fancy which the Hoover administration regards as "economics" can be properly so-called.

Solicitor Morgan professes to see "a very clear distinction between a movement of the character of 'BUY AMERICAN' privately sponsored and carried out, and a similar movement made a part of a government's commercial policy."

But the Government of the United States, for whom he undertakes to speak, apparently does not at all share his view.

* * *

THE House of Representatives HAS ENDORSED the principle of "BUY AMERICAN" and similiar action by the Senate is confidently awaited.

Surely the Houses of Congress come nearer to being the Government of the United States than the Department of Commerce.

But the FRENCH Department of Commerce has no qualms about supporting the French movement to "Buy French."

No distinction is drawn in France between "a movement privately sponsored and a similar movement made a part of the government's commercial policy."

You will see on the French placard, upon this page, that the National "Buy French" association is "patronnee par M. Le Ministre du Commerce"—i. e. APPROVED, SUPPORTED AND ENDORSED BY THE MINISTER OF COMMERCE OF THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT.

Can it be that "they order these things better in France,"—as Laurence Sterne once said?

THINGS, HOWEVER, ARE DONE BETTER ALMOST EVERYWHERE THAN BY THE HOOVER ADMINISTRATION.

Too Many School Boards

Consolidation of County System Would Raise the Level of Education and Permit Savings.

That part of Allegheny County—outside of Pittsburgh—over which Dr. C. E. Dickey, county superintendent of schools, has jurisdiction, is divided into 104 school districts, each with its own board of education, tax collector, auditor, treasurer and solicitor.

In the old days when facilities for communication were poor, and children had to trudge to school on foot, there was doubtless good reason for this multiplicity of independent districts. Nowadays, when good roads and school buses make it feasible for children to attend schools 10 miles distant from their homes, there is slight excuse for the system; for it is more costly than a unified system, with elimination of many of the present officials, would be, and besides, it works a hardship on children in districts where the school boards are more concerned with running the schools cheaply than in giving the pupils a good education.

The schools would not suffer if savings were effected in this manner. On the contrary, under a county board, or through consolidation with other districts, the level of public education in some of the districts would be raised immeasurably.

Under the existing system, with 104 school boards operating independently, there is a wide range of variation in the character of the county schools. One board spends $27.14 a year per pupil for education. Another spends $161.81. The average is $70.96. These figures represent current expenditures only; they do not include capital outlay for payments on bonded indebtedness.

One board provides one teacher for every 50 pupils. Another has a teacher for every 19 pupils. One district has an enrollment of only 37 pupils. Another has 3,039. Some boards think of nothing but how cheaply they can run the schools. Others have regard to efficiency and good teaching.

It is possible that under a county board or under consolidation with other districts the standard of education in a few particularly high districts might be lowered slightly; but it is unquestionable that the general average would be raised.

The plan would bring the greatest good for the greatest number.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

You've got to live with people. That's the first problem in your life.

When you're young, you don't think it's a problem. People are friendly or funny—nice to have around—and being a youngster, you usually manage to get your own way. But as you grow older, you begin to see that living with people isn't going to be the Perfect Picnic you had anticipated.

For instead of being friendly and funny, people begin to act in a most independent and inconvenient manner. Without the slightest apology, they upset your plans, meddle in your affairs and get in your way. Soon you see that it will be quite impossible for you to live the free life you desire. No matter how clever or courageous you are, you must always stop and consider other people.

So then what? Since you must always deal with people, what's the best way to take them?

There are two ways of taking people. One way is to take them PERSONALLY. That's the way most of us do take people. We consider them as part of our own life. We try to fit them into our own scheme of things. We judge them by our own notions.

And, as long as people do what we think they should do, this method has its delightful moments. But how very seldom will people do what we think they should do! Instead, the old Meanies insist on doing what THEY want to do, no matter how much it interferes with our desires.

Then we're furious. We feel we've been insulted and cheated. Unreasonable? Yes, of course it is. But that's the result of TAKING PEOPLE PERSONALLY.

Why are we always at odds with our relatives and friends? Why do even passing strangers get our goat? That's why. We insist on taking them personally. We demand that they adjust themselves to our scheme of things and, if they don't, we feel personally abused.

And so we go through life in a constant stew and fret. We have great plans, beautiful dreams, but they never mature because we can never manage to get along with people and our creative precious energy is wasted on endless, petty feuds.

We must live with people. We can't set up in the business of life without them. Then, isn't there any way of dealing with people without wrecking our own dispositions in the process? Yes, there is.

WE CAN GET ALONG WITH PEOPLE SPLENDIDLY IF WE'LL JUST TAKE THEM AS EXPERIENCE.

Then the whole picture changes. Instead of being personal problems, people become part of an interesting spectacle. We may not admire what they do but that fact no longer disrupts our private program. We live—and let live—taking the Big Parade as it comes, whether it comes according to our notion or not.

"But suppose we have to deal with people who are part of our own family; whose acts have a direct and disastrous bearing on our own plans?"

Then we should protect ourselves against such people and such acts, exactly as we would protect ourselves against any other possible menace—fire and flood, for example. We know the menace of fire and flood. If we're wise, we make an estimate of that menace and take out insurance against it; but we don't go around fussing because fire and flood exist. We don't allow fire and flood to wreck our moods and waste our ambition.

We can, if we will, learn to treat people in the same way. We can work with them, play with them, even marry them; and yet remain a little apart from them, taking them as experience.

And that is what people really are, after all. Nobody belongs to anyone else in the world. Nobody can, or should try to, depend on anyone else for his happiness and growth. At best, we can only be a Supporting Caste to each other—and, whether we like the rest of the caste or not, we must go on.

What a lot of misery we'd save ourselves and the rest of the human race, if we could only remember that fact!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Mixed Grill

One of the most cheering phrases of the late depression is the passing of the "sugar daddy." A man has just GOT to stay at home and love his own wife, when he hasn't the price to go anywhere else.

Marriage, to a woman, is like a picture show. No matter how it bores her, she usually sticks around until the last scene, just to see if SOMETHING interesting won't happen to brighten it up.

* * *

Sometimes a girl's softly-murmured "Yes" means "Thank heaven—at last!"—and sometimes it means, "Oh, well, I suppose you'll do—as husbands go."

* * *

With a little canned chicken, a few leaves of lettuce, a sprig of parsley and a big imagination, almost any modern woman can serve a nourishing, "home-cooked" bridge luncheon.

* * *

Love is an emotion that remains three-quarters of the time at the same temperature—halfway between the torrid flame of passion and the tepid water of friendship.

* * *

A Tip for Women—The Sphinx has always been regarded with admiration and devotion, as a wise and fascinating creature who knows a lot that she won't tell—just because she knows enough to keep her mouth closed.

* * *

If the salesgirl is friendly and obliging, you're in a "store;" if she serves you coldly but politely, it's a shoppe; and if she acts like a bored duchess who wonders how you got IN, it's a "maison."

It's a clever lover who can make a woman have such a darn good time "forgiving him," that she completely forgets what he did to make her angry.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Why do you always attribute the worst possible motive to others, when their actions come up for comment?

Why should your mind picture the worst instead of the best as signified by the actions of others?

Is there so much unworthiness in your own mind that it is bound to come to the surface?

If your thoughts were directed in the right course you would not revert so constantly to the unsavory.

If you cannot give wholesome consideration to your contemplation of others, you must be looking for something to use as a smoke screen for your own misdeeds.

It must be that your personal atmosphere degrades your thoughts and warps your ideas.

Even granting that a person's actions may be governed by wrong motives, to have no evidence to substantiate your inference establishes you as a person of low character who should clean up at home, before putting a stigma on others.

Text for Today

I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help.—Psalms, cxxi:1.

(Today's text is suggested by the Rev. John Ray Ewers, pastor, East End Christian Church.)

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Grand opera started the season so auspiciously that Maury Paul led off his write-up with this impassioned ecstacy: "With a musical crash and a social splash, etc." Many thought that the opening would be a death knell. Yet, society has not offered such a tasty tornado in years.

Since, however, there have been anxious nights when interest in opera came to the sudden halt of a deer, down wind. The drafty, barny old structure seemed as forlorn as its red plush. A solution of the economic riddle may restore the old glory, yet even prosperity does not assure the future.

Opera now is classified by the government as the "Metropolitan Opera Association" and, as such, is exempt from ticket tax. Prices have been slashed and the old guard—a thinning 400—made a valiant try to stage the usually spectacular see-me show at the premiere.

Chiefly, the need is for an exciting personality. Memories of booming Caruso, lovely Geraldine Farrar, and other haunting high-noters are vivid. Lawrence Tibbett sings divinely, but, off the stage, is colorless as a Broadway stooge. Lily Pons, capable, has been too widely exploited as a fireside knitter.

Opera attains a box-office high when songbirds swirl into headlines in crazy cock-a-doodle-doo. For the percentage of true lovers of opera is small and largely confined to gallery-perchers. Most come to see the be-diamoned and highly publicized.

The ground floor of the Laird of Skibo's avenue castle blazed with lights for the first time since the master's passing, one recent night. The only relief from the gloom of the high-spiked fence and surrounding shrubbery in the Carnegie home, for years, has been an all-night candle-like glow in a top dormer window. So pronounced was the change from darkness to light, many familiar with the neighborhood grouped against the park wall to watch.

Straight vaudeville fumed into a new spurt at the old Broadway theater around the holidays. A highly talented bill at low tariff, and, as one of the devotees, I watched the two-a-day cicatrizing hopefully. But the wound seems too deep to heal. Vaudeville, as old-timers knew it, is in complete breakdown. Or so it seems. I was bored unbelievably.

Indeed, the only smile which I salvaged from the potpourri was the lachrymose Jack McAllen's reply to a query as to the sex of a Bronx zoo hippopotamus. He owned a disbelief that anyone would be interested save another hippo.

Pepy de Albrew is Broadway's most highly perfumed exquisite. An untalented night club performer, he attracts the ladies by exploiting that tiddely-pom someone calls I-kiss-your-hand-madame technique. Handsome in a glossy, European way, he moves gracefully among tables, sometimes singing in indifferent voice, presenting a story-book version of a dilettante. He is the sort who breakfasts in silken pajamas at 4 p. m., lolls in fancy dressing gown until late, when he slips into full evening dress to pitter-patter feminine hearts.

The New Yorker looking most unlike the headline picture is John F. Curry, Tammany Hall tycoon. Those who might expect a beetle-browed, over-riding boss with huge jowls find, instead, an unobtrusive, gray-haired and gray-minded fellow with gentle manners. He dresses in sedate fashion, seems absolutely humorless and blind to the opposition which swirls about him.

Afternoon teas always are a gamble in New York, for there are too many. So it was that an arriving guest was met by the dispirited Ward Morehouse, who, above the babble of voices and sea of faces within, moaned: "They all came!"

For no reason at all, just now, I burst, full-throated, into "Lover, Come Back to Me." It brought a peeping face to the oval glass of the kitchen door and an anxious voice inquired: "Yo' is all right is you?" And Verne Porter, stretched in the best chair across the room, reading, looked up to reply: "He's fine. Just one of his lucid intervals."
